3 READING & VOCABULARY

working out meaning from context

- a You're going to read an article about names. Before you read, look at the title of the article. In what ways do you think a name can help or hurt you?
- b Read the article and write the headings in the correct paragraphs. There is one heading you don't need to use.
- A Life expectancy D Popular names in history
B Names and careers
C How people see you E Success at school
- c Read the article again. Answer the questions with a partner.
- 1 How do people see you differently if you're called Elizabeth, or Sophie, or Ann?
 - 2 What kind of names might help you to get better results at school?
 - 3 Why might someone called Ellie choose to be an electrician?
 - 4 When you are applying for a job, is it an advantage or a disadvantage to have an unusual name?
 - 5 What kind of initials should you have if you want to live longer?

Guessing the meaning of new words and phrases

When you are reading and find a word or phrase you don't know.

- 1 Decide if you think it's a noun, a verb, an adjective, etc.
- 2 Try to work out the meaning from the context (the other words around it).
- 3 If you still can't work out what it means, either ignore it and carry on reading, or use a dictionary to help you.

Is your name helping or hurting you?

Most of us never think about our names. They're just names and they usually don't mean much – or do they? New research has come out which suggests that our names can affect everything from our emotional well-being to our career paths, and even how long we live.

1 _____
A recent survey asked 6,000 people in the UK to rank common names for men and women in three categories: successful, lucky, and attractive. The results showed a strong preference for certain names. People called James and Elizabeth were seen as the most successful, Jack and Lucy were the luckiest, and Sophie and Ryan were the most attractive. Overall, it seems that the best name for men is James, which came near the top in all three categories. The least desirable ones were George and Ann, which ranked near the bottom in all categories.

2 _____
The potential effects of your name go beyond perceptions. According to several studies, teachers give higher marks to children with attractive names. In the US, where grades are given on a scale from A (excellent) to D (poor), another study found that students with first names beginning with A or B received higher marks than students whose first names started with C or D.

3 _____
Some experts also believe that people are attracted to jobs that sound like their names. One study found that people called Dennis and Denise are more likely to become dentists. There are hairdressers called Harry, artists called Art, and even a lawyer called Sue Yoo*. Even if your name and job don't match, your name could affect your job prospects. A study found that American employers were more likely to consider the CVs of applicants who have 'normal-sounding' names. Researchers also say that companies are more likely to promote people if their names sound successful.

4 _____
It may seem incredible, but there is evidence that your name could affect how long you live. Researchers compared the death certificates of people with 'positive' initials (such as J.O.Y. or F.U.N.) and people with 'negative' ones (such as D.I.E. or S.A.D.). The results? People with positive initials live about four years longer than the average, while people with negative initials die about three years sooner. So if you have an 'undesirable' name, should you change it to a new one? Most experts say no. For most people, having a positive attitude will help more than giving yourself a new name.

* The name Sue Yoo sounds like the phrase 'sue you', which means to make a claim against somebody in court.

- 1 Who named the product?
- 2 What instructions did the company's founder give for choosing a name?
- 3 What does the name mean?
- 4 Why is the meaning appropriate?

How was the Kindle named?

There were ebook readers before the Amazon Kindle, but the Kindle was the first to become popular around the world. Since it first appeared in 2007, millions of Kindles have been sold, and in fact Amazon now sells more ebooks than paper books.

When it was time to give the Kindle a name, Amazon's founder, Jeff Bezos, asked Michael Cronan to try to think of one. Cronan, who was an American designer, also had a business that created names for companies and products. Bezos told him that he didn't want a high-tech name. Amazon's customers loved traditional paper books and Bezos didn't want to annoy them.

Cronan and his wife talked a lot about reading, and about the warm, comfortable feelings people get from it. A lot of different names were considered, but he finally chose 'kindle', which means 'to light a fire'. Cronan thought that this would remind people of the excitement they feel when they are enjoying their favourite book. The name was also inspired by a line from the French novelist Victor Hugo: 'to read is to light a fire'.

- g Tell B about how the Kindle was named, using questions 1–4 to help you.

- h Now B will tell you about how the iMac was named.

2 PRONUNCIATION word stress

Word stress on adjectives formed with suffixes

When an adjective is formed from a root word and a suffix, the stress is always on a syllable of the root word, e.g. re|ly - re|li|able. The stress does not change when a negative prefix is added, e.g. un|re|li|able.

- a Underline the stressed syllable in the bold adjectives in the questions below. Remember it will never be on the prefix or suffix.
- Who is the most gla|mo|rous person you know? What makes him / her like that?
 - Are you very po|sse|ssive of anything, e.g. your phone or your laptop? Why don't you like other people using it?
 - Were you a re|be|llious child or teenager? What kind of things did you do?
 - What are your most com|for|ta|ble clothes? When do you wear them?
 - Do you think you are a cre|a|tive person? Why (not)?
 - Have you ever been to a very lu|xu|ri|ous hotel or restaurant? Where? Was it worth the money?
 - Have you ever felt en|vi|ous of a brother or sister? Why (not)?
 - What's the most im|pre|ssive monument or building you've ever visited? Why did you like it so much?
 - What kind of un|heal|thy food do you really like eating?
 - What do you think is a sui|ta|ble present to take if somebody invites you for a meal in their house?
- b 14 Listen to the adjectives and check. Then listen again and repeat them.
- c Work with a partner. A ask B questions 1–5. Then B ask A questions 6–10.

3 LISTENING & SPEAKING

5 READING

a Look at some names for colours from an online clothing website. What colours do you think they are? Would you use any similar words for colours in your language?

berry ivory melon mint morning sky mushroom wine

b Look at four colours from a well-known UK paint company, Farrow & Ball. How would you describe the colours?

c With a partner, try to match the colours to their names.

Arsenic Cabbage White Dead Salmon
Monkey Puzzle

d Read the article about the paint names. Check your answers to c.

What colour is Dead Salmon?

There was a time when you could tell what colour something was by its name. Red, green, even lemon yellow or royal blue immediately told us what something would look like. But, as anyone who has recently bought clothes, a car, or even children's crayons has probably noticed, the trend for giving colours bizarre names is now everywhere, and the image they create in our mind does not necessarily correspond with the actual colour.

One company which may have taken this trend the furthest is the popular UK paint company Farrow & Ball. They sell a wide range of beautiful colours with very unusual names. It is easy to laugh at these names, but in fact many of them have stories behind them.

Dead Salmon Why did the company give this attractive brownish-pink colour such a depressing-sounding name? In fact, the name has been used for this colour for more than 200 years. According to Farrow & Ball, the name comes from an 1805 bill for the painting of the library of an old English country house. 'Dead' actually referred to the paint finish, in the way matt or gloss might today.

Arsenic The name of this pleasant greenish-blue colour may surprise people who associate the name with a poisonous chemical and think of it as a white powder. However, in the late 18th century, arsenic was used to create a colour called Paris Green, which was commonly used in paint and wallpaper. Many people became ill as a result of living in houses with Paris Green walls or wallpaper, including, it is said, Napoleon.

Monkey Puzzle This dark greyish-green colour is named after a kind of pine tree found in Chile and Argentina. The tree got its English name in the 1800s after examples were brought to London, and somebody commented that it would be very difficult to climb, even for a monkey.

Cabbage White This subtle shade of white, which has a slight blueish hint, also gets its name from nature. It is named after the Cabbage White butterfly, so-called because the caterpillars feed on cabbages.

- Read the article again. Then cover the text and look at the colour names in c. In pairs, say what you can remember about the origin of the names.
- Look at the highlighted adjective and noun phrases. With a partner, try to work out what they mean.
- Would you use any of these colours to paint a room in your house? Are unusual colour names a trend in your country as well?

6 SPEAKING & WRITING

Britons spend £118 million replacing forgotten holiday items

By TRAVEL REPORTER

Forty-one per cent of Britons forget to pack at least one essential item when they go on holiday, according to a survey.

In total, almost 15 million important holiday items are left behind each year, and Britons spend £118 million buying these things again once they reach their destination.

4 SPEAKING & WRITING

- a Look at the page from a website. Read some of the ideas for cheap holidays. Discuss the questions with a partner.
- 1 What do you think are the pros and cons of each idea?
 - 2 Do you know anyone who has done these things? Were they a success?

NEWS | SPORT | BUSINESS | TRAVEL | CULTURE

Want a cheap holiday? Try these ideas

- 1 Go couch-surfing. On websites like couchsurfing.org, local people will let you sleep on their sofa for free. It's not luxury travel, but you'll meet friendly locals and see how they really live.
 - 2 Swap houses. Exchange houses with someone in the place you're going to visit. You stay in their place, and they stay in yours. Websites like homelink.org can arrange this for a small fee.
 - 3 Save on travel costs. Book early for good offers with low cost airlines. Use special services such as InterRail for travelling around Europe by train, or check out car-sharing websites like ridefinder.eu.
 - 4 Eat street food. In many cities, even really expensive ones, you can find food which is both tasty and cheap at stalls in the street. For example, try crêpes in Paris, kebabs in Istanbul, tacos in Mexico City. Most places have their own delicious speciality.
 - 5 Try 'voluntourism'. These holidays combine volunteer work and tourism. Help in an orphanage, work on an organic farm, and more – all for free. You'll save money and have experiences you'd never find on a package holiday.
- b With a partner, write short paragraphs on three more ideas for saving money on holiday. Give reasons why each one is a good idea.
- (If you travel off-season, you'll save money on train and plane tickets, hotel rooms, and even food.)*
- c Show your three ideas to another pair. Which tips are the most useful?

| 5 are the world's best tourists | 10 dress well when they are on holiday |
- c Read the article once, and compare your answers to the findings in the surveys. How many did you guess correctly?
- d Read the article again. Look at the highlighted words and phrases. With a partner, work out their meanings.

What different nationalities do on holiday...

A new survey of holidaymakers in Europe and the USA has found that the holiday you enjoy may depend on the country you come from.

Some holiday destinations were popular among all nationalities. The beach, for instance, was the undisputed leader among all destinations in the survey.

Activity holidays are also popular, for example, cycling, sailing, or trekking holidays. Even when their main aim is to relax, travellers said that they enjoyed seeing the sights and visiting places of interest in and around their holiday destination.

There are, however, country-specific differences:

- The Greeks are particularly keen on sport during their holidays, with 75% engaging in some kind of sporting activity.
- Sunbathing is extremely popular with the Germans. Almost 50% named it as their favourite holiday activity, especially on Spanish beaches – in fact 25% of high-income Germans are planning to go to Spain in the next 12 months. Going hiking and eating out in upmarket restaurants came second and third for Germans.
- Citing concerns about skin cancer, only one in ten Americans said sunbathing was something they would do on holiday. Eager to soak up the history and culture that they can't find at home, 46% of Americans prefer to go on tours of museums, historic buildings, and other places of interest.
- About 60% of UK travellers admitted drinking more while away than they would normally do, with 28% saying they had five or more alcoholic drinks every day.

... and what the locals think of them

Another survey, conducted by Expedia, an online travel company, has ranked the Japanese as the world's best tourists. The British and the Canadians rank second and third among the 27 nationalities in the survey. The survey also revealed that the French have the reputation for being the world's worst tourists.

Around 4,500 hoteliers across the globe gave their opinions on the best travellers overall, as well as on specific categories including politeness, generosity, behaviour, fashion sense, tidiness, and how much they complain.

The survey found that:

- The Japanese, British, Canadians, Germans, and Australians are considered the most polite tourists. The French were considered the most impolite.
- Hoteliers also found the French to be the most frugal and the meanest tippers. The biggest tippers were the Americans, followed by the British, the Germans, and the Japanese.
- The top three loudest nations were the Americans, the Italians, and the Spanish. The Japanese were ranked as the quietest.
- The Americans were at the bottom of the list for fashion sense, with the stylish Italians and French taking top prize.
- The Japanese, Germans, and British were considered the tidiest tourists. The Americans ranked at the bottom here as well.
- The Japanese were ranked as the least likely to complain, followed by the Canadians and the Swiss. The nationalities who complained the most were the Americans, the Germans, and the French.

e Talk to a partner.

- 1 What would you say are the favourite holiday destinations for people from your country? What do they like to do there?
- 2 How do you think people feel about tourists from your country in the categories from the survey (polite, generous, etc.)?

7 SPEAKING

a Choose two of the ideas below to talk about. Think about what you are going to say, and make notes.

a place I'd really like to go to for a holiday a great winter holiday I once had things I do differently when I'm on holiday (clothes, tipping, activities...)

a holiday I will always remember from my childhood things tourists do that annoy me a family holiday when everyone argued a holiday when I had a lot of problems

a holiday when I did a lot of sport

b Work with a partner or in small groups. Talk about your topics, giving as much information as you can. Listen to the other student(s) and ask for more information.

🔍 Asking for more information

Ask questions about what people say to show interest and keep the conversation going.

Really? Why is / was that?

- 5 'the shop's closing' and 'the shop's closing down'

2 LISTENING & SPEAKING

- a Look at the photos. Do you see similar sights in any areas of your town?
- b Read the article about high streets in the UK. Why have they changed so much? What are some towns trying to do?

Can anyone save the British high street?

The high street was once the heart of communities across the UK. The butcher's, baker's, and greengrocer's were all there, run by locals who knew their customers by name.

But today one in seven high street shops has closed down, or has been replaced by a café or a beauty salon, as shoppers drive to out-of-town hypermarkets or malls, or buy online. The recession doesn't help either. In the worst-hit towns, more than one-third of the small high street shops have disappeared.

To try to save their high streets, some towns now offer free parking nearby. Others plan to have live music and theatre performances in the town centre, and others are encouraging small businesses to move into empty shop spaces and open 'pop-up shops' (quirky, interesting shops that close or change after a few weeks). The towns are hopeful, but are these efforts too little, too late?

- c 1 40) Listen to four people talk about their local shopping street. Who is most optimistic about the situation of small shops?
- d Listen again and complete the chart.

5 READING

- a You're going to read about a UK shopping site, NotOnTheHighStreet.com. Why do you think the founders decided to call it that?
- b Now read About us and check.

Where everything has a story

ABOUT US

Award winning entrepreneurs Holly Tucker and Sophie Cornish founded the website NotOnTheHighStreet.com from a kitchen table. Two working mothers, they loved discovering handmade and beautiful objects for themselves and as gifts, the kind of things that were sold in quirky markets, craft fairs or small boutiques. But finding these places took time.

So Sophie and Holly came up with an idea. What if there were one place which brought together unique and hard-to-find objects from all over the UK? From this idea, NotOnTheHighStreet.com was born. Launched with just 100 sellers, there are now thousands of talented and creative small businesses who sell here, with more joining every week. Each seller hand-makes their products, and sends them directly to the buyer. Happy shopping!

- c Read about three of their sellers. Write the questions in the right place. There is one question you do not need.

- A What are your ambitions for the future?
 B What sort of products do you make and sell?
 C How does the place where you live influence your products?
 D Do you also sell in shops or only from the website?
 E How is your health now?
 F Where did you start your company and where do you work now?
 G When did you set up your business and why?

- d Read about the sellers again. Answer the questions with KW, AB, or EC.

Which seller...?

- 1 makes things that people specifically ask her for 2 gives some of the money she makes to a good cause
 3 started her business after she moved house
 4 would like her business to be more international 5 started working again after a period of not being able to 6 creates products out of unwanted things

KRESSE WESLING

1 _____?

My husband and I have built our entire business around 'upcycling' – recycling old materials to make something new. We take old fire hoses* and create belts, wallets, phone cases, and bags from them.

What inspired you to start your business?

Recycling has always been a passion of ours. As soon as I saw some of the London Fire Brigade's old hoses, I instantly fell in love with them. We now collect old hoses across the country and 50% of the profits go to the Fire Fighters Charity.

It started in a single room where we lived in Brixton, London. Now we have a large workshop. We've recycled over 170 tonnes of hoses.

*hose = a long tube made of rubber used for putting water onto a fire, gardens, etc.

ABIGAIL BRYANS

Describe your product range. What makes it unique?

I make wooden signs with clever sayings. 'Champagne is the answer' is one of my most popular signs. I also get many fantastic requests for personalized signs from customers.

3 _____?

About ten years ago, I was on my own with three small children and no job. Over the years I had made small gifts like photo frames and sold them to friends, and it was a friend of mine who told me, 'Don't be frightened to fail'. Hearing those words inspired me to start the business. Now I'm working full-time at my kitchen table in south London.

4 _____?

I would just love my designs to be sold around the world. I'd also love a little workshop so that I didn't have to work in my kitchen!

EDWINA COOPER

What inspired you to create your business?

I'd always enjoyed painting, but about ten years ago I had a stroke*. I couldn't speak or move my right hand, which I use to paint. The doctors said I'd never paint again but I slowly got better. A few years later, a friend asked me to do an illustration for her business. She liked what I did and it inspired me to start painting again.

5 _____?

Much better. I'm fully recovered now and I'm selling my hand-painted cushions on NotOnTheHighStreet.com. I'm so happy that people like what I do.

6 _____?

My husband, son, and I moved to the Isle of Wight about seven years ago, which is when I started painting cushions at home. I'm inspired by the island, and my customers say my paintings make them feel like they're on the island with me.

*stroke = a sudden serious illness when a blood vessel (= tube) in the brain bursts or is blocked

CAN YOU UNDERSTAND THIS TEXT?

- a Read the article once. Do you agree that the kind of holiday you enjoy depends on your personality?

Make sure your holiday matches your personality

'Choosing the right holiday is more than just picking a place or experience that sounds fun or interesting,' says Arthur Hoffman of Expedia Asia Pacific. 'Travellers should think carefully about what they and their travel companions are like, and then research travel destinations,' he says. 'This will help ensure the right holiday for the right person and their personality.'

So here's some advice on what different personality types should look for when picking their next holiday.

Extrovert / introvert

Extroverts enjoy holiday experiences that provide high levels of excitement, novelty, risk-taking, and social interaction. ¹ _____, restaurants, and crowded cafés rather than art galleries and temples or churches. They love action-packed holidays that never stop.

Introverts are the opposite: they like activities that promote reflection and intellectual or spiritual experiences.

Nervous / relaxed

Nervous individuals tend to prefer destinations, cultural activities, and food types that remind them of home or of past travel experiences. When travelling overseas, they often choose restaurants that serve food similar to their country of origin. Unusual experiences tend to worry them. ² _____, they can find resorts or holiday experiences with high levels of socialising and activities stressful.

Relaxed people are just the opposite. They are OK with trips involving unknowns, and take new challenges in their stride.

Open / closed

Open people will rarely go back to the same destination unless they have fallen in love with the place and want to explore it further. They enjoy big cities that offer lots of variety, such as Mumbai, London, Paris, New York, or Sydney.

Closed people visit places they have fond memories of, such as their hometowns. ³ _____.

Conservative / eccentric

Conservative types will often take holidays that others will be impressed by within their immediate social circles. ⁴ _____ and showing them their latest holiday photos.

Eccentrics take holidays that might not win them much social approval, such as bird-watching in Siberia!

Careful / spontaneous

Careful people like to plan well in advance – way before a holiday even begins. They want to know the exact where, when, and why of their holiday, and often have a long list of must-sees. ⁵ _____ and will spend a lot of time researching on the internet and reading travel guides. They often record their holidays through photos, videos, travel diaries, or blogs.

Spontaneous people don't make plans and will go along with the flow.

- b Read the article again and complete it with phrases A–F. There is one sentence you do not need.
- A They tend to have strict time and money budgets
 - B They often go back to the same holiday destination again and again
 - C They tend to prefer busy, lively places

3A The generation gap

1 GRAMMAR past simple, past continuous, or used to?

a Look at the picture of a school playground. Which child or children do you think is / are...?

a tomboy a 'girly' girl a bookworm a well-behaved child quarrelling being naughty

- b 2)) Listen and check. Do you identify with any of them? Which one? Why?
- c Read the posts on a blog where people write about what they were like as children. Who thinks they have changed the most / the least?
- d With a partner, circle the correct form of the highlighted verbs. Why is the other form not possible?
- e > p.136 Grammar Bank 3A. Learn more about the past simple, the past continuous, and used to, and practise them.

What kind of child were you... and have you changed?

Nick I'd say I was a pretty well-behaved child. I loved toy cars, and ¹ was spending / I used to spend hours lining them up to create traffic jams. I was an only child so I didn't have as much opportunity to be naughty as other kids! I think I'm still someone who avoids conflict but sadly I don't have as much of an imagination as I used to.

Laura I was a good mix between girly girl and tomboy. I loved playing outside – but I didn't like jeans, I liked pretty clothes. For example, I remember once when I climbed a really high tree but I couldn't get down, because ² was wearing / I used to wear a pink frilly dress and it got caught in the branches! In that sense I haven't changed much. I still love wearing pretty clothes and I still love going for walks in the country.

Sarah As a child ³ used to be / I was being very shy. My dad was in the army so my family moved around a lot, a different school almost every year. I became a lot more confident after ⁴ started / I used to start university. A lot of the people at uni didn't know anybody else, so it was easier to make friends. In fact nowadays many people see me as outgoing!

2 PRONUNCIATION & SPEAKING

-ed endings; sentence rhythm

- a 25)) Listen to the three different pronunciations of the -ed ending.

1  I used to be shy. I liked animals.

2  I've changed a lot. I enjoyed exams.

3 /ɪd/ I started school. It ended in tears.

- b 26)) Listen to some more regular past simple verbs. How is the -ed ending pronounced? Tick (✓) the right box.

	/t/	/d/	/ɪd/
1 I hated eating vegetables.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
2 We looked alike.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
3 I tried everything.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
4 We lived abroad.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
5 I hoped to pass.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
6 We decided to move.	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>

- c Practise saying the sentences.

Past or present?

When the -ed ending is pronounced /t/ or /ɪd/, it can often be difficult to hear whether a regular verb is in the past or present tense. Use the context to help you.

- d 27)) Listen to six more sentences. Are the verbs in the present or past? Write Pr or Pa.

1 2 3 4 5 6

- e 28)) Listen to the rhythm of the conversation below. Then practise it with a partner. Copy the rhythm, and try to pronounce the -ed endings correctly.

A When was the last time you stayed at a hotel?

B Last year. We were driving to the south for a holiday, and we stopped at a hotel for the night on the way.

A Did you use to go to hotels when you were a child?

B No, we used to spend the holidays at my grandparents'. They lived in a village in the country.

- f Talk to a partner.

Events in your life

Take it in turns to ask and answer the questions with the past simple form of the verb.

- Where you born? (be)
Where you when you a child? (live, be)
- How old you when you primary school? (be, start) you your first day? (enjoy) What you ? (do)
- When the first time you abroad? (be, travel)
Where you ? (go)
- When the last time you a meal for friends? (be, cook)
What you ? (make) your friends it? (like)
- When the last time you relatives? (be, visit)
Who you ? (visit) What you ? (do)

Where were you born?

I was born in a small town called Morella.

When I was younger

Do you agree with these statements? If you do, explain why. If you don't, change them so that they're true for you.

When I was younger...

- my town used to have better shops and services than it does today.
- children used to spend more time playing outside than they do now.
- people used to cook more, and eat out less.
- the weather didn't use to be as changeable.
- more young people used to go to university. Now they all want to get a job when they finish school.
- people didn't use to watch so much TV.

I don't agree with 1. I think there used to be fewer good shops. We now have a new shopping mall outside the centre of town.

What was happening?

Add two more times and dates that you remember well to the list. Where were you then? What were you doing?

- at midnight on 31 December of last year
- at 9.00 last night
- at lunchtime on your last birthday
- _____
- _____

At midnight on 31 December of last year, I was at a friends' house. We were playing music and dancing...

Under 16? This is no place for you!

As from today, teenagers under 16 will be banned from the centre of the Welsh town of Bangor at night. This is the first time a town in the UK has banned children from an entire city centre.

The aim of the new rule is to reduce crime and anti-social behaviour in the town centre. In the last year, the area has seen a large number of robberies committed by young people.

The new curfew, which applies between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m., means that any person under 16 who is caught in the centre of town without a parent or adult guardian could go to jail for three months or pay a £2,500 fine.

Both parents and some politicians have criticized the rule, which they say treats all young people like criminals. Sports groups, youth centres, and even churches could be affected, they say.

One mother said: 'My son is 16, and he wouldn't be allowed to walk home from the bus stop with these rules.'

Another resident said: 'The idea is simply crazy.'

Glossary

- 1 _____ /'kʌf ju/ noun a time after which people are not allowed to go outside their homes
- 2 _____ /'ænti 'səʊl bɪ'heɪvjə(r)/ noun a way of acting that is not considered acceptable by other people
- 3 _____ /bæn/ verb said officially that something is not allowed
- 4 _____ /faɪn/ noun a sum of money that you have to pay for breaking a law or rule

- d Read the article again. Work out the meaning of the highlighted words and phrases, and then complete the glossary. Check the pronunciation of the words and phrases.

- e Work in groups with B and C. Tell each other your stories. Try to use the words from the glossary and explain them to B and C if necessary.

- f Discuss the questions with your group.

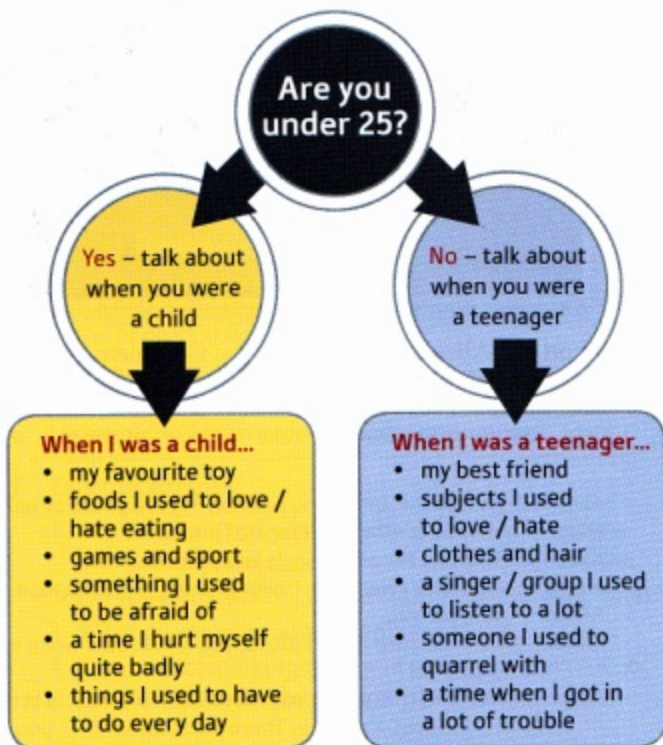

- 1 Do you think these are good ideas? Why (not)?
- 2 Are there any places in your town where babies, children, or teenagers aren't allowed?
- 3 Are there any places where you don't think babies / small children, teenagers, adults, or old people should be allowed? Why?

I don't think children should be allowed in spas.

It's a place to relax, and children make a noise in the pool.

6 SPEAKING & WRITING

- a What were you like as a child, or as a teenager?
 Tell a partner. Talk about three of the topics in either When I was a child... or When I was a teenager...
 Say how you're different today.

- b Write a paragraph for the blog in 1 about what you used to be like as a child (or as a teenager) and if you have changed.

5 GRAMMAR prepositions

- a With a partner, complete the gaps with a preposition from the list.

at (x2) from in of (x2) over next to

I took this photo when we were flying ¹ _____ the Andes – I was going ² _____ Argentina to Chile. Luckily, I was sitting ³ _____ the window, so I had a perfect view. I'm not usually very good ⁴ _____ taking photos, but I think this one is beautiful, and I'm quite proud ⁵ _____ it. Later on during the flight, we had a lot of turbulence, and by the time we finally arrived ⁶ _____ Santiago I was feeling quite nervous. But when I look ⁷ _____ this photo it reminds me ⁸ _____ the feeling of calm that mountains always give me.

- b Which preposition(s) in the text...?
- 1 show where a person or thing is
 - 2 show where a person or thing is moving
 - 3 are examples of prepositions used after certain verbs
 - 4 are examples of prepositions used after certain adjectives
- c ➤ p.137 Grammar Bank 3B. Learn more about prepositions and practise them.
- d Complete 1–10 with a preposition. Then choose four topics to talk to a partner about.
- 1 A photo you took that you are very proud _____
 - 2 Someone in your family that you really like talking _____
 - 3 Something you're really looking forward _____ at the moment
 - 4 Something your country is famous _____
 - 5 Someone you often argue _____
 - 6 A beautiful sight that you once flew _____
 - 7 What you have _____ the walls of your bedroom
 - 8 Someone you could rely _____ in a crisis
 - 9 Something you usually ask _____ when you eat out
 - 10 Somewhere you had to walk _____ a large number of steps

6 READING

- a What do you do with the photos you've taken? Tell a partner. Which of these do you usually do?
- store them on your computer, phone, tablet, etc.
 - back them up on a separate hard drive or CD-ROM
 - email them to friends and family
 - upload them to an online photo site
 - print them out
- b Read the article about storing digital photos and complete 1–5 with a heading from the list. There is one heading you don't need to use.

A Safe in the cloud?

C Digital files can deteriorate

E Technology becomes obsolete

F How long will they last?

How safe are your digital photos?

In the past, your grandmother probably kept her photos in a box, or in an old album, and sadly, over time these memories faded or disappeared. But with today's technology, that shouldn't be a problem. A digital photo lasts forever, right?

Actually, think again. Though it is still a good idea to preserve all of your photos as digital computer files, there are plenty of things that can damage or even destroy those high-tech memories.

1 _____

Very few people realize this can happen, but if you store your photos as .jpgs (the most common file format), the file will actually deteriorate every time you copy or resave it. Experts disagree about how much damage this can do, but the damage is real.

2 _____

Your files may be safe on your hard drive, but how long will your hard drive last? The average is just five years. Before then, one big magnet could erase your drive in an instant. You could back up your photos on a CD-ROM, but they don't last much longer: about 10–20 years at most, experts say.

- c Read the article again. Match the storage method with the problem it has.

1 ■ .jpg files	a only last for about five years
2 ■ hard drives	b only last for 10 to 20 years
3 ■ CD-ROMs	c are damaged when they're copied
4 ■ CD-ROM drives	d can go out of business
5 ■ 'the cloud'	e may not exist in the future
6 ■ photo sites	f can be damaged by storms

- d Look at the highlighted words in the text related to digital photos and computers, and work out their meaning from the context.
- e What do you think is the biggest threat to your own digital photos? After reading the article, will you do anything differently to protect your photos?

3 _____

Let's say all goes well and your CD-ROM full of photos lasts for 20 years. By then, will there still be any CD-ROM drives in the world that can read the disc? This is also true for flash drives, memory cards, and the rest. Today's high-tech storage solution is tomorrow's useless floppy disk.

4 _____

People talk about saving their files in a magical place on the internet, like Apple's iCloud or Dropbox. But this just means your files are in a company's data centre on – guess what? – a whole load of hard drives, which could die or go bad just as easily as your own. Just recently, a summer thunderstorm hit a cloud storage centre in the US, and major sites like Netflix, Pinterest, and Instagram were knocked offline for almost a whole day. Thousands of files were lost.

5 _____

Websites like Flickr and Instagram let you quickly upload photos and share them with others. But bear in mind that a photo site which is popular now could one day go out of business, taking your photos with it.

So what should you do? Experts say to make lots of copies of your photos and save them in many different ways – on your computer, on a backup drive, online, and even as traditional printed photos. It may be too late to save Grandma's photos, but you can still preserve yours.

7 LISTENING & SPEAKING

- a (23) Listen to three people talk about their favourite childhood photos. Number the photos 1–3. There is one photo you don't need to use.

- b Listen again. Which speaker...?

- a wanted to have the photo on his / her wall, but couldn't
- b doesn't think he / she looks very good in the photo
- c says the photo makes him / her feel better when he / she is a bit sad
- d only saw the photo many years after it was taken
- e likes the photo because of the emotion you can see in it
- f used to keep the photo in his / her kitchen
- c Think of an interesting photo of yourself as a child. Tell a partner about it. Include the information below or your own ideas.
- How old are you in the photo?
 - Who are you with?
 - What's happening, or what has just happened?
 - When and where was the photo taken?
 - Why do you like it? Does it remind you of anything special?
 - Where do you keep or display it?
- d Show your partner some photos on your phone and tell him or her about them.

- b Look at the photo below. What do you think the woman is looking for? Why?
- c You're going to listen to a journalist, Liz Scarff, talking about her experiences of living as a 'freegan'. Read the beginning of an article she wrote about freegans. Who are they? What do they do?

NEWS VOICES | SPORT | TECH | LIFE | PROPERTY | TRAVEL | MONEY

My three days as a freegan

By Liz Scarff

They're not poor or homeless, but they look in rubbish bins for food to eat. They call themselves 'freegans' – a combination of the words 'free' and 'vegan' – and they are upset about how much food people waste. Around seventeen million tons of food is thrown away in Britain every year, four million of which is perfectly good to eat. This is especially disturbing since four million people in Britain can't afford a healthy diet.

Their ideas are admirable, but taking and eating food from the rubbish sounds disgusting, embarrassing, and possibly unsafe. So, just how easy is it to live on food from bins? My challenge is to live as a freegan for three days. Too embarrassed to go on my own, I've brought my friend Dave. But first, we meet up with two London freegans, Ash and Ross, for a quick lesson in freeganism.

- d 29 Listen to Liz Scarff talk about trying to live as a freegan. Mark the sentences T (true) or F (false).

Sunday

- 1 You should take gloves and a torch with you before going to look in bins.
- 2 Large shops are better than small or medium size ones.
- 3 In the first bin they found frozen chicken soup and chilli con carne.
- 4 They also found some eggs, but they were past their sell-by date.
- 5 Ross says you don't need to worry if the packaging is broken or if something is past its sell-by date.
- 6 He says you should wash everything you find before eating it.

Monday

- 7 Liz and Dave found the unlocked bin behind a large supermarket.
- 8 They found fruit and vegetables in the bin behind the supermarket.
- 9 They didn't feel embarrassed looking in the bins.
- 10 They had soup and bread and baked apples for dinner.

- e 30 Listen to the second part of Liz's challenge. Answer the questions.

Tuesday

- 1 How did Liz feel on Tuesday morning?
- 2 What did they have for breakfast?
- 3 What did they find in the bins on Tuesday?
- 4 How does she feel about what people had thrown away?
- 5 What did they have for dinner on Tuesday evening?
- 6 Did all the ingredients come from the rubbish?

Wednesday

- 7 What was wrong with the bins in the farmer's market on Wednesday?
- 8 What did they find in them?
- 9 What did Liz learn from trying freeganism?

- f What do you think are the advantages and disadvantages of being a freegan? Can you imagine ever trying it?

2 VOCABULARY rubbish and recycling a Look at three sentences from the listening. Can you remember any of the missing words?

- 1 Ash and Ross walk confidently to the ____, lift the ____, and start looking for food.
- 2 At the bottom is a ____ of eggs.

Is there anything you are going to do differently now?

Other people

What could your local council do to make it easier to recycle where you live?

What do you think restaurants or supermarkets in your town should do with unused food? Do you know if any of them ever do it?

What kind of things do you think have too much packaging? When do you think packaging is really necessary?

Which of the things you've discussed do you think would make the most difference to your environment?

5 READING

- a How long have you had your mobile phone? When do you think you'll get a new one? What will you probably do with your old phone?
- b Read the article about mobile phone recycling. Find two reasons why recycling mobiles is better than throwing them away.

Home Reviews Videos Phones Tablets Cameras Components Computing Car Technology News Deals

Got a new mobile? Think twice before you throw the old one away!

Recycling our old mobile phones is something we often mean to do. But by the time we remember to do it, we decide that they're so old they're worthless, and we throw them away. But are they really?

1 _____ 'Only about 3–4 per cent of the phones we receive can't be repaired,' says Simon Walsh, Sales and Marketing Director for a British phone recycler.

As a phone arrives at a recycling centre, it goes through a rigorous testing process, which starts with a check to ensure that it's not been lost or stolen. 2 _____ Many phones are then passed to specialized repair centres.

Even mobiles that can't be repaired are valuable. 3 _____ Batteries contain nickel which can be used to make stainless steel for saucepans. The plastics in phones can be melted down to be made into traffic cones.

Of the phones that can be reused, about 20% stay in the UK. The rest of them are sent to places in Asia and Africa where they are specially needed because there are few landlines.

But there's more to it than that. It's good to recycle and reuse second-hand mobiles from the UK, but the countries which receive the mobiles also need to recycle them. 4 _____

This is a growing problem because some mobile phone parts contain dangerous chemicals. 5 _____. The phone's electrical circuits contain lead, which can cause brain damage.

It's estimated that there are more than 500 million used mobile phones around the world. If we send all of them to landfills, over 130,000 kilos of lead will be released into the soil. 6 _____

The even greener alternative to recycling seems almost unthinkable. It's to keep your current phone for more than the usual twelve months!

Real interns speak out

For many young graduates, starting out in a new career means taking an unpaid internship, with no guarantee of a permanent job at the end. While internships can provide graduates with useful experience, referees, and skills for their CVs, they also require a lot of hard work. Many interns feel exploited by employers, who treat them as cheap labour. In fact, nearly 40% of internships are unpaid, especially in industries such as fashion, PR, the media, and politics. Legally, most interns in the UK are entitled to the minimum wage. However, few employers realize this. Many interns have to work in bars or restaurants at night to pay for their rent, food, and expenses, while others end up in debt.

- a In your country, do young people sometimes do part-time jobs in the evening or at weekends, or while they're at university? What sort of part-time jobs are common where you live?
- b Read the newspaper article about Saturday jobs. Who is most positive about the job they did?
- c Read the article again. Answer with A–E.

Which person...?

- ___ felt that the job was badly paid
- ___ liked the parts of the job where he / she could rest
- ___ started very early and finished very late
- ___ enjoyed spending time with the other workers
- ___ was very unsuccessful in one of his / her jobs
- ___ learned the importance of enjoying the work that you do
- ___ learned the importance of punctuality
- ___ got practice in something that later became his / her job
- ___ and ___ aren't sure if they learned anything
- ___ stopped getting any weekly money from his / her parents after starting his / her first part time job

The best Saturday job I ever had...

Shelf-stacker, dog-walker, and baby-sitter – most of us would have one of these classic Saturday jobs at the bottom of our CVs, if we were being strictly accurate. For the teenagers of today, however, it is far more difficult to find part-time work.

A Sir Ranulph Fiennes, explorer

When I was 16, I wanted to buy a canoe and needed £85. I washed the buses at Midhurst bus station between 3 a.m. and 7 a.m. during the week. Then I washed the dishes at the Angel Hotel from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. I was paid £11 per week in all, and that's how I got the cash. It is too long ago to know if I actually learnt anything from the experience.

B Russell Kane, comedian

I did two humiliating Saturday jobs. The first was selling vacuum cleaners door to door. I didn't sell a single one. The other job was working with my granddad for a frozen-food delivery service. I doubt that a Saturday job really teaches you anything. Where I come from, it's automatic: at age 11 you get a job. It wasn't, 'Hey man, I'm really learning the value of work.' It was, 'If I want money, I must work for it.' My dad never gave me a penny of pocket money after the age of 11.

C Tony Ross, illustrator and author

In the fifties, when I was a boy, I used to work at the Post Office over Christmas. Many of us did it, and it was fantastic fun. I earned enough to buy an old motor scooter. My favourite part was going in the lorry to collect the mail bags from the station, because you didn't have to walk the streets all day. The other good thing was doing a round with your own house in it, because then you could stop for a cup of tea. I learnt the basics of working for money like arriving on time, and enjoying it no matter what. It was a good introduction because very few people work for fun. I think I'm probably the only one.

D Clive Stafford Smith, lawyer

I worked for a sand and gravel* company when I was 16. It was cold, damp, and so boring that I cried. I've learned various important things from that job. First, I know I'm very lucky to have a job now that I truly love. I also learned that it's crazy to pay bankers millions while paying minimum wage to people at gravel companies. It's terrible work and no one should have to do it. Anyone who says differently should be forced to work at that gravel company for a year.

E Adele Parks, author

When I was 16, I worked in our local supermarket, stacking shelves for two years. In a job like that you make the decision whether this is what you want to do for the rest of your life. I was doing my A-levels, and the other guys and girls were really quite pleased for me, as they were living through my experiences. I am good at talking and telling stories, and I think I learnt it there, because one of the things about stacking shelves or being at the checkout is that you get to pass the time with people. That's what I liked best.

- 5 _____ noun the place where you pay, e.g. in a supermarket
- 6 _____ noun the smallest amount of money a job can pay you according to the law

CAN YOU UNDERSTAND THIS TEXT?

- a Read the article once. Is it positive or negative about recycling the UK?

Recycling facts and figures

UK households produced over 30 million tonnes of waste last year, of which 25% was collected for recycling. This figure is still quite low compared to some other EU countries, some of which recycle over 50% of their waste. There is still a great deal of waste which could be recycled that ends up in landfill sites.

Some interesting facts

- Up to 60% of the rubbish that ends up in the dustbin could be recycled.
- On average, 16% of the money you spend on a product pays for the packaging, which ultimately ends up as rubbish.
- Up to 80% of a vehicle can be recycled.
- Nine out of ten people would recycle more if it were made easier.

Aluminium

- 24 million tonnes of aluminium is produced annually, 51,000 tonnes of which ends up as packaging in the UK.
- £36,000,000 worth of aluminium is thrown away each year.
- Aluminium cans can be recycled and ready to use in just six weeks.

Glass

- Each UK family uses an average of 500 glass bottles and jars annually.
- Glass is 100% recyclable and can be used again and again.
- Glass that is thrown away and ends up in landfills will never decompose.

Paper

- It takes 70% less energy to recycle paper than to make it from raw materials.
- 12.5 million tonnes of paper and cardboard are used annually in the UK.
- The average person in the UK throws away 38 kg of newspapers per year.
- It takes 24 trees to make one ton of newspaper.

Plastic

- 275,000 tonnes of plastic are used each year in the UK – that's about 15 million bottles per day.
- Most families throw away about 40 kg of plastic per year, which could otherwise be recycled.
- The use of plastic in Western Europe is growing by about 4% each year.
- Plastic can take up to 500 years to decompose.

- b Read the article again. Mark the sentences T (true) or F (false).

- 1 The UK recycles more than most other EU countries.
- 2 Most of the rubbish that is thrown away could be recycled.
- 3 More than half of an old car can be recycled.
- 4 Most people think that recycling is easy.
- 5 Aluminium is an easy material to recycle.
- 6 Glass can only be recycled a few times.
- 7 Recycling paper uses less energy than making it.
- 8 The UK uses more plastic than paper and cardboard.
- 9 UK families recycle all their plastic.
- 10 Plastic doesn't last forever in landfill.

Netflix

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Netflix Inc. is an American provider of on-demand internet streaming media, available in North and South America, the UK, and several other European countries. In its simplest form, video is streamed to the user's computer. TV series and films can be paused or restarted at will. According to a 2011 report, Netflix is the biggest source of North American web traffic.

ALL IN ONE SITTING

We have all been there: you settle in to watch one episode of a TV show, and eight hours later you've watched the whole season...

On the day when Netflix released the entire 13-episode first season of its political drama series House of Cards in one go, it reminded viewers on Twitter to #watchresponsibly: 'Don't forget to shower, eat something, get up and walk around!' All through that day, people were tweeting: 'What episode are you on?' Netflix's strategy was to encourage subscribers to 'binge-watch' the show – the TV equivalent of binge-eating.

House of Cards of course is not rubbish; it is a highly praised political drama. Originally a novel by Michael Dobbs, it follows the congressman Francis 'Frank' Underwood (Kevin Spacey), his scary wife, Claire, and young reporter, Zoe Barnes, as they struggle for power and influence in Washington. At 2 a.m., two episodes into the series, I simply couldn't stop. It was going to be a long night.

The show is clearly and cleverly structured for binge-consumption. Each episode is called a 'chapter'. There are no introductory flashbacks, common in traditional series. And at the end of nearly every episode, the cliffhanger makes the temptation to find out what is going to happen unbearable. By 10 a.m. the next day, and minutes away from the end of the final episode, I was searching for a release date for season two.

Initial reviews of Netflix's strategy and the show were mixed. Liz Shannon, a fellow binge-watcher, was sceptical. 'I'm not convinced that substituting the buzz that traditional shows acquire during a whole season for the buzz of binge-watching will be a success.' Laura Hudson was slightly more critical. 'It's not a great show; it's debatably a good one, but more importantly, it was just good enough to make me press "next" every time the episode finished.' That's precisely the point.

What's clear is that with DVDs and on-demand video, consumers have never had more choice in their own media consumption habits. Why pay the very expensive monthly cost for cable service when you're only watching three or four shows on as many channels? And why wait each week or months at a time for your favourite show? And with Netflix another advantage is that there are no commercials.

Netflix knows that it's already succeeded, at least in the US. Breaking Bad, for example, another good show for binge-watching, has been a hit. According to the Wall Street Journal, '73% of members who started streaming season one of Breaking Bad finished all seven episodes. Seasons two and three were longer – thirteen episodes each – but the number of viewers jumped to 81% and 85% respectively.'

As for me, I've heard great things about Friday Night Lights. Netflix, here I come.

Whether it's Downton Abbey or The Big Bang Theory – tell us about your TV binge experiences...

- e Talk to a partner.
- 1 Do you think you would enjoy House of Cards? Why (not)? Have you seen any of the other series mentioned in the article?
 - 2 What was the last TV series you got 'addicted' to?
 - Did you watch it in weekly episodes, on DVD, or online?
 - How many seasons did you watch?
 - How many episodes did you usually watch in one sitting?
 - 3 Have you ever 'binge-watched' any other series? Why (not)? Do you know anyone who has?

6 SPEAKING

a Look at the statements and decide if you agree or disagree with them. Think of reasons why.

- 1 You enjoy a series more if you watch it weekly and don't binge-watch.
- 2 Children under the age of five shouldn't watch any television at all.
- 3 TVs should be banned from bars and restaurants.
- 4 Violent programmes shouldn't be shown before 10 p.m.
- 5 There aren't enough good programmes to fill all of the channels available today.
- 6 Families shouldn't have the TV on while they are having meals.
- 7 The news on TV is not objective, as most channels are controlled by the government.

b Work in small groups. Choose statements from a where you don't all agree. See if you can persuade the other students to agree with you.

I agree with 1. There's more suspense when you have to wait a week for the next episode...

4 READING & SPEAKING

- a Read the introduction to the article. Why do you think people move from the city to the country? Why do some people move back?

From the city to the country

(and sometimes back again)

Not everyone who moves to the country ends up staying there. In fact, for the first time in years, as many people are moving back to cities as are moving out to the country.

- b Work in pairs A and B.
A read about Liz Jones,
B read about Rob Penn.
Answer questions 1–5.

Liz Jones

I was just divorced, and bored with my easy, if super-busy, London life. I wanted to live somewhere quieter, simpler, more beautiful, so I sold my house and bought a big farmhouse with 50 acres of land. I'll look after horses, I thought, I'll get a dog. I'll grow all my own food. It will be idyllic and friends will come to stay and tell me how lucky I am to live here.

But even from the first week, it was a nightmare. When I moved in, the house was cold and absolutely filthy, and the cooker didn't work. I discovered everything in the countryside is more expensive: you have to drive miles to find a shop where everything costs twice as much as in my local supermarket in London. I never fitted in. I think that in the country, if you are a woman, you will never be accepted unless you are a full-time mum. Another thing I hated was the shooting! I just couldn't pass a group of men with guns, shooting rabbits and deer, without getting out of my car and saying: "Do you really have nothing better to do on a Saturday morning?" That didn't make me very popular. I became so lonely, I often used to sit in my car and listen to the kind voice of the satnav lady.

After five years Liz decided to go back to London. 'On my last night in the country, I sat outside underneath millions of stars and I thought to myself: 'I've come to the end of a five-year prison sentence.'

- 1 Why did Liz move to the country?
- 2 What was she dreaming of doing there?
- 3 What problems did she have at the beginning?
- 4 Why does she think people didn't accept her?
- 5 How long did she stay? What did she compare living in the country to?

Glossary

- 1 _____ phrasal verb leaving a car
- 2 _____ phrasal verb started to live in a new home
- 3 _____ phrasal verb was able to live and work well with other people
- 4 _____ unit of land, equivalent to 4050 square metres

Rob Penn

Rob Penn, a writer, left London for some peace and quiet in the Black Mountains in Wales. 'I've been living here in a small farmhouse for eight years now,' says Penn. 'It wasn't easy at first. The fact that I ride a bicycle every day caused suspicion. In the countryside you only use a bike if something is wrong. A local farmer said to me, "I see you on the bike. How long have you lost your driving licence for, then?"'

Over time, however, Penn has managed to fit in with his new neighbours. 'I'm lucky. I live in a place with a strong sense of community. My local pub is an active part of that. We have two village halls as well. Between them, they put on activities or meetings every night of the week – singing workshops, the garden club, zumba, as well as monthly films and occasional quiz nights.

'In the city, you choose your community. It may be through work, your football team, or your kids' school or your colleagues,' says Penn. 'In the country, your neighbours are your only community.'

Penn has no plans to move back to London. 'I stood in a field this week, listening to the first sounds of spring. I love to hear the birds singing in the sunshine. I wouldn't live anywhere else. The rural sights, sounds and, above all, communities beat the city any day.'

- 1 Who is Rob Penn? Where did he move to?
- 2 Why did he move?
- 3 How long has he been living there?
- 4 What problems did he have at first? Did he solve them?
- 5 Why did he decide to stay?

7 READING & LISTENING

- a Are there any radio or TV programmes you know that have been running for a long time in your country? Do you watch them? What do you think of them? Why do you think they've been so successful?
- b (318) Read and listen to an article about The Archers, a BBC programme that is the world's longest-running radio soap opera. Answer the questions.
- 1 What is the programme about?
 - 2 What was its original aim?
 - 3 Who were the original main characters?

A British Institution

Just before 7 o'clock every evening, people all over Britain, from Camilla, Duchess of Cornwall (a major fan, who actually appeared on the show) to students, housewives, and farmers, tune in to BBC Radio 4, and listen to an introductory tune that has been playing every night for more than 60 years. It is the theme tune to The Archers, the longest running radio soap opera in the world, and a British institution. The Archers, which is about life in the fictional village of Ambridge, was conceived by the Ministry of Agriculture as a way of providing information about new farming methods to British farmers and smallholders in order to increase productivity after the Second World War, during the years of food shortages and rationing. It was originally about the lives of three farmers: Dan Archer, who farmed efficiently with little cash, Walter Gabriel, who farmed inefficiently with little cash, and George Fairbrother, a wealthy businessman who farmed for a hobby. The programme was hugely successful – at the height of its popularity it was estimated that 60% of adult Britons were regular listeners, and today its listeners number over a million. The involvement of the Ministry of Agriculture ended in the 1970s, but The Archers still contains many storylines and discussions about farming, and has a separate 'agricultural story editor'.

smallholder /ˈsmɔːlˌhəʊldə/ a person who owns or rents a small piece of land for farming rationing /ˈræʃənɪŋ/ the policy of limiting the food, fuel, etc., that people are allowed to have, when there is not enough for everyone to have as much as they want; it started in the UK in the Second World War in 1940 and ended in 1954.

2 PRONUNCIATION

consonant clusters

Consonant clusters
 Some words have three (or even four) consonant sounds together, and these can be difficult to pronounce. These are common in:

- 1 words beginning with scr, spr or str, e.g. script, spring, struggle
- 2 in the middle of a word, e.g. sunglasses, describe
- 3 when you add an s to a word ending in two consonant sounds, e.g. pounds

- a (3:30) Listen and repeat the groups of words.

- 1 screw screwdriver scream screen string stress stream straight
- 2 paintbrush toothbrush electrician handle
- 3 needles shelves lamps bulbs

- b Practise saying the sentences.
 - 1 I need some screws and a screwdriver.
 - 2 Go straight down the next street.
 - 3 Two electric toothbrushes, please.
 - 4 That's strange – the string's not very strong.
 - 5 Put some new bulbs in the lamps.

3 LISTENING & SPEAKING

- a Have you ever been to IKEA or similar stores that sell self-assembly (or flat-pack) furniture? Did you buy anything there? What?
- b Read the information about IKEA. What information does the author give...?
- 1 to show that IKEA is very popular outside Sweden
 - 2 to show that there are also problems with IKEA

It looks so easy at first...

Started in 1943, the Swedish furniture store IKEA has transformed homes around the globe with its cheap, modern Scandinavian style. It has also changed the way we live: one in ten Europeans now sleeps in an IKEA bed, and its catalogue is in more homes than any other publication, including the Bible, the Yellow Pages, and the complete works of Shakespeare.

But along with the pleasure of inexpensive furniture is the pain. The frustrating one-way system used to navigate the stores, for example, or some of the strange names given to the products (Snille chair, Odda chest of drawers, etc.). Most of all, there's the problem of getting the furniture home and trying to put it together. We asked three IKEA shoppers to share their experiences...

- c (3.31) Listen to three people describe an experience with IKEA furniture. What did they buy? Who was the least successful at assembling it?
- d Listen again. Which speaker...?
- A didn't have all the parts he / she needed
- B doesn't blame IKEA for the experience
- C had problems understanding what to do
- D had to assemble the furniture twice
- E hadn't expected to have a problem
- F learned a lesson from the experience

- e (3.32) Listen to some extracts from the listening, and write the missing words. What do you think they mean?
- 1 After hours and hours, and a lot of _____, I finally managed to put it together.
 - 2 So I had to _____ it to _____, move all the bits into the bedroom...
 - 3 I'm quite _____, quite practical, so I thought no problem...
 - 4 I realized I'd put the door handle on the _____ round.
 - 5 It's _____, but at least it has four legs!
- f Talk to a partner. Choose two things that you (or someone you know) have done and tell your partner about it. Use the questions in the box to help you.

Have you ever...?

assembled flat-pack furniture painted a wall or a room set up a home cinema system

4 READING & SPEAKING

- a You're going to read about some unusual uses for everyday things. Before you read, with a partner, try to complete sentences 1–5.

rice a bowl a potato a banana mayonnaise

- 1 You can use _____ to take out a broken light bulb.
- 2 You can use _____ to make a speaker for your mobile.
- 3 You can use _____ to remove water marks from wood.
- 4 You can use _____ to repair a phone that has got wet.
- 5 You can use _____ to fix a scratched DVD.

- b Read the article once, and check your answers.

- c Look at the highlighted verbs and try to guess their meaning. Then match them with the definitions below.

- 1 _____ to move a cloth or your hand backwards and forwards on something while pressing hard
- 2 _____ to clean or dry something with a cloth or towel, e.g. you - the windows of your car after you have washed them
- 3 _____ to connect an electronic device to another device, or to the electricity supply
- 4 _____ to let something fall
- 5 _____ marked on the surface by something sharp
- 6 _____ to make something shine, e.g. your shoes, a mirror
- 7 _____ to take out something
- 8 _____ to turn something in a particular direction, e.g. the lid of a jar
- 9 _____ to make something louder

- d Read the article again. Then with a partner, try to remember exactly what to do for each of the problems in a.

- e Are there any tips you think you might try?

Brilliant uses for everyday things

It's been a bad day. First you dropped your mobile in the pool and now the DVD you wanted to watch is scratched. But don't worry, you needn't buy new ones. You can fix them with everyday things you already have at home! Read on for some good DIY tips from the internet.

Mobile phones make our lives easier, but it's so easy to lose them, or drop them, worst of all, into water. If that happens to you, you may think the phone is ruined. In fact, you don't have to throw it away. Reader's Digest says all you have to do is to take the battery out and put the phone in a bowl of rice overnight. You must use uncooked rice, and it will absorb all of the water. Next morning put the battery back, and the phone will work again.

Another problem with mobile phones is that you probably have a lot of great music on yours, but if you're with a group of friends and you all want to listen, you need to plug it into a speaker, and you may not have one at hand. Or do you? Next time, try this easy trick from Real Simple magazine. Put the phone into a bowl and press 'play'. The bowl will amplify the sound from your mobile's speakers. Now everyone can hear the music! A jar or glass will also work if you don't have a bowl.

In addition to rice, a potato can also make a great DIY tool. Here's an example. The other day I was trying to kill a fly that was buzzing around a ceiling light and the worst happened: I missed the fly but broke the light bulb. Now it can be very difficult to remove a broken bulb, and of course, you mustn't ever do it with bare hands. Luckily, there's another way. According to the Martha Stewart website, simply cut a potato in half, press the potato into the remains of the bulb, then twist and remove it. Remember you must switch off the light first.

Another useful DIY tool is a banana. Check out this idea from Apartment Therapy. If you have a scratched DVD that won't play, rub the inside of a banana skin over the scratch. Then polish the DVD with a soft cloth and – voilà! – problem solved. This trick works because the waxy substance in the banana skin fills in the scratch. For deep scratches, you should rub some toothpaste in first.

Even mayonnaise has surprising uses. Everyone knows that you shouldn't put a wet glass on a wooden table, because it will probably leave an ugly mark on the wood. But sometimes you forget. Don't worry, again according to Apartment Therapy, just rub some mayonnaise into the mark and leave it for 15 minutes or longer. Wipe clean, and the mark will be gone. For best results, you should do this as soon as possible after the mark is made.

- a What would you suggest in these situations? Compare your ideas with a partner.

What shall I do?

you spill red wine on your white trousers

you think your computer might have a virus

one of the screws in your glasses keeps coming out you have a biro mark on your jeans

the heel breaks on one of your shoes there's a power cut, and you have a freezer full of food you can't get good reception on your phone the zip on your suitcase breaks at the airport your car is nearly out of petrol and the nearest petrol station is 20 km away one of your shoelaces breaks while you're out

Responding to other people's suggestions

That's a brilliant idea!
 Yes, that really works.
 Are you sure that would work?
 I suppose that might work.
 That sounds dangerous to me.
 I wouldn't want to try that.

- b Choose the best solution you discussed in a and write a short paragraph about it for a competition on the internet. Describe the problem and give instructions for solving it.

6B At your service

1 READING

- a What really annoys you about customer service when you go shopping? With a partner, write down three things you consider to be bad customer service.
- b Read an article about bad customer service. Write the correct headings in the article. There is one you don't need to use.

- A Too few shop assistants
 B Inappropriate offers
 C It's a shop, not a social club
 D Too much pressure to buy
 E Too much stock
 F Keeping too few checkouts open
 G Silent cashiers
 H Terrible changing rooms

The 7 worst customer service crimes

Mary Portas – broadcaster, writer, and shopping expert – names some of the most irritating aspects of shopping...

- Keeping too few¹ checkouts open
 So many stores are guilty of this. The worst are the supermarkets. Then they ring the bell to get a new² cashier from out the back, and leave their finger on the bell, making a really irritating noise.
- Cashiers at supermarket checkouts now don't even say the final price – you're supposed to see it on the³ till. They've lost basic communication skills. Even worse is when they dump the⁴ receipt and the change into your hand in one lump. Horrible.
- At the newsagent's, you go to the⁵ counter to buy a newspaper and they offer to sell you a huge chocolate bar for £1, as well. A massive bar of chocolate at 7.30 in the morning? How about just smiling and saying good morning?
- There's a long queue to try things on, but they say, 'You can only take in four items'. You should be able to take a big armful in. And there's nowhere to hang your clothes, so you have to put them on the floor. Except the floors are filthy.
- Again, many fashion stores are guilty of this. The⁶ rails are so full of clothes that you can't even see the sizes. You have to pull the⁷ hangers apart to look in, then they fall onto the floor.
- I hate it when assistants stand next to the till gossiping to each other. It's all too common in department stores, hairdressers, and coffee shops. All you want to do is pay, but it's as if you're invisible.
- This is why I hate beauty counters. You walk through the ground floor of many department stores and a woman runs after you and sprays you with perfume, asking, 'Could I just interest you in...?' Her face is usually orange, with eyebrows drawn on with a pencil. It says, 'You too could look like me'. You can't be serious! Why would I want to look like you? No, thanks!

MICHEL ROUX'S SERVICE

FROM SCHOOL DROPOUTS TO TOP WAITERS

We've seen plenty of cookery competitions where amateur chefs compete hoping to become professionals, but BBC2's Service, a programme from chef Michel Roux, one of the judges on BBC's Masterchef, focuses on another side of restaurants. Over eight episodes, eight young people with no restaurant experience at all are taught the skills to become top waiters and waitresses. Rather than having competitors voted off each week, after the eight weeks two winners are chosen to receive six-month scholarships with the Academy of Food & Wine Service.

'Great service is as important as great food,' says Roux, who owns several well-known restaurants, including Le Gavroche, a two-Michelin star restaurant in London. 'If the food at one of my restaurants was OK, but the service was brilliant, the customers would still come back. But I'd never see them again if the service was rubbish, even though the food was brilliant.'

'There is a great career to be had in restaurant service,' says Roux. 'Head waiters can earn as much as a top chef. And, like chefs, their skills can take them all over the world.'

Roux's trainees include Brooke Arnold, 18, who has previously worked for McDonald's, Nikkita Palphreyman, 19, a single mother, and Niki Bedson, 22, an unemployed history graduate. 24-year-old James Marvin used to work in sales, and Danielle Menagh, 19, was a hairdresser. 'Before the show I'd never drunk wine,' she says.

The most unlikely trainee is 21-year-old Ashley Flay. 'I left school at 14,' he says. 'Before the show, I'd never eaten in a place which had table service.'

c 343)) Listen to a breakfast radio show where a critic talks about the series. Mark the sentences T (true) or F (false).

- 1 Ryan only watched the final episode.
- 2 In the first episode the trainees weren't very successful working at a pizza restaurant.
- 3 Ashley and Nikkita had a fight.
- 4 Michel Roux and his colleagues made the trainees feel more confident.
- 5 Brooke had a disaster when she cooked crêpes Suzette.
- 6 In the final episode the trainees served at a restaurant in Paris.
- 7 Michel Roux was very nervous for them beforehand.
- 8 Only Danielle and Ashley won scholarships.
- 9 The show was a success both for the trainees themselves and as a programme.

d Listen again and correct the F sentences.

e Discuss the questions with a partner.

CAN YOU UNDERSTAND THIS TEXT?

- a Read the article once. Is tipping in the UK similar to tipping in your country?

Tipping in the UK

Tipping is not expected in the UK in the way it is in the United States or Canada. All staff in the UK must be paid at least the National Minimum Wage, whether they receive tips or not. Therefore, unlike in much of North America, the need for tipping is much less.

Cafés and coffee shops

In a café, you may receive waiter / waitress service to bring your tea, coffee, sandwiches, or whatever you have ordered to the table. In these establishments tipping is not usual. If you feel the service has been especially pleasant you can leave a pound (or the change) in appreciation.

In coffee shops such as Starbucks, there may be a tip jar on the counter, but very few customers leave tips, and you certainly don't have to. In self-service cafés where you collect your food and put it on a tray (as found in tourist attractions, for example) you don't tip either.

Restaurants and pubs

In pubs, where you usually choose and pay for your order at the bar, but the food is brought to your table, tipping is uncommon. You can leave a pound or two if you wish.

In restaurants where you place your order with a waiter / waitress and receive your food and your bill at your table, you should tip around 10% of the bill. This varies from place to place – in more expensive restaurants where you receive personal service, a tip would always be expected (it would be considered rude not to leave one unless there was a problem with the service), whereas in the most casual of restaurants tipping is not universal. If you have been very unhappy with the service, you could consider not leaving a tip.

In some restaurants, a service charge may automatically be added to the bill, typically 10% or 12.5%, sometimes only for larger groups. This should be noted on the menu. But if you're not happy with the service, you can ask for it to be removed, and explain why you're unhappy.

If a service charge is added, or the menu says 'service included', you needn't add any further tip. In some cases if you pay by credit card the machine may ask if you want to add a tip. Check your bill carefully to see if a service charge has been added before paying, and if it has, be sure not to add any more. In some cases a restaurant may print 'service not included' on the menu or the bill. This is a request for a tip!

- b Read the article again and answer the questions.

- 1 Is tipping more common in the UK or in the US?
 - 2 When might you leave a tip in a café?
 - 3 Do you need to leave a tip in all types of restaurant in the UK?
 - 4 When might you decide not to leave a tip in an expensive restaurant?
 - 5 Do all restaurants add a service charge? Do you have to pay it?
 - 6 Why should you be careful if you pay by credit card in a restaurant?
- c Choose five new words or phrases from the text. Check their meaning and pronunciation and try to learn them.

When luck comes to town

What good deed would you do with a gift of £1,000? Sonia Zhuravlyova meets the mystery man making strangers' dreams come true.

We all know the old saying 'money can't buy happiness', but one man disagrees. He thinks he has come up with a way to make his money give him pleasure – by giving it to strangers. 'I _____,' says Mr Lucky, the mystery millionaire behind Wearelucky, a project that has seen nearly 100 people receive £1,000 each in cash. But there is a catch. You must promise to do something 'good' with it.

Mr Lucky wishes to remain anonymous but I can reveal that he is a Londoner, and is in his forties. The name Wearelucky came to him when he was thinking about his own good fortune – he took a job abroad with an insurance company and earned so much that he could afford to retire in 2011 aged 37. _____, whether to give it to a charity in a developing country, or to an individual in the UK. So he decided to get other people to decide for him. Wearelucky was born.

So far, the lucky people have included web designers, nurses, taxi drivers, bar owners, and photographers – anyone qualifies. _____, who have responded positively to his idea for the project. If he likes you and your idea for the money, then you get an invitation. He also sometimes gives an invitation to someone he trusts, and asks them to choose someone to give it to. Since 2011, 92 people have qualified. 'I am constantly looking out for "lucky" people,' he explains. The invitation comes in a square black envelope and asks the person to get in touch within 48 hours, explaining in detail the good deed they will do with the money. _____, and Mr Lucky, who is an amateur photographer, takes their photo.

The project's definition of the 'good' deed is quite open. During a recent walk in London, Mr Lucky met Lucy, who runs a small bookshop on Charing Cross Road. _____. She decided to pass on the money by giving a bonus to a colleague, which the bookshop couldn't previously afford to do, and by investing the rest in microfinancing. Jane, a bar owner from St-Fort-sur-Gironde in France, is spending the money on promoting cultural events at her bar for the benefit of her community, and buying late Christmas presents, which she couldn't afford at the time, for her four granddaughters. _____. Rufus, an 81-year-old football coach in Kerala, India, spent the £1,000 on training – and often feeding – local children. Mr Lucky says, 'I'm enjoying giving the money to someone and they're enjoying the process of giving the money to someone else, so there is this chain reaction of positive feeling.'

Recently Mr Lucky gave an invitation to Paul 'Chilli' Churchill, a London taxi driver, and asked him to give it to someone he likes. Just think, the next time you get into a cab, it could be your lucky day!

World of Warcraft

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

World of Warcraft (or WoW) is a multiplayer online role-playing game set in the virtual reality fantasy Warcraft universe, where players control their avatar to fight monsters or other players. Gold coins are used to repair armour or buy items (weapons, food, potions, etc.), but to get these coins you have to complete quests which often take a very long time. Some items like mounts are very expensive, so players who want one for their avatar need a lot of gold.

- c Read the article once. Which of these does the article mention?
- | | |
|--|--|
| 1 what a 'gold farmer' is | 5 how much 'gold' costs |
| 2 the pros and cons of being a gold farmer | 6 why people pay for virtual gold |
| 3 other jobs in the gold-farming industry | 7 why people play World of Warcraft |
| 4 how to play World of Warcraft | 8 other online games |

Being paid to play games all day long sounds like a dream job – but for thousands of ‘gold farmers’, the virtual reality is hard work.

Li Hua makes a living playing computer games. Working from a cramped office, he kills dragons and robs them of virtual gold in ten-hour shifts. Next to him, rows of other young workers do the same. ‘It is just like working in a factory, the only difference is that this is the virtual world,’ says Li. ‘The working conditions are hard. We don’t get weekends off and I only have one day free a month. But compared to other jobs it is good. I have no other skills and I enjoy playing sometimes.’

Li is just one of more than 100 workers employed by WoW7gold, an internet-based company that makes more than £1m a year selling in-game advantages to World of Warcraft players. Apart from gold, customers may ask for their avatar’s skill level to be increased, or for a virtual magic sword.

For thousands of workers such as Li, ‘gold farming’ is a way of life. They can expect to earn between £80–£120 a month which, given the long hours and night shifts, can amount to as little as 30p an hour. After completing his shift, Li is given a basic meal of rice, meat and vegetables, and falls into a bed in a room that he shares with eight other gold farmers. His wages may be low, but food and accommodation are included.

WELCOME TO THE NEW GOLD MINES

The gold farming industry may be about playing games, but these companies take their work seriously. At WoW7gold, there are different departments, including production, sales, advertising, and research. While young, largely unskilled workers such as Li spend their days in the virtual field, highly skilled graduates, mainly female, receive better salaries working as customer service operators.

Eva Yuan is one such operator. A 26-year-old graduate who speaks three languages, she has been working for WoW7gold for more than a year. ‘Most of our customers are from America, but they are people of all ages and careers,’ she says. ‘The biggest transaction I have seen was one person who bought 100,000 gold pieces, which costs £2,000 to £3,000.’

Yuan thinks her job is worthwhile. ‘Everything that appeals to some people in the world needs some people to produce it. We are allowing people to buy what they want, and we care about that.’

Thousands of miles away, I ask Jamie, a 24-year-old gamer from the UK, what makes him spend his money on these sites. ‘The reason people buy gold is the same reason they pay people to wash their car – they would rather spend money on it than do it themselves,’ he says. ‘You could spend time getting gold, say 20 real-life hours. Or you could go to work for two hours and pay someone else for the gold. If I’m playing, I want to play, not do boring tasks.’

Most multiplayer game operators do not allow players to buy gold from gold farmers. WoW7gold is no longer active, though similar services can be found online.

d Read the article again and choose a, b or c.

- The advantage of his job for Li Hua is that _____.
 - he enjoys doing it, and it’s quite well paid
 - it’s sometimes fun, and it’s better than other jobs
 - he gets his meals free and his own room
- WoW7gold is a company that _____.
 - pays its employees in virtual money
 - charges its customers virtual money for their services
 - sells its customers virtual money and services

- Eva Yuan thinks that _____.
 - she is overqualified for the job that she is doing
 - if people want to buy virtual gold there is no reason why companies shouldn’t sell it
 - people spend a ridiculous amount of real money on virtual gold
- Jamie prefers to buy his virtual gold because _____.
 - he doesn’t enjoy the process of getting the virtual gold
 - he think the gold farming industry needs to be encouraged
 - his job doesn’t give him enough free time to be able to get virtual gold e From what the article says, do you think people like Jamie are cheating at the game? Why (not)? Would you pay real money for a virtual object?

 - 2 Do you ever have saunas? How long do you stay in the sauna? Do you enjoy it?
 - 3 Have you ever had a treatment that involves very cold water or temperature? What was it like?
 - 4 What are the hottest / coldest places you've ever been in? What were you doing there? How did you feel?
 - 5 Do you find it easier to put up with extreme heat or extreme cold?

Sauna or oven? Sweating next to cooking eggs

In New York City, there are some very hot saunas. But none of them come close to the heat you can find inside the Bul Hanzung Mok room at King Spa Korean Sauna in nearby New Jersey.

A Korean tradition for over 500 years, this brick room gets its heat from wood burned in a fire each morning. The brick holds so much heat that spa workers put cartons of eggs inside the room to cook (they're later sold in the spa restaurant). The spa says the heat helps remove impurities from the body and is also good for aches and pains.

Inside the sauna, I sit on a mat to stop my legs from burning. What can I say? Nothing. It's too hot to talk. Opposite me one Korean woman (or is it a man?) is wrapped in a heavy blanket and has a handkerchief around her face for protection.

Sitting on the floor, slowly breathing the hot and humid air, I see a thermometer near where the eggs are cooked. As I stand up to look at it, I feel the heat on my scalp and nose. I look to see how hot it is but I can hardly see because so much sweat is dripping into my eyes. Finally, I can see the temperature: 220 degrees – an ordinary sauna is only 70–100 degrees! Like most people, I manage to stay inside for only a few minutes, but others last longer. But I definitely feel lighter, as if I've lost a few kilos, and more relaxed. Maybe I'll have to go back.

- 5 _____ noun members of an army
- 6 _____ noun a long gun you hold against your shoulder to shoot with d (4 36)) Listen and check. Then listen again and repeat the words.

e Tell a partner about one of the following places.

- a historical site you've visited
- a place that you enjoyed as a child, but you found disappointing when you returned as an adult
- a place you know that has been spoiled by tourism

BILL BRYSON

On another continent, 4000 miles away, I became quietly seized with that nostalgia that overcomes you when you have reached the middle of your life. I wanted to go back to the magic places of my youth – to Mackinac Island, the Rocky mountains, Gettysburg – and see if they were as good as I remembered them...

I drove to Gettysburg, where the decisive battle of the American Civil War was fought over three days in July 1863. There were over 50,000 casualties. I parked at the visitors' centre and went inside. It contained a small, museum with glass cases containing bullets, brass buttons, belt buckles and that sort of thing. [...] There was little to give you any sense of the battle itself.

One interesting thing was a case devoted to the Gettysburg Address, where I learned that Lincoln was invited to speak only as an afterthought and that everyone was taken aback when he accepted. It was only ten sentences long and took just two minutes to deliver. I was further informed that he gave the address many months after the battle. I had always imagined him making it more or less immediately afterwards, while there were still bodies lying around. [...] The truth, as so often in this life, was disappointing.

I went outside and had a look at the battlefield, which sprawls over 3,500 acres of mostly flat countryside, fringed by the town of Gettysburg with its gas stations and its motels. The battlefield had the great deficiency common to all historic battlefields. There was nothing much to distinguish this stretch of empty fields from that one. You had to take their word for it that a great battle was fought there. There were a lot of cannons scattered about, I'll give them that. [...] Through my dad's old binoculars I could clearly see how troops had advanced from the direction of the town, a mile or so to the north, sweeping across the Burger King parking lot, skirting the [...] Tastee Delite Drive-in and re-grouping just outside the Wax Museum and Gift Shop. It's all very sad. Ten thousand soldiers fell there in an hour, two out of every three Confederate soldiers didn't make it back to base. It's a pity, that so much of the town of Gettysburg has been spoiled with tourist tat and that it is so visible from the battlefield.

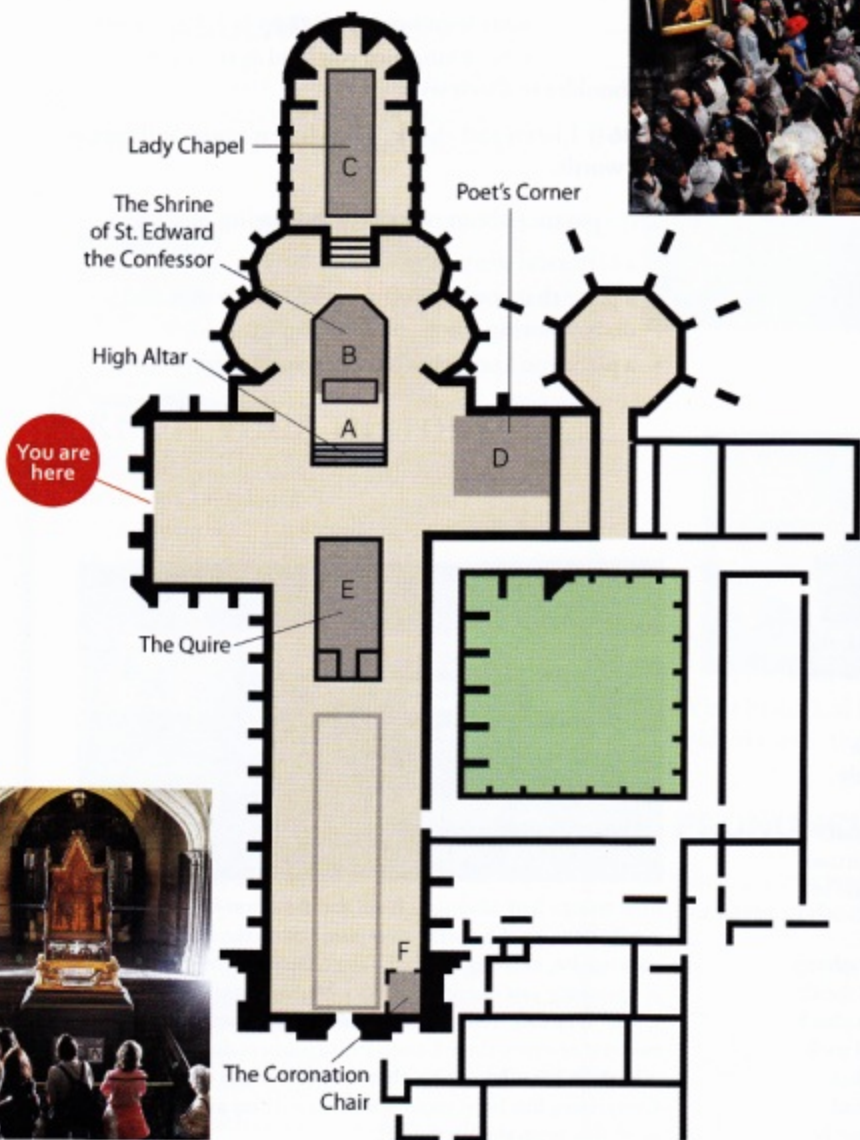

When I was little, my dad bought me a Union cap and a toy rifle and let me loose on the battlefield. I was in heaven. I dashed about the whole day crouching behind trees, blowing up parties of overweight tourists with cameras around their necks. [...] Now, however, I found it difficult to summon any real excitement for the place.

Event cinema: opera in cinemas takes off

Cinemas are proving to be a goldmine for some of the UK's finest opera and ballet companies. Hollywood films are facing competition from live performances being shown in cinemas around the country, in a development called 'event cinema'.

In recent weeks tens of thousands of Britons have gone to the cinema to watch live screenings of ballet or opera. La Bohème has beaten Gangster Squad at the box office, and The Nutcracker came ahead of the latest Bond film when it was shown last month.

Over the past three years the number of cinemas showing ballet and opera performances has risen from fewer than 100 to around 250. More than 120 different events were shown at cinemas last year, a 400% increase from five years ago. And it is not just opera and ballet. Plays are also enjoying big audiences, with 20,000 tickets already sold for a cinema screening of a performance of Alan Bennett's People at the National Theatre next month.

Advances in digital technology have allowed opera and ballet companies to broadcast their events live, and cinemas have realised that the growing demand for an alternative to blockbuster films can help increase their own profits, especially when they can charge more – at around £15 on average – than for a movie.

For one company, Picturehouse Cinemas, event cinema already represents more than ten per cent of its ticket sales. And experts predict that very soon more than two million Britons a year will go to the cinema to see live performances or events – double the number that do so already. By the end of this decade at least one in 20 cinema tickets will be for something other than a movie, according to David Hancock, head of film and cinema at IHS Screen Digest. There is great demand – especially for cultural products,' he said, though sport and pop concerts have also made an appearance.

Melissa Keeping, who chairs the recently established Event Cinema Association, said: 'Opera and ballet are expensive and are generally located in large cities, so even if tickets are affordable the journey makes it difficult for a lot of people to go. But bring the performance live to your local cinema, in real time, at a fraction of the cost – what's not to like?'

- b Read the article again. Mark the sentences T (true) or F (false).
- 1 Cinemas don't make much money from showing opera and ballet performances.
 - 2 Operas and ballets shown in cinemas are never as popular as films.
 - 3 'Event cinema' was more popular five years ago.
 - 4 'Event cinema' wouldn't be possible without digital technology.
 - 5 Opera tickets are more expensive than cinema tickets.
 - 6 Picturehouse Cinemas show more operas and ballets than most cinemas.
 - 7 Some people go to the cinema to watch live sport.
 - 8 Only cinemas in big cities show opera and ballet.

 - 8 Who did she think was her mother? How were the two women different?
 - 9 What did she ask Yasir not to let her do when she ran the marathon?
- d Is there anyone you know who you think should record a story for StoryCorps? Why?

ABOUT STORYCORPS

StoryCorps is an oral history project which provides people of all backgrounds with the opportunity to record, share, and preserve the stories of their lives. Since 2003, we have collected more than 45,000 interviews with nearly 90,000 participants.

RECORD YOUR STORY

Think of a person whose stories you would like to hear, like a grandparent, parent, or friend. Then bring your friend or loved one to the StoryCorps facility and record your story together. At the end, you'll receive a free CD of your story, and a second copy will be kept at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.

STORIES

Gweneviere Mann talks to her boyfriend, Yasir Salem, about losing her short-term memory after suffering a stroke. They visited StoryCorps in New York City.

The woman who remembers everything

Can you remember exactly what you did, who you saw, and what you said, on any day, at any time 10, 20 or even 30 years ago? Jill Price can. But is it a gift or a curse?

Jill Price asks me my date of birth and I tell her: January 24, 1968. 'Okay – 1986 you were 18. I could tell you on January 24, 1986, I was working in an ice cream shop, it was a Friday. I had turned 20. We were four days away from the Challenger explosion. I hated my job and Saturday night I went out with Tim and Candace.' She could probably tell me what she ate, what they ordered, and what time she got home.

We have met for dinner at a restaurant in Beverly Hills. 'As I sit here with you, it's 6.30 on Wednesday night,' she says. 'Today would have been the 22nd wedding anniversary of Prince Andrew and Fergie. That was also on a Wednesday. It was a friend's birthday and he got some balloons that he didn't want so he gave them to me. And then I went to see a friend of mine who worked at the Hard Rock Cafe.'

Jill Price doesn't try to remember these things; she simply isn't able to forget them. She was born in New Jersey on December 30, 1965. When she was eight, she thinks her brain 'snapped' due to the move the family made from New Jersey to California, and she began to remember in great detail. By the time she was 12, she realized she could remember every single day of the previous year. Since 1980, her memory has been near perfect. Any date she is given from that year onward she can instantly recall.

There is a downside to this: painful and unpleasant memories are as vivid as if they had just occurred. Awkward moments from school, battles with her weight, or hurtful comments from her childhood never fade in her memory. 'I can't forget,' she says. Crying helps her to cope with the unhappiness that her memory can cause. 'I cry all the time. Up to 10 times a day. I cry in the shower every morning.'

Doctors have been studying Jill since 2000. At first, they didn't know how to classify her, and have only recently given a name to her condition – superior autobiographical memory. They have only found three other people in the world who share the condition.

No one else in Jill's family has a memory like hers. Her brother, Michael, is happy not to remember everything. Jill has recently published her memoirs, The Woman Who Can't Forget, but Michael hasn't read it yet because there might be things in it he doesn't want to know. When I asked him what he would do if he was the one who had this memory, he answered, 'I would be making a fortune counting cards in Vegas.'

William Somerset Maugham (1874–1965)

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

William Somerset Maugham

('sɑːməsɛt 'mɔːm)

was a well-known English novelist and short story writer whose stories often took place in China, Singapore, Burma (now Myanmar), Malaysia, and other East Asian countries. Maugham wrote at a time when many of these places were colonies of Great Britain. He was famous for writing stories about real people who he met when he was travelling, and many of these people were very upset to recognize themselves in his books.

Mabel

- 1 George was working in Burma for the British colonial government. He and Mabel became engaged when he was back in England. When he returned to Burma, it was arranged that she would join him there in six months. But one difficulty came up after another. Mabel's father died, the war came, then George was sent to a district which was unsuitable for a white woman. In the end it was seven years before she was able to start. He made all the arrangements for the marriage, which was going to take place on the day of her arrival, and went down to Rangoon to meet her. Then, suddenly, without warning, his nerve failed him. He had not seen Mabel for seven years. He had forgotten what she was like. She was a total stranger. He felt a terrible feeling in his stomach. He couldn't go through with it. He must tell Mabel that he was very sorry, but he couldn't, he really couldn't marry her. But how could a man tell a girl a thing like that when she had been engaged to him for seven years and had come six thousand miles to marry him? He didn't have the nerve for that either. There was a boat just about to sail for Singapore; he wrote a letter to Mabel, and without any luggage, just in the clothes he was wearing, he boarded the boat. The letter Mabel received said:

*Dearest Mabel,
I have been suddenly called away on business and do not know when I will be back. I think it would be much wiser if you returned to England. My plans are very uncertain.
Your loving George.*

I nearly caused a wedding disaster!

Last weekend was my wife's sister's wedding in a little town in southern Egypt, and I nearly ruined it. I flew in from the UK two days before, and my one job was to bring the ¹ _____, which the ² _____ had had specially made by a well-known designer in London.

Well, my flight to Cairo was delayed so when I landed, I was in a hurry. I quickly picked up my suitcase and caught the overnight train heading south. As soon as I got there I went to my hotel, opened my suitcase, and to my horror realized that it wasn't mine. My suitcase – with the dress inside – was presumably still at the airport in Cairo, or even worse, in the hands of a stranger. The ³ _____ was at 11 o'clock the following morning!

I immediately went to the station and took the first train back to Cairo and amazingly found the suitcase still at the airport. After another overnight train, I was back just in time for the wedding. I hadn't slept much at all, but I had the dress. The bride looked great and the ⁴ _____, which was at a hotel, was beautifully organized. Who's negative about American culture? You'd be surprised...

In a recent survey The Wall Street Journal asked more than 18,000 people in 18 countries (16 European nations, plus the U.S. and Russia) to identify the best and worst parts of US cultural influence in the world.

What Europeans think

Among Europeans, 32% said US influence was negative, while 26% gave a positive response. 40% said American films and television programmes were the best contribution, making this the most popular category overall. All of the European countries said American food was the worst contribution. 65% of French people gave this answer, the highest in the group.

What Americans think

Surprisingly, many Americans view their own country more negatively than Europeans do. 46% of Americans said the US has a negative influence in the world, while only 33% described it as positive. Americans named a number of different things as their country's best contribution to world culture, including the food at 11%. When asked to identify America's worst contribution, 32% of Americans pointed to film and television, much higher than in any other country.

4 LISTENING & SPEAKING

- a (5:29) Listen to three Americans talking about what they think are their country's best and worst contribution. Fill in as much of the chart as you can.

6 Things Americans Do That Drive Brits Crazy

By Ruth Margolis

American people are some of the friendliest you'll ever meet. But occasionally they do things that we find a bit... eccentric?

1 Saying 'I love your accent!'

Before I moved to the USA, I never imagined that my London accent made me sound intelligent. At first the compliments were nice, but then a New York mum asked me to teach her two-year-old how to talk like me. A bit too much, I thought.

In America, people in shops say things like 'Ma'am, you have been an awesome customer today' just because I bought some toilet paper. I do not want that.

American waiters love to please, but sometimes they're too helpful. Overenthusiastic waiters take away your plate the second it's empty, even if no one else at the table has finished.

4 Insisting that turkey is tasty

There's a good reason why Brits only eat this bird at Christmas. Turkey meat is dry and tasteless. But Americans put it in everything – burgers, meatballs, lasagna – everything!

We get it, you're proud to be an American. We Brits like our country too, but to your average Brit, hanging a giant flag from your house is a little bit creepy.

Having to remove 'u's from words like 'colour' and change 're' to 'er' in words like 'theatre' is a headache. And Americans, please note: saying 'erb' instead of 'herb' and pronouncing 'fillet' as 'fillay' (without the 't') is not clever or sophisticated. You are not French.

6 Things Brits Do That Drive Americans Crazy

By Maria Roth

We Americans love Brits. They're so charming and smart! But there are some things about them that we don't quite understand.

- 1 _____
When strangers in stores and people on the street make eye contact, nod, or say 'Hi!' it's OK to smile and say hello back. We won't bite!
- 2 Overcooking vegetables
The authentic British way to prepare vegetables is to put them in boiling water for a fortnight. We Americans think this is weird and unpleasant.
- 3 _____
Oh, we fat Americans with our big cars and flags! Too many Brits are convinced that this inaccurate picture of us is true, and we are not amused.
- 4 _____
It seems that some Brits would rather not leave a 15 to 20 per cent tip for their waitress. They may not realize that waiters in the U.S. are paid very low wages and depend on tips to survive.
- 5 _____
We get it, in British English 'trousers' means pants and 'pants' are really underwear. And the letter z is 'zee' to Americans, but 'zed' to Brits. We Americans just have a different way of speaking and writing. It doesn't mean we're stupid, and I promise we're not trying to offend you.
- 6 Not wanting to 'share'
Brits are famous for being reserved – they never complain or discuss their problems. But that's not the way we do things here. We're more open with our friends, and even with strangers, and when people don't share we find it strange.

Exams in the UK

Eleven-plus exam: An exam taken in some parts of the UK at the end of primary school (age 11). The results used to decide what sort of secondary school a child could attend.

GCSEs: Exams in different subjects taken at secondary school (approximately age 16). Before 1988, students did similar exams called O-levels.

A-levels: Final school exams (approximately age 18). You need good results in A-levels to attend university.

4 READING

- a Is there a university entrance exam in your country? How difficult is it considered?
- b Read the article about the gaokao ('gao kau'), China's national university entrance exam. How does it compare with university entrance exams in your country?

高考

News | Sport | Comment | Culture | Business | Money | Life & style | Travel | Environment | Tech | TV | Video

A nation prepares for the dreaded gaokao

SHANGHAI, 5 June – Tomorrow cities throughout China ¹ will close roads near schools, prohibit the hooting of car horns, and even change some aeroplane flight paths, so that nine million students can concentrate on the gaokao, the three-day-long national university entrance exam.

University places are scarce in China, and most students ² are not going to have a chance if they do not do well on the gaokao, a name which means 'high exam' in Mandarin Chinese. The stakes are very high indeed: a place in a top university will almost always lead to a high-paid job after graduation. For millions of Chinese, the exam is an important chance to improve their lives, and because most Chinese families ³ have only one child, the pressure on candidates is intense.

We spoke to students who ⁴ hadn't been out with their friends for many months, and who ⁵ were studying all the time that they weren't sleeping. And while some cram, others cheat. Each year, candidates ⁶ are caught with high-tech devices such as wireless earphones, as well as pens and watches with tiny scanners. James Bond would be proud.

Teachers' lives are difficult, too. One gaokao tutor ⁷ explained her schedule: morning exercises start at 6:10 a.m.; evening classes end at 10 p.m.; students get only one day off a month – and teachers must spend that day marking practice exams.

To prepare for the exam, students memorize past exam papers and try to guess what questions ⁸ will be asked this year. All candidates answer questions in Chinese, Maths, and English, then choose two additional subjects: History, Geography, Physics, Biology, Chemistry, or Political Ideology. Some of the unusual essay questions that ⁹ have appeared on past papers include:

- 'An Englishman dreams of living in Western China in another era. Write a story based on this.'
- 'Why chase mice when there are fish to eat?'
- 'Talk about water.'
- 'Why do we want to return to our childhood?'

The exam ¹⁰ has been criticized for testing endurance rather than intelligence. Small reforms ¹¹ were made to the exam a few years ago, but little has changed overall. More and more Chinese students ¹² have been moving overseas for university or even secondary school, just to avoid the gaokao. The number of candidates who sit the exam has fallen dramatically in recent years, from 10.2 million in 2009 to nine million this year.

However, at the same time, the gaokao ¹³ is beginning to be more widely recognized abroad. The University of Sydney has said it will accept gaokao scores from Chinese students in place of its own entrance exam. China may not need to reform the gaokao after all – it will reform the rest of us.

- c Read the article again. Mark the statements T (true) or F (false).

Tip: True / False reading

- Quickly read the text for the main ideas, then read the statements carefully.
- Re-read the text carefully and look for information that shows whether each statement is true or false.

- 1 During the gaokao nobody is allowed to drive in cities where the exam is being held.
- 2 Unless you do well in the gaokao, you probably won't get a place at university.
- 3 The exam gives young people the opportunity to do better in life.
- 4 Students preparing for the exam still have time for a social life.
- 5 Students are always finding different ways to cheat.
- 6 The gaokao was mentioned in a recent James Bond film.
- 7 Gaokao tutors only have one day a month when they don't have to work.
- 8 Science subjects are optional in the gaokao.
- 9 Some people don't like the exam because they don't think it shows how intelligent you are.
- 10 More Chinese students are taking the gaokao now than ever before.

- d What do you think of the gaokao? What do you think is the best way to decide whether someone should get a place at university or not?

CAN YOU UNDERSTAND THIS TEXT?

- a Read the article once. If you were going to study in the US, which considerations would be most important to you?

How overseas students can choose a US university

Selecting a university thousands of miles away, perhaps without the opportunity to visit beforehand, will worry even those overseas students most enthusiastic about an American education. Fortunately, thanks to the internet, you can get a good feel for an institution without multiple transatlantic flights. Many universities provide online tours of their campuses and give you a clear description of student life and the services available to international students. Investigate each university and be honest about where you might ¹ _____ best.

Academic considerations

What is it you really want to study? If you have specific requirements, will the university you are looking at be able to satisfy ² _____ needs?

If you plan on studying for a professional qualification in the US, ³ _____ the UK professional organization if your qualification will be accepted when you get home. Usually there aren't any problems, but you ⁴ _____ be required to take additional coursework or sit an examination, and it is best to know this in advance.

City or country?

Do you prefer an urban or rural setting? While it may be exciting to think of yourself in a large, glamorous city, the cost of living is often much higher – will your ⁵ _____ be big enough? Also bear in mind that students in cities may feel more socially isolated than those who choose a rural or suburban university.

Conversely, a college that is miles away from any city might have more campus-based activities, but you may find it frustrating if you can't escape. Relying exclusively on your university for socializing can be too restrictive.

Beach or snow?

The United States is geographically diverse. Before choosing a university, it is important for you to consider what type of climate suits you best. You may have ⁶ _____ your Easter break in Florida, but are you prepared for the summer heat or lack of a winter? You may think you like snow, but are you prepared to deal with temperatures of –40 degrees while studying in Buffalo, New York?

Small or large?

If you attend a very small college, will you get tired of seeing the same 500 people every week? Or will you feel lost if you are one of 60,000 at a large public university? ⁷ _____ many enjoy being the only 'foreigner', ⁸ _____ find comfort in having a well-run place to go when they're homesick or confused and need to share their problems.

1A HOW WAS IT NAMED?

Student B

- f Read about how the iMac was named. Find answers to the questions below.
- 1 Who named the product?
 - 2 What instructions did the company's founder give for choosing a name?
 - 3 What does the name mean?
 - 4 Were any other names considered?

How was the iMac named?

First produced in 1998, the bright turquoise iMac computer was a huge success for Apple and started a range of other 'i' products like the iPod, the iPad, and the iPhone. But who put the 'i' in iMac?

The answer is Ken Segall, an advertising executive in New York City. He had known Steve Jobs, the founder of Apple, for many years before he named the iMac. There was already a range of Macintosh computers, so Jobs asked Segall for a new name that had 'Mac' or 'Macintosh' in it. He also wanted the name to show people that they could go online more easily with the new computer.

Segall and his team thought of dozens of names before they chose 'iMac'. The 'i' was for 'internet', but it could also mean 'individual' or 'imagination'. A few days after coming up with the name, Segall went to Jobs and suggested it to him, together with four other names. Unfortunately, Jobs hated all of them. He preferred a name that he had thought of on his own: 'MacMan'.

A week later, Segall suggested more names to Jobs, including 'iMac' again. 'Well,' said Jobs, 'I don't hate it this week.' The rest is history.

1B COLOUR AND PERSONALITY

- a Read about the colours you have chosen in first and second place, and in seventh and eighth place. Underline the things that apply to you.

Colour personality test

RED: If you put red in 1st or 2nd place, you are energetic and assertive – you say what you think, and people listen to you. However, you are also impulsive, and sometimes make decisions without thinking enough. If you put red in 7th or 8th place, you have lost some of your enthusiasm for life.

YELLOW: If you put yellow in 1st or 2nd place, you are hard-working and ambitious. You are often good at business, and are optimistic about the future. If you put yellow in 7th or 8th place, you may feel a bit isolated at the moment. You need to make an effort to meet new people.

BLUE: If you put blue in 1st or 2nd place, you are very loyal and reliable. You never panic, and are in control of your life. You are also sensitive, however, and your feelings can be easily hurt. If you put blue in 7th or 8th place, you may feel unsatisfied with your life, and want to make changes.

GREEN: If you put green in 1st or 2nd place, you are persistent, and don't give up easily. You want to be recognized, and you probably don't like change. However, you can also be selfish and quite possessive. If you put green in 7th or 8th place, you are probably quite stubborn, and can be very critical of other people.

PURPLE: If you put purple in 1st or 2nd place, you are a bit immature, and can be moody. You dream of the perfect relationship or the perfect job. If you put purple in 7th or 8th place, you are mature and responsible.

BLACK: If you put black in 1st or 2nd place, which is unusual, you are rebellious, and don't accept your current situation. If you put black in 7th or 8th place, you feel in control of your life, and are calm and self-confident.

BROWN: If you put brown in 1st or 2nd place, you are restless and insecure. You worry about your health, and may be a bit of a hypochondriac. Security is very important to you. If you put brown in 7th or 8th place, it means you don't look after yourself enough, and may have health problems.

GREY: If you put grey in 1st or 2nd place, you are very independent and afraid of commitment. You don't like doing things in groups, and prefer watching to doing. If you put grey in 7th or 8th place, you are sociable and ambitious.

- b Tell your partner about the results. What do you agree with? What don't you agree with?

Babies at the movies

In family-friendly Brooklyn, New York, where going for a walk involves pavements full of mothers pushing buggies and toddlers on scooters, cinemas have now also become a part of baby culture.

Three cinemas in the area have agreed to put on early afternoon sessions so that parents can watch the latest films with their young children and avoid calling the babysitter.

The cinemas are open to anyone at these times, though the experience may not be suitable for the average film fan. To avoid waking up sleeping babies, the sound of the films is softer than usual. Films with loud, surprising noises, such as gunshots, are usually not shown.

One mother, Rhonda Walsh, 32, described her visit with her four-month-old daughter, Madeleine. 'There was a chorus of crying,' she remembered.

But in spite of the screaming babies, she managed to enjoy the experience. 'Of course I don't remember what the movie was,' she added.

Airline's new child rules cause controversy

It is a decision that adult air passengers will love – but it could annoy families who are travelling together. Malaysia Airlines has decided to ban children under 12 years of age from the first class cabin and the top deck of its A380 planes, so that adult travellers can relax without hearing crying and screaming.

Malaysia Airlines CEO Tengku Azmil said that the company received 'many' complaints from passengers who buy expensive tickets, but then can't sleep because of crying children.

The decision means families travelling with children will only be able to sit in the economy section on the lower deck. While some have called the decision discriminatory, others agree with it. Travel writer Suzanne Rowan Kelleher said: 'My guess is that many parents would opt for kid-free zones on planes when they're travelling without their children.'

8A HOT OR COLD? Student B

- c Read the article on p.111 about a spa treatment and find answers to the questions below.

- 1 What's the treatment called?
- 2 Where does it come from?
- 3 What is it supposed to be good for?
- 4 In what sort of room do you have the treatment?
- 5 What is the temperature of the treatment?
- 6 How long does the treatment last?
- 7 Are there any safety precautions?
- 8 How did the journalist feel afterwards?

Big chill: the medical benefits of cryotherapy

I've come to a spa in Austria to experience temperatures more than 100 degrees below zero – and while wearing just shorts and a T-shirt.

The reason? Because experts say that spending a short time in an enormous freezer – or cryotherapy, as it's called – can help people with chronic pain or skin problems, and can even improve sporting performance.

Cryotherapy was invented in Japan and later perfected in Poland. It is also good for anyone suffering from stress, depression or insomnia. This was the part that appealed to me most. Nearly 40 and a mother of three, I haven't slept well for the whole night since the birth of our first child nine years ago.

The treatment lasts only three minutes. (Any longer than eight minutes in the -110°C room and you'd be dead.) When the time comes to enter the chamber, I'm truly terrified. First I have to put on a pair of special trainers and socks, because if you fall over during cryotherapy, you'll stick to the floor. Then I open the door.

My first feeling is relief. It's deeply freezing – my arms sting immediately – but somehow it's bearable. It's not like any cold I've ever experienced before – nothing like a really cold day, for example. There's no wind, and the air is dry. It's easier to put up with than a cold shower.

After just two minutes 40 seconds, I'm finished. The next morning, I'm looking forward to doing it again. After three sessions, my skin looks really healthy and I feel energized. I also sleep deeply for the first time in years.

MY PINK ROOM

I've just finished university so I'm living ¹ at my parents' house at the moment, ² _____ my old room. It hasn't changed since I was a teenager. The walls are pale pink and the door and the window frame are much darker pink. We painted the room when we first moved there when I was 13, and I'm 23 now but I still love the colour.

It's quite a big room with a huge wardrobe along one wall, so I have plenty of space for all my clothes and shoes and jewellery. There's a full-length mirror ³ _____ the wardrobe door. My bed is painted bright pink, and has lots of cushions ⁴ _____ it.

There's a disco ball hanging ⁵ _____ the ceiling ⁶ _____ the middle of the room. I have the same desk I've had since I was really little. It's pushed right up against the wall and ⁷ _____ the desk there are some wooden shelves that my dad put up. That's where I keep my diaries, books, and some plants. There's also a big pinkish rug ⁸ _____ the floor.

I have an armchair ⁹ _____ the corner which my mum didn't want anymore. It's got yellow and blue stripes. It's really comfortable but quite ugly, and the colours don't match the rest of the room. I've covered it ¹⁰ _____ a blanket which is also pink to hide it. My room is quite girly because it has so many pink things. It's a bit like me, I suppose, and that's probably why I still like it!

- c Read the Useful language box. Then rewrite the last four tweets using full sentences.

Useful language: writing tweets

Because tweets are short messages and can only have a maximum of 140 characters (including letters, spaces, icons, and punctuation), people frequently leave out words in sentences, often pronouns and auxiliary verbs like I'm, I've, it's, and there is / are. This is acceptable in tweets and text messages but not in formal writing.

Having the most amazing experience = I'm having the most amazing experience

Another hard day = It's been another hard day

3 noisy children sitting behind me = There are three noisy children sitting behind me

- d Imagine you're having a four-day holiday. Write a tweet for each of the situations below. Use the Useful language and Vocabulary Bank Holidays p.153 to help you with vocabulary.
- the evening before your holiday
 - the first morning of the first day
 - the second and third days
 - the last evening of your holiday
 - the day after your holiday is over
- e Check your tweets to make sure they are not more than 140 characters.

3 AN ARTICLE

- a Look at the photos in the article from a photography magazine. Which of them do you like? How are they different from ordinary portraits of people?
- b Read the article and write the headings in the correct place. (There are two headings you don't need to use.) Which tip do you think is the most useful? Have you ever used any of these tips yourself?

Don't make them pose
Try different angles
Move away from the centre
Take a close-up
Don't look at me!

- c You are going to write three tips for how to take good holiday photos. With a partner, plan the content of each tip and think of three headings.

Use the Useful language and Vocabulary Bank Photography p.155 to help you with vocabulary.

Useful language: tips and instructions

Imperatives

Get up high and look down on your subject.

Don't make people pose.

Possibilities

You could sit on the floor...

You might ask the person to look at something outside the photo.

One good idea is to photograph people while they are working...

In most photos, the subject is looking at the camera. This is often a good idea, but there are other things you can try. You might ask the person to look at something outside the photo. This can make a photo more interesting – viewers want to know what the person is looking at. Or the person could be looking at something (or someone) that is in the picture.

Many people are very uncomfortable when people are taking photos of them and don't know how to relax. One good idea to help them is to photograph them while they are doing something, for example, working, or with their friends or family, or doing something that they enjoy. This will help them relax, and you will get better pictures. This is an especially good idea if you are taking pictures of children.

If you change the angle or the perspective of your photos, you can make them more interesting and unusual. Get up high, for example, stand on a table or chair, and look down on your subject. Or you could sit on the floor and look up. Both of these angles will make the photo more original.

Great place for a pre-theatre dinner

My girlfriend and I had a lovely dinner here before going to the theatre.

The service was excellent. Although we hadn't booked a table and the restaurant was quite busy, we didn't have to wait long for a table. The atmosphere was lively, with great music and people chatting.

Our dinner was perfect for a summer evening. For our starter, we had a delicious brochette of cheese, mushrooms, herbs, and vegetables. For our main, we had tuna fusilli, then dessert and coffee. The bill was really very reasonable – quite a bit less than in other similar places – and we were able to get to the theatre in time for the performance.

Good food, shame about the music

Pros: The service was friendly and helpful, and the food was very fresh and tasty. The house wine was also very good.

Cons: The music was too loud so it was difficult for my friend and me to have a conversation. We asked our waitress to turn it down a little, but she said she couldn't. Also, there are a lot of tables for the size of the restaurant, so we felt a bit cramped. On top of that, it was a bit pricey – the bill was much higher than we'd expected.

Overall opinion: Did we enjoy it? Yes. Would we go again? Not sure. There are plenty of other restaurants in the area with a better atmosphere, good food, and quiet music.

9 AN EXAM TASK

- a Read the essay topic and the student essay. Does the writer agree or disagree with the statement?

Your class has just had a discussion about exams and education. Your teacher has asked you to write an essay on the topic below. Write about 200 words.

Exams are not a good way of testing what students know. Do you agree or disagree?

- 1 In most countries around the world, students are tested on what they know through exams, both at school and at university.
- 2 In general, I think testing through exams is a good thing. Firstly, it is a fair system ¹ _____ all students have to do the same thing in the same period of time with no help. Secondly, having exams makes students work harder. It is well known that many students only really work hard ² _____ they know they have an exam in the near future. Thirdly, the only real alternative is continuous assessment. This system benefits young people whose parents are closely involved in their education and help them with projects, ³ _____ it isn't as fair as an exam. In continuous assessment it is also much more difficult to stop students from cheating by using other peoples' work from the internet ⁴ _____ their own.
- 3 The only real disadvantage of exams is that some students get very nervous and don't do their best, ⁵ _____ learning relaxation techniques is a good way of helping with this problem.
- 4 In conclusion, ⁶ _____ the exam system is not perfect, I think that it is the best way there is of testing students' knowledge.

Interviewer Excuse me, I'm doing a survey. Can I ask you some questions about your name?

Sean OK.

Interviewer So, what's your name?

Sean Sean Gibson.

Interviewer Is that S-E-A-N or S-H-A-U-N?

Sean S-E-A-N.

Interviewer Why did your parents call you that?

Sean I think I'm named after the actor Sean Connery, who played James Bond in the 60s. He was very famous at the time when I was born.

Interviewer Do you have a nickname?

Sean Actually, at school they used to call me 'Brains'. Um, it was meant to be a joke, I think, because I wasn't a particularly good student.

Interviewer And are you happy with your name?

Sean Mmm, I like it. I was usually the only Sean at school, which I think was quite a good thing. But people find it quite difficult to spell, especially as there are two possible spellings, and most foreign people find it really difficult to pronounce.

Interviewer Would you like to change it?

Sean No, I definitely wouldn't change it.

Interviewer So, what's your name?

Deborah Deborah.

Interviewer Is that with an h at the end?

Deborah Yes, D-E-B-O-R-A-H.

Interviewer Why did your parents call you that?

Deborah Ah, I'm actually named after the hospital where I was born, Deborah Hospital in New Jersey – near New York. My dad thought of that.

Interviewer Do you have a nickname?

Deborah No, but everyone calls me Debbie or Deb.

Interviewer Are you happy with your name?

Deborah Not really.

Interviewer Would you like to change it?

Deborah I don't know. When I was little, I renamed myself April and then Caroline, but now I don't like those names either.

Interviewer So what's your name?

James James.

Interviewer Is that spelt in the usual way?

James Yes, J-A-M-E-S.

Interviewer Why did your parents call you that?

James I'm not sure. I think they just liked the name. I'm not named after anyone or anything like that.

Interviewer Do you have a nickname?

James Not exactly. At university some of my friends called me Jim for short, but I didn't like it very much. I've always introduced myself as James.

Interviewer Are you happy with your name?

James Yes. I've always liked it.

Interviewer Would you like to change it?

James No. I can't imagine being called something different. But I don't think it really matters anyway – a name is just a name.

Interviewer What's your name?

Philippa Philippa.

Interviewer How do you spell it?

Philippa P-H-I-L-I-P-P-A.

Interviewer Why did your parents call you that?

Philippa My parents are Scottish, but they were living in England when I was born. They heard the name Philippa – it isn't a common name in Scotland – and they decided that they liked it.

Interviewer Do you have a nickname?

Philippa Well, when I was growing up everyone called me Pippa for short, which I didn't like at all!

Interviewer Are you happy with your name?

Philippa I hated it when I was growing up because it was different. And not one single person spells it right! But now I don't mind it, because it is a bit different.

Interviewer Would you like to change it?

Philippa No, I like it for me.

17))

Interviewer Good afternoon. This is Uncommon Knowledge, the programme that looks at everyday things from unusual angles. Today we're talking to the Creative Director of a company that names companies and products. Welcome, John.

John Hello, Sarah.

Interviewer Now, tell us. How do companies choose their names? Are they usually named after the people who start them?

John Well, sometimes. Many companies are named after their founders, for example the Swedish furniture company IKEA. The first two letters in IKEA – the I and the K – are the initials of Ingvar Kamrad, the company's founder.

Interviewer And what about the last two letters, the E and the A? What do they stand for?

John The E is for Elmtaryd, which is the name of the farm where Ingvar Kamrad grew up.

Interviewer And the A?

John The A is for the name of a village near his hometown, called Agunnaryd. I'm not quite sure exactly why this village was important to him, but obviously it was.

Interviewer I always assumed that 'ikea' was a Swedish word with some sort of special meaning.

John Ah, I'm afraid not. But many other companies choose names which have specific meanings. For example, Samsung, the big Korean electronics company.

Interviewer What does Samsung mean?

John In Korean, Samsung means 'three stars'. The name was chosen back in the year 1938, and at that time three stars was the most impressive rating that people could imagine for hotels and things like that.

Interviewer So if they'd started the company today they would probably have called it 'five stars' – whatever that is in Korean.

John Absolutely. In any case the company was very different in its early days. For instance, in the beginning, in 1938, Samsung wasn't an electronics company. It was a company which sold fish, vegetables, and fruit to China. It didn't start selling electronics until the 1970s.

Interviewer Oh really? I didn't know that.

John And another brand name with a special meaning is Nike, the American company which is famous for its trainers and sports clothes.

Interviewer I think I know this one. Nike is the Greek goddess of victory. Is that right?

John Yes, that's right. What's interesting is that 'Nike' wasn't the company's original name. When it started in 1964, its original name was Blue Ribbon Sports. They changed their name to Nike a few years later in 1971.

Interviewer Very interesting.

John Yes. And another company with an interesting name is Sony, the Japanese electronics company. Sony is a combination of 'sonus', the Latin word for sound, and 'sonny', an American slang term that means 'boy'.

Interviewer 'Sound' plus 'boy'.

John That's right. They chose it because it has an interesting meaning and it's easy for people all over the world to pronounce. Obviously that's an important thing for a business name.

Interviewer One more question, this time about the American internet company, Google. The name has something to do with numbers, I think.

John That's right. 'Googol' is a word for a very large number: a one followed by 100 zeroes.

Interviewer Really? That's quite hard to visualize!

John The name shows that there is a huge amount of information online, and you can find it all by Googling it.

Interviewer Yes. It's a really good name for a search engine.

John Yes, indeed. Now, of course, the spelling is different. 'Google' the company is G-O-O-G-L-E, but the number is spelled G-O-O-G-O-L. But that's where the name comes from.

Interviewer Fascinating. Thanks very much for speaking with us this afternoon.

John You're very welcome.

Interviewer Why did you decide to try colour analysis, Wendy?

Wendy Well, I was sharing an office with a lady who always looked incredibly stylish and well-dressed. And when I asked her what her secret was, she told me that she'd done colour analysis. Another reason was that I was really bored with black. I felt like I wore black too often, and I wanted to wear new colours that were more suitable for me. I didn't know what was wrong with the way I dressed, but I wasn't happy about it. So I brought two friends along and we went to see a colour consultant.

Interviewer What was she like? It was a woman?

Wendy Yes, she was a woman. Just wonderful, very friendly and helpful. She put loads of scarves on me that were in different colours and shades. They just drape the scarves around the front of you, like when you go to the hairdresser's, and see which ones look best for your skin tone. Once she'd done all the colours for me, then she put me in the right make-up as well.

Interviewer What colours did she say were best for you?

Wendy Well, I learned that I'm a 'winter person'. There are four sorts of people: spring, summer, autumn, and winter. The winter colours are all very strong, for example dark purple, a dark blue, fuchsia, and a light purple colour called lobelia, which is named after a flower. Another colour winter people should wear a lot is emerald green. And she said I shouldn't wear yellow or orange, or shades of colours which have a lot of yellow in them, like lime green.

Interviewer Do you still wear black?

Wendy Yes. Winter people are the ones who can wear black. I still do wear it once or twice a week.

Interviewer What changes did you make after your colour analysis?

Wendy The first thing I did was get a couple of affordable T-shirts in my new colours, to sort of try it out. I've got a little book with a set of swatches in my colours that I carry with me, absolutely everywhere, so I can be sure I'm buying the right colours. Also, my two friends were both autumn people, so we did a big clothes swap. I gave them all of my autumn colours and they gave me all of their winter colours.

Interviewer Did people notice a change in you?
Wendy They definitely noticed. And the most frequently used word was 'glamorous'. 'Wendy, you look so glamorous!' And after a while I really felt more glamorous. I might just be wearing a T-shirt and a pair of jeans, but in the right colour, and it makes a great difference. Now I feel more confident as a person, in the workplace, and socially. I feel more confident when I go shopping too – before I never knew what to buy and was just hopeless, really.

Interviewer Would you recommend colour analysis to others?

Wendy Absolutely. In fact, about four or five people in the office saw me and did the same thing. My mother's done it too. I told my husband to do it – they do it for guys as well – but he hasn't agreed yet. But he will!

1 19))

Andrew Are you all right? I'll carry that for you.

Jenny Oh yeah, that'd be great. Thank you.

Grant We've just arrived on the flight from New York. He's talking to someone. I'll follow them.

Andrew And have you been to the UK before?

Jenny A few times, actually. I work for a magazine in the States – New York 24seven – and we have a sister company in London.

Andrew I see. And are you here on business this time?

Jenny Sort of. I'm here for a few meetings, but I have a couple of days off beforehand. I'm visiting my father-in-law in the countryside. How about you? How was your holiday in New York?

Andrew It wasn't really a holiday. I was doing some research there.

Jenny That sounds interesting.

Andrew It was, but I didn't have much time for sightseeing! Is your husband coming too?

Jenny No, he's working.

Andrew What does he do?

Jenny He's a journalist. He's on assignment in Alaska at the moment.

Andrew In Alaska? Wow!

Jenny I know, right? I've never been, but he says it's incredible.

Andrew I can imagine. A bit different from the English countryside!

Jenny That's true.

Andrew I'd better go. Oh, before I forget, here's your laptop.

Jenny Oh yeah! Thanks a lot. Sorry, I didn't ask your name.

Andrew Andrew Page. And yours?

Jenny Jenny Zielinski. It was nice meeting you.

Andrew You too.

Jenny And thanks again for helping with my bags.

Andrew No problem. Have a great time at your father-in-law's.

Jenny I will... if I ever get through here!

Andrew Bye then.

Jenny Yeah bye. Take care.

Jenny Henry? Hi, yeah, I'm here at last. The flight was late taking off... I'm so sorry you've had to wait for me... I know, I know. And you won't believe this – it looks like my suitcase didn't get here... I'm not sure, it's turning out to be a nightmare! I can't wait to just get back to your house and – oh, hang on, I have to go – it's my turn. Bye.

1 22))

Henry You poor thing! What a journey!

Jenny Well, I'm here now.

Henry And it's lovely to see you.

Jenny It's great to see you too.

Henry No, no, no, let me take that.

Jenny It's OK.

Henry You've had a hard journey. Allow me.

Jenny Thanks, Henry.

Jenny Neither can I. It's weird, isn't it?

Rob I really miss you.

Jenny Me too. How's Alaska?

Rob Not great. It's been snowing all day! I haven't left the hotel.

Jenny Oh no! That's awful.

Rob What are you drinking? Is that coffee?

Jenny No, it's tea.

Rob Tea?

Jenny It's good. Really!

Rob Where's Dad now?

Jenny I think he's getting me something. I'm not sure what.

Rob So why are you using his computer?

Jenny Oh, it's crazy. You know my laptop?

Rob Yeah?

Jenny This screen keeps popping up and asking me for a password. I've never seen it before. I'm worried I have a virus.

Rob It's not your day, is it? First your suitcase and then your laptop!

Jenny No, but your dad's being so nice. And he says your cousin Luke will be able to fix my computer for me. Apparently he's kind of a computer geek.

Rob Kind of? He's a genius. If he can't do it, nobody can.

Jenny Well, I'm going to go see him tomorrow.

Henry Here's a pair of my pyjamas you can use, Jenny.

Rob Oh wow! You'll look great in those, Jenny!

Selina Selina Lavelle.

Grant Selina? It's Grant. She's in the house, but she isn't alone. I could come back tomorrow with...

Selina No. Stay there. All night if you have to.

Grant Yes, boss.

So, in reverse order, the list of things that the British most often leave behind when they go on holiday.

At number ten we have – their passports. Yes, believe it or not many Brits only realize when they get to the airport that they've left their passports at home.

At number nine, flip flops. An easy solution there – they can buy some new ones at their holiday destination.

Number eight, their mobile phone. This is bad news, as it's not easy to replace when you're on holiday, but maybe it's a good thing as it makes it easier to really disconnect, without calls or emails.

At number seven, toothbrushes, and at number six, toothpaste. Another easy thing to buy though, at any local chemist's.

At number five, sunglasses. Yes, Brits have them, but because we don't use them very often we forget to pack them, and we end up buying another pair, which we will then forget again next time.

Number four, a good book. But nowadays if you've forgotten a book but you have a Kindle or iPad, it's easy to buy some more wherever you are.

At number three, sunscreen. This is something we really ought to try to remember to take, because sunscreen is often much more expensive in holiday resorts. And you really can't sunbathe or do water sports without putting some on.

At number two, phone chargers. So you remembered your phone – but you forgot the charger. Well, it is possible to buy chargers when you're away, or you might even be able to buy one online and get it delivered to wherever you're staying.

Finally, the number one thing people forget to bring is... comfortable shoes! We seem to forget that when you go sightseeing or even shopping, not to mention going for walks, comfortable shoes are a must. So next time you pack, make sure all these things are on your checklist!

1 32))

Interviewer How long have you been an airport screener?

Screener Two years.

Interviewer What's the most difficult part of the job?

Screener Definitely the repetition. You say and do the same things again and again... and again. I mean, it's so boring. It eats away at you. I also don't like taking and throwing away people's things. But there are certain things you can't bring through security. I often have to take away big bottles of sunscreen and expensive perfume, home-made food, uh, also, you know, razors and scissors and other things and throw them in the trash, usually in front of the passenger. They look so sad and confused. It makes me feel a little sad for them, too.

Interviewer What do you like about the job?

Screener The only thing that keeps it interesting is the variety of people you meet. I enjoy talking with people and wondering where they're travelling to and things like that. It really tells you something about society.

Interviewer What are your colleagues like?

Screener Um, some are great, but some are terrible. Like, if a passenger is moving too slowly, they can be really unkind. Even if it's an elderly traveller, or just a businessman with too many electronic gadgets. The bad ones, um, they shout at people to push their bags through the belt. I mean, they don't have to be rude about it. One of my colleagues refuses to say 'please' and 'thank you'. Can you believe that? He tells people to lift their arms, show their feet, take off their belt, and things like that, in a very unkind way.

Interviewer Why do you think some screeners are so unfriendly?

Screener Well, I think that it really is, as I said before, because of the repetition. I mean, you try standing in the same place and repeating the same instructions to people and watch them make the same mistakes again and again. It's emotionally exhausting.

Interviewer What are some things that annoy you about passengers?

Screener I always find it surprising when people don't know they have to take off their coats or boots, or take out their laptops, or that they can't take bottles of water through. Sure, not everyone has the opportunity to travel, but I mean, have these people not picked up a newspaper, or watched TV, or spoken with someone else who has flown in the last ten years?

Interviewer How do passengers treat you generally?

Screener Some are nice and courteous. Especially in the morning, people seem either cheery and warm or, you know, simply tired and indifferent. They're rarely rude in the morning. By the afternoon, people become more stressed, and they become less friendly and sometimes angry. They get so upset at us personally. But, I mean, we don't make the rules. Someone else does.

Harry I live in Hereford, which is a small town in the UK very near Wales, and our local shopping street, our high street, it has all the normal chains like McDonald's and WHSmith the stationer's. There are also some smaller shops that are independently owned – there's a butcher's, a hardware store, things like that. There used to be a department store that was owned by a local family, but it closed down last year.

The local shops are already having problems, I'd say. And now they're going to develop a new shopping centre outside town, and that'll kill the high street. Also, more people are shopping online now. It worries me because if there are no shops, then the centre of town will just die and become really depressing, maybe just with pound shops or empty stores.

Kate In Toronto, where I live in Canada, the shopping street near my house has everything, from delicatessens and pharmacies to restaurants and clothing stores. There are also corner shops, grocery stores, and chains like Starbucks as well.

The smaller, independently owned shops are definitely struggling because people are going to big indoor shopping malls or supermarkets, especially in winter when it's too cold to be walking around outdoors. Online shopping is still not very common due to the long distances between cities and towns in Canada. Postal delivery and overnight delivery aren't really practical.

Ken I'm from Kobe, a city in Japan, and near the train station we have little shops like a baker's, a café, a greengrocer's, and lots of corner shops.

But people there shop at department stores, mainly. You know, Japanese department stores have everything – clothes, TVs, fruit and vegetables. I don't often go to small independent shops, because I usually need to buy a lot of different things. So it's a lot more convenient to go to a department store. I know the small shops are disappearing and that's a little sad, but better things are replacing them. They're just responding to the customers' needs. It's what the shoppers want.

Bea I live in the centre of Valencia in Spain, and my nearest big shopping street is called Calle Colón. I almost always go shopping there as it's so close. It has pretty much all the shops I like and a big department store too called El Corte Inglés – it's a Spanish institution!

I'd say the small local shops are doing quite well. Of course some places close down, but then new ones open up – a Japanese chain called Muji, for example, that sells stuff for your house. There are quite a few shopping centres round Valencia but I never go to them, as they tend to be out of town, so you need a car or bus to get there, and I think the same is true for lots of people round here, and also tourists like the small shops. Even though I do use them, for me there are two problems with small shops in Spain. One is that they often close at lunchtime, which I find really impractical. The other thing is that small shops don't offer the same sort of service that a big store can. For example, it's more difficult to have things delivered, or to change something and get your money back.

2 10)))

Interviewer Welcome back. Up next, age and the generation gap. We know how hard it can be to tell someone's age, but in fact it turns out there may be a way that's quite simple. It's called the 'Mosquito Tone Test', and Mark is here to tell us more.

Mark Thanks, Sue. The Mosquito Tone is a sound – a very high pitched, very annoying sound, which is why it's named after the insect. What's interesting is that apparently as we age, we slowly lose our ability to hear this sound. According to scientists, almost everyone under the age of 25 can hear the Mosquito Tone, but almost no one over 25 can hear it!

Interviewer Really! Is that right?

Mark Yes. And to test this out, I actually played the tone for my family last night. My wife and I heard absolutely nothing at all, but our teenage daughters could hear it, and in fact they complained that it was an irritating sound that was quite painful to hear.

Interviewer Oh no! Well, at the risk of irritating some of our younger listeners' ears, why don't we play the tone briefly now?

Mark OK, here goes. I'm playing the tone in 3, 2, 1...

Interviewer Have you played the tone yet?

Mark I just did. Or, at least, I think I did.

Interviewer Well, I suppose that just confirms that neither of us are under 25!

2 11)))

Interviewer Now Mark, apart from testing a person's age, what is the Mosquito Tone being used for?

Mark This has actually become an interesting controversy. Because the sound is so annoying, and because only the young can hear it, the Mosquito Tone is being used to keep teenagers away from certain places.

Interviewer What kinds of places?

Mark Well, for example, from shopping centres. As you know in some towns you get large groups of young people hanging around shopping centres and causing trouble. And some shop owners say that these gangs can annoy other customers, or frighten them away, which is obviously not good for business. So now these centres can play the Mosquito Tone over their audio system, and the groups of teenagers will feel uncomfortable and leave the area. But of course the sound won't annoy the other customers at all, as they don't hear it.

Interviewer Have you spoken to any of these shop owners?

Mark Yes, I have, and they said that the Mosquito Tone has worked very well for them. And they also said that although it's true that the Mosquito Tone is certainly very annoying, it doesn't hurt the teenagers.

Interviewer It sounds like rather a good idea to me. But you said this was a controversy. Who's against it?

Mark Well, there are some groups of people who are trying to ban the Mosquito Tone. They've pointed out a number of problems with it. Firstly, they worry that the sound really is harmful, but more to the point they say that the Mosquito Tone affects all young people, some of whom are well-behaved and just want to go shopping. And finally they say that the Mosquito Tone doesn't actually stop the problem of teenage gangs, it just drives them from one place to another.

Interviewer Those do seem like good points.

Mark Yes, indeed. And there's also an interesting twist. Some teenagers have discovered an advantage to the Mosquito Tone.

Interviewer Oh yes?

Mark Well, the Mosquito Tone has also been released as a ringtone for your mobile. So in secondary schools that don't permit mobile phones, teens can use their phones in class. They can receive calls and messages during lessons and teachers don't have any idea what is happening.

Interviewer Because the teacher can't hear it! That must really annoy them.

Mark That's right. And if they can't hear it, they can't...

Interviewer What inspired you to become a photographer?

Brian My cousin, who was ten years older than me, built a darkroom in his house which I used to visit. From the moment I saw a developing photograph appearing like magic on a piece of paper under the red light, I was completely hooked. At the same time my school started a photography club, so I joined it. I soon knew it was what I wanted to do, and later I went on to study photography and film-making at university.

Interviewer What sort of people do you usually photograph, and where?

Brian I've mainly photographed classical musicians and their ensembles and orchestras. I usually photograph them at work and they often perform in wonderful buildings, which are also great for photography, so I've had the chance to work in palaces and churches in Rome, Vienna, Salzburg, Paris, and other places.

Interviewer Have you had any other famous clients?

Brian Yes, several. I was once asked to photograph Prince Charles, for example.

Interviewer Oh, and how did that go?

Brian In fact, it was a bit embarrassing. He was visiting a mosque, and though there were many other press photographers there, I was the only one who was given permission to enter the mosque at the same time as the Prince. When I got to the door, I was asked to take my shoes off, and I realized that I had an enormous hole in one of my socks! I was so embarrassed, all I could think about was this hole as I tried to get shots of Prince Charles. And then he left through a different door, and I had to follow him, still in my socks.

Interviewer Do you have a favourite portrait of a celebrity?

Brian I have lots, but for example there's a portrait of Meryl Streep by Annie Leibovitz, where she's wearing a face-mask. It's absolutely wonderful.

2 19)))

Interviewer What are some tricks to taking a good portrait?

Brian Each situation is different and what works for one person may not work for another. The most important thing is to get people to relax. Being photographed makes most people nervous and insecure, so, assuming they're not professional models, generally it's best not to have other people around, watching the photo shoot. Once people relax they can even enjoy the process but it does take a long time, so another important thing if you want to have a good photo taken of you is not to be in a hurry. I often need between three and four hours.

Interviewer What else can the person who is being photographed do to improve the picture?

Brian To start with they should wear comfortable clothes, and if they can, if it's a studio photo, bring some different clothes with them – things that they feel good in.

Interviewer What about make-up?

Brian If people are used to wearing make-up, then they should use it, because again it will make them feel good. Actually make-up is often a good thing – and in fact, even for men, a little powder can make them look better under studio lights.

Interviewer What about how to pose?

Brian Well, standing up straight isn't usually a good pose. You can get much more interesting pictures of people, for example, sitting on the floor, leaning against the back of a chair, or sitting just on the edge of a chair. Interestingly, sometimes it's a good thing for people to feel a bit uncomfortable, because the more uncomfortable people are the less they think about their expression and the better the pictures can be. It also helps if people look away and only turn to the camera at the last moment.

Interviewer Brian, thank you very much, and I'll try to remember those tips.

2 23)))

1 I really love this photo, even though I look a bit strange in a dress that was obviously too big and a coat that was too small! But it's the way that my grandfather and I are looking at each other that I love about it. We were about to go for a walk, and are standing just in front of the door of his house, on the steps. It was a really cold day so he'd lent me his fur hat. I don't know who took the photo, probably my grandmother, but it's a lovely reminder of my grandfather, who died a few years ago. I have it in a frame on my desk, and both my mother and my grandmother have a framed copy of the same photo – we all love it.

2 My favourite photo ever – not just from my childhood but in my whole life – is this one that my dad took when we went camping. I'm standing in the mountains and on a rock in front of me is this animal called a marmot – it's like a big mouse, and they're quite common round here. The marmot was standing incredibly close to me and it almost looks as if it's smiling at the camera! It wasn't shy at all. A strange thing is, I always remembered the day the photo was taken, but I actually didn't see the photo with my own eyes until last year, when I turned 35. My parents found a load of old photos and scanned them for me so that I'd have them in digital form. I wanted to enlarge this one and make it into a poster, but the file wasn't big enough.

3 Er, there are loads of childhood photos to choose from, but one of my favourites is this one which was taken by my dad – he was always the family photographer – and I think it was a day when we went for a picnic with my brothers and cousins. In the picture, I'm the little blonde one in the front. I think I was about seven or eight, er, and the two boys on the right are my brothers, and the rest are my cousins.

It reminds me of how close I am to my extended family. So, er, I look at it when I miss home – and it cheers me up. I used to have it stuck on my fridge but now it's packed away in a box somewhere. But my mum uploaded it onto Facebook so now I can look at it any time.

Jenny Hello?... Yes, it is... Oh, that's great news. Thank you... Later today? Great. Now I won't have to buy new clothes... Yeah, that's the right address. Bye.

Henry Good news?

Jenny Great news! They found my suitcase, and they're bringing it over later today.

Henry Excellent. Right, I'll take you to my nephew's house so he can fix your computer.

Jenny I'm looking forward to meeting Luke.

Henry You'll like him. He's a bright boy. Not that I understand a word he says.

Jenny I'll bet he doesn't know much about Greek mythology either!

Henry You're probably right.

Henry That's funny.

Jenny What's wrong?

Henry The tyre's flat.

Jenny Do you have a spare?

Henry Well, yes, but it shouldn't be flat, it's new and...

Henry I don't believe it!

Jenny What is it?

Henry They're both flat! They've been punctured!

Jenny What? Somebody did that on purpose? In the English countryside?

Henry You get vandals everywhere these days.

Well, I'll just have to stay here and see if I can get the AA to bring out another spare tyre. I'll call you a taxi.

Jenny Isn't there a bus I could catch?

Henry Well, there's a bus stop on the main road. You could get the bus to Oxford from there, I suppose.

Jenny How do I get to the bus stop?

Henry The quickest way is the footpath at the back of the house.

Jenny I think I'll do that then.

Henry Are you sure you want to get the bus? How will you find Luke's house?

Jenny You gave me the address. I can look it up on my phone if I get lost.

Henry Yes, of course. But, this is really inconvenient for you. You were going to borrow my car, weren't you?

Jenny No, don't worry, Henry. I'd actually decided to rent a car anyway. I'll need it for work and it'll probably be cheaper to rent here than in London. I can get one while Luke is working his magic.

Henry Well, if you're absolutely sure. Just go to the back door and you'll see the path. Follow that – takes you to the bus stop.

Jenny OK. Oh, and I'd like to cook dinner this evening to thank you for having me.

Henry You don't need to do that!

Jenny I want to.

Henry Well, if you're sure. What time?

Jenny How about seven o'clock?

Henry Great! And I'll keep my phone on in case you need me.

Jenny See you later, Henry.

Henry Bye!

Henry Who's that?

Jenny Luke?

Luke You must be Jenny. Hi.

Jenny Nice to meet you.

Luke You too. Come in. Would you like some coffee? I've just made some.

Jenny I'd love to, but I'm running a bit late. We had trouble with the car and then the bus took forever. And I really need to get to a car rental place. I'm really sorry, but could I just leave the computer with you?

Luke Yeah, no problem.

Jenny That's great. I feel awful just leaving it here like this.

Luke Honestly, don't worry about it.

Jenny Are you sure?

Luke Yeah, it's cool. I love doing this kind of thing. I'll send you a text and let you know how I'm getting on.

Jenny That's nice of you, Luke. Thanks. See you later.

Luke See you later.

27

Jenny Henry? Henry? Henry?

Henry This is Henry Walker. I'm afraid I can't take your call at the moment. Please leave your message after the tone.

Jenny Hi, Henry, it's Jenny here. I just wanted to let you know everything went fine. I got my car and I'm back home. Remember I'm making dinner. See you soon.

Jenny Hi Luke, it's Jenny.

Luke Hi Jenny, what's up?

Jenny I just wanted to apologize for running off this morning.

Luke You really don't need to! I should apologize, actually. It's going to take me longer than I thought to unlock your computer. It's like there's an extra security code or something.

Jenny That's really weird.

Luke Don't worry, I'm sure I can crack it.

Jenny I just have no idea how it got there. Hang on.

Luke What is it?

Jenny My suitcase has arrived!

Luke Hey, that's great!

Jenny Oh, look at that. The lock's broken.

Luke Must have been the baggage handlers!

Jenny Well, at least it's back.

Luke So, how's uncle Henry?

Jenny He isn't here. I called him but he didn't answer.

Luke He probably went for a walk. He often does that. He thinks about his research and stuff.

Jenny Well, I hope he's back in time for dinner!

Luke He will be. He's always on time.

Jenny Yeah, Rob told me Henry's very punctual.

Luke Unlike Rob!

Jenny Exactly.

Luke Is that the jet lag catching up with you?

Jenny Yeah, I'm pretty tired.

Luke You should have a nap. Don't worry, I'll get this computer working as soon as I can.

Jenny Thanks, Luke. See you later.

Luke Bye!

Jenny Oh no, dinner! Henry? Henry? That's strange.

Henry This is Henry Walker. I'm afraid I can't take your call at the moment. Please leave your message after the tone.

Newsreader The victim of last night's assault at Heathrow Airport has been named as Andrew Page. Mr Page is a research scientist from Oxford. Police believe he was attacked as he left the airport. He is now in hospital in a critical condition. Police are appealing to anyone who may have seen Mr Page to contact them immediately. Mr Page had just returned from New York where he was conducting research on renewable energy.

Rob Hi, Jenny.

Jenny Rob, I need to talk to you.

Sunday

Liz Dave and I meet Ash and Ross, two London freegans who will train us how to find food in the rubbish. Ash is 21, and his friend Ross is 46. This is Ash.

Ash First, you need the right equipment. Take gloves and a torch. Also, you have to know where to go. Small to medium size shops are probably best. The larger shops lock their bins.

Liz We're in the car park behind a supermarket. It's 5 p.m. and dark, so people don't notice us. Ash and Ross walk confidently to the bins, lift the lids, and start looking for food.

The first bin bag we open contains frozen meals, including chicken curry and chilli con carne. The meals haven't been opened and the sell-by date is today. Underneath are ten tubs of ice cream, with the same sell-by date. At the bottom is a carton of eggs. The sell-by date is next week. Ross says this isn't surprising.

Ross We get a lot of eggs. Sometimes, if one breaks, they just throw away all of them. But, er, you know, just be careful when choosing what to eat. If the packaging is open or it's past the sell-by date, don't take it. Oh, and wash everything you find before you eat it.

Monday

Liz Now it's time for Dave and me to try freeganism on our own. As we begin, it's freezing cold. After an hour and a half of searching, we still haven't found one unlocked bin. Eventually, we go behind a smaller supermarket and... success! The bins are open. There's a plastic bag full of vegetables at the bottom. So, while Dave holds the lid open, I reach in. A couple of people are watching us, and I'm so embarrassed. But the bag's full of potatoes, apples, and carrots, and there's nothing wrong with them. We'll make a nice soup with them. Now, we just need bread. We look inside a coffee shop's bin and there is some. But we're right outside the station and it's rush hour. We're too embarrassed to take it. So we go to the bins outside a nearby supermarket, where we find a plastic bag of sliced bread. The bag is unbroken and the sell-by date is today. At home, after washing the vegetables, we cook a delicious soup, which we have with the bread. Dessert is baked apples. Wonderful.

30

Tuesday

Liz I don't feel ill – a good start – so we enjoy a freegan breakfast of avocados, which are a present from Ash and Ross, and we have the rest of yesterday's bread. We decide to visit the bins by the supermarket where we found the vegetables yesterday. Again, we find lots of vegetables and fruit – potatoes, peppers, a melon, and some salad. The salad is close to the sell-by date, but if it were in your fridge, you'd eat it. Other sell-by dates are not for another week. I don't understand why they were thrown away. After a lunch of yesterday's soup, we search at bakeries but find nothing. Luckily, we've found enough food this morning for dinner and tomorrow's breakfast.

We've decided that it's OK to use a few shop-bought ingredients such as pasta, so on the menu tonight is a spicy pasta soup with green peppers and the carrots from yesterday. For dessert we have another baked apple.

Wednesday

Liz Today, after a breakfast of melon, we head off to check out the bins in the market, which smell terrible compared with the supermarket rubbish. We find enough food to eat like kings: sausages, cabbage, lemons, and some onions. Although three days is a short time to live as a freegan, I've already learned that a lot of food is thrown away for no good reason. Perhaps I should continue with my freegan lifestyle? After all, the food we found, after a good wash, was the same as the food you buy in a shop. Except, of course, it was free.

Rosie In the fashion industry, it's almost impossible to get a job unless you do an internship first. Companies get so many applications for internships that they don't need to pay you. The most I got was about £15 a day for lunch and transport.

It's slave labour, but it teaches you a lot. I learned loads about making and designing clothes. I sometimes worked beyond 11 p.m., and that wasn't easy, but then you look in the newspapers and see a model who's wearing a hat that you helped to make. It's so exciting.

I'm in a lot of debt after doing three months' unpaid work in London. My parents were able to help me a bit, but I had to earn money by working in a bar as well.

Overall, I think internships are brilliant. I'd definitely advise someone to do an internship – despite the hard work and the debt, you learn so much that it's worth it.

Joe I had an internship in the music industry for a few months when I was in my early twenties. The positive side was having a job. An internship is a position in an organization like any other job, so you feel that you've taken a step in the right direction. And I enjoyed working in the music industry – I liked the office environment and my colleagues.

The downside was that I was paid very little – the minimum wage – and it all went on food and travel. And the job itself wasn't very interesting, to be honest. There were boring repetitive tasks like writing the company newsletter or managing their social media channels.

But all in all it was positive. I think the best experience was sometimes being in the same room as the boss and listening to his phone calls – that was first-hand experience of how to run a business. And of course the internship went straight onto my CV. Any experience is better than no experience from an employer's perspective.

Lauren I've done four internships in publicity. My last one was two months at a small PR agency. They paid for my travel expenses and lunch, and I learned a lot. That really helped me when I applied for jobs because I knew what I was talking about.

But in the other three I worked ten-hour days, six days a week, and I got no money at all, so I also had to work in a pub to support myself. Each time I was told, 'Do well and there'll be a job at the end of it.' But then you realize there is no job. It makes you angry.

During one of those internships, the manager went on holiday for a month and I had to manage everything. In another one, I worked from home, using my own phone, and wasn't paid a penny, not even to cover the phone bill. I only met the boss once – it was all done by email. She promised me a job after three months, but it never happened.

Interviewer Welcome back. My next guests are two sisters who write scripts for Bob's Burgers, an animated series which will be shown next month on Sunday evenings. Please welcome Wendy and Lizzie Molyneux! Lizzie, Wendy, thanks so much for joining us.

Wendy / Lizzie Thanks, great to be here, it's our pleasure.

Interviewer Now, tell us a bit about Bob's Burgers.

Wendy Well, like The Simpsons, it's meant for adults and older kids even though obviously it's a cartoon.

Lizzie It's a comedy – it's about a funny guy who owns a hamburger restaurant, and his weird kids and weird wife. They all work in the restaurant and live in the apartment above it, and they have lots of problems keeping the restaurant in business.

Interviewer So, how did you get the job as writers?

Wendy A few years ago we wrote a script for another animated series that the network decided not to make. But people read our script and they liked it.

Lizzie Yeah. So later we had an interview with the producers of Bob's Burgers. We loved the show and the producers, so we were sure we would never get the job.

Wendy But then we did!

Lizzie Happy ending!

Interviewer What's it like to be a TV writer. I mean, what's your daily routine?

Lizzie Er, we start work at about 10.00 in the morning. Most weekdays we are either working on a story or coming up with some new jokes for scripts that have already been written. Then in the afternoon it's more of the same.

Interviewer How long does it take to actually write and create an episode?

Wendy Actually, it takes a really long time – about six to eight months from the idea to recording. First, you come up with an idea for a story. Then, you work with a bunch of other writers to create an outline for the story.

Lizzie There are about ten full-time writers on the show.

Wendy Right. Then, you go write a full script. That script gets read aloud by the actors, then we record their voices in a studio. Once we have the recording, the artists create an animatic, which is like a rough draft of the cartoon, in black and white.

Lizzie And after that, the rough drawings are sent to a studio in Korea where the colour animation is created.

Interviewer Who do you think is most important to the show: the actors, the writers, or the director? Or someone else?

Lizzie Well, on our show it is definitely the creator of the show, Loren Bouchard. He's always at the office. He manages the writers, the directors, the actors, and pretty much everything else.

Wendy Yeah. He barely even has time to eat, but when he does he pretty much only eats baked potatoes.

Interviewer Sounds like a strange guy. Do you have guest stars on Bob's Burgers?

Wendy Actually yes, we've had a lot of amazing guest stars on our show, like Jon Hamm from Mad Men.

Interviewer What's it like being sisters and co-writers? Did you write things together when you were children?

Lizzie We probably collaborated on making fun of our other sisters, but we didn't actually write together until we were adults.

Interviewer Apart from Bob's Burgers, what TV programmes do you like?

Wendy Actually I love watching dramas like Game Of Thrones or Homeland. I don't always want to watch other comedies, because then I'd be thinking about work. I will watch anything with zombies as well!

Lizzie I also enjoy terrible reality shows like The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills.

Interviewer One last question. What are your future ambitions?

Wendy To write more TV!

Interviewer Wendy, Lizzie, thank you for coming on the programme.

Wendy / Lizzie Thank you. Our pleasure.

Melissa I live in Istanbul now, in Turkey, but I used to live in the country in the province of Sakarya. It was an amazing place to live – just so beautiful. There's a large lake nearby and the hills are covered with pine trees – people go to picnic there. The coast is also not far away. When I lived there it was as if time had stood still. There was no water or electricity – we had our own well and generator – and there was only one shop. We had to wait for a minibus from the nearest town to bring fresh bread and the newspapers every morning! I worked in a school in a nearby town – in fact the one that sent the bread and papers – and in my free time I played tennis, went for walks, and played the piano. I made my own entertainment. In the end I had to move to Istanbul for work, but I really miss the fresh food and fresh fish, the peace. I sometimes used to think when I was living there that there wasn't enough choice of things to do, things to buy, but now I think I have too much choice.

Eric A few years ago my wife and I retired and we moved to a little town in the mountains here in Colorado. It's gorgeous. We have a house on a hill, and we are surrounded by mountains, which we can see from our window, as well as the woods and a very pretty lake. There are lots of paths and we walk every morning with our dog, er, who loves chasing after sticks and things.

There's so much to do. In the summer we go hiking and we have a little canoe we take on the lake, and of course in the winter we go skiing. We have lots of friends here and we often have dinner parties or we have our book club meetings. There's a joke here that we only have three seasons: summer, winter, and 'mud season'. That's after the snow has melted and everything, I mean everything, is covered in mud. That's the only bad time to be here. And the other problem is that we don't have a supermarket. The nearest one's about 20 miles from here.

Interviewer How long have you been on The Archers?

Tim Well, I celebrated 30 years on The Archers this June.

Interviewer Which character do you play?

Tim I play a character called David Archer, who is a farmer, who's the son of Phil Archer, who in turn was the son of Dan Archer, who was the very first Mr Archer back in 1951, when the programme started.

Interviewer What kind of person is David Archer?

Tim Well, David is some... some might say he's a bit thick, 'thick' meaning stupid. He's not. He's a simple soul. He's extremely honourable, he's extremely hard-working, he's honest, he's dependable. But he's a farmer, and that's the most important thing in his life, making the farm work and keeping his family together.

Interviewer How much did you know about life on a farm before you joined the cast?

Tim Well, unusually, I actually knew a bit because I'd worked on farms when I was a child. And I was in fact born on a sheep station in Tasmania. And so when I was a boy I used to go and work occasionally at the local farm. And then my father in the 1970s gave up being an advertising executive and went off down to Devon to live off the land, and so he started this ten-acre organic smallholding in Devon. And my wife and I went down and helped him to get that going, so I've got quite a lot of practical experience on the farm.

Interviewer Is that an exception on The Archers?

Tim Yes, yes, most of the actors don't know one end of a cow from the other, to be honest.

Interviewer Do you think that country and city people react to The Archers in a different way?

Tim Yes, they do. City people look at Ambridge, which is the village that we live in, as a kind of an English ideal of the countryside. It's an old-fashioned England where everybody's nice to each other. There's not much crime. There aren't any yellow lines so that you can't park. And that's, I think, what they love about it. And from the country people, what they tend to like is the fact that they all say, 'That's exactly like the village that I live in.' There's the vicar, there's the doctor, there's the person who runs the pub – and there's the bossy woman who runs around trying to organize everybody, you know.

Interviewer Would you actually like to live on a farm yourself – or do you?

Tim We've got a cottage in Norfolk, so we're – I'm up in the country every weekend. And also I was brought up in the country. Until I was 21, we lived just north of London, in Hertfordshire. So I'm a country boy at heart and, er, you know...

Interviewer Have you ever lived in a city?

Tim Yeah, we do now. I mean, I've lived in London since – for 30 years. So I'm a country boy who's kind of ended up in the town because that's where the work is.

Interviewer Thank you very much.

Tim My great pleasure.

Rob He was attacked?

Jenny That's right. The police found him at the airport.

Rob You're sure it's the same person?

Jenny Definitely. I saw his picture. His name's Andrew Page and he's a scientist.

Rob And you spoke to him?

Jenny He helped carry my bags! I mean, I could have been the last person to see him before it happened.

Rob I think you should go to the police.

Jenny I know. And Rob, there's something else.

Rob What is it?

Jenny Well, I don't want to worry you, but your dad hasn't come home. We were supposed to have dinner at seven.

Rob What time is it now?

Jenny It's a little after nine.

Rob What? That is worrying. Dad's usually really punctual.

Jenny Should I call the police?

Rob I think you should. It's really not like him.

Jenny OK, and Rob?

Rob Yeah?

Jenny Oh, it's nothing.

Rob What is it?

Jenny I know this seems odd but the house feels strange.

Rob What do you mean?

Jenny I don't know, but I don't like being alone here.

Rob Well, it's late and you're tired.

Jenny That's true. But I don't think I'll be able to sleep here.

Rob Why don't you ring Luke? You could stay with him, and you could go to the police together and tell them about Dad.

Jenny OK, I think I'll do that.

Rob I'll ring you later.

Jenny OK, Rob, I'll be fine. Don't worry. Bye.

3 24)))

Jenny Good morning.

Luke Hi.

Jenny Thanks for letting me stay. I feel a lot safer here.

Luke What? Oh, no problem.

Jenny I tried Henry again. Still no answer. I wonder if...

Luke Yes!

Jenny What?

Luke Yes! I've done it! I'm in. I've cracked the security code on your computer.

Jenny That's great, Luke, but Henry...

Luke Wait a minute, that's not right. The username says A. Page... and all the files are encrypted.

Jenny A. Page? Are you sure?

Luke Let me just see if I can open the files. What the...? Jenny, take a look at this. It's a formula or something.

Jenny What does it mean?

Luke I have no idea.

Jenny It's a message from Henry!

Luke What? What does it say?

Jenny It's a video. Hang on.

Henry Hello, Jenny. As you can see, I'm all right. I can't tell you where I am. But listen carefully. These people want some documents on your computer. They want you to leave it at the house. To prove that I'm OK, here's a copy of this morning's paper.

Henry There's one last thing that they want me to tell you. Don't go to the police again. If you go to the police, you know what'll happen. Now, Jenny, please don't worry. Tell Rob his old man will be in his study again soon.

Jenny We need to call Rob.

1 I love IKEA. Especially the bookshelves. We have several. And I'm usually pretty good at putting their stuff together. But I have had a few problems over the years. I remember I once had some trouble with a wardrobe. After hours and hours, and a lot of swearing, I finally managed to put it together. But I'd assembled it in my study, next to the bedroom, which was where the wardrobe was going, because I had more space there. And when my husband and I tried to move it into the bedroom we couldn't get it to fit through the door. So I had to take it to pieces, move all the bits into the bedroom, and start all over again. I suppose it was my fault though, not IKEA's. And the wardrobe looked very nice and has lasted for ages.

2 About three years ago, my girlfriend and I went to IKEA to buy a kitchen. The units were cheap and cheerful, but they also looked quite well-designed, and we were very excited by how good it was all going to look. The guy in the store said they were easy to put up, that it wouldn't take long, etc., etc. and I'm quite handy, quite practical, so I thought no problem, though I admit my girlfriend was a bit sceptical. Anyway when we got home I thought I'd assemble one cupboard, just to see how easy it was going to be. It was a nightmare. The instructions were incomprehensible – it took me the whole afternoon just to do this one cupboard and when it was finished I realized I'd put the door handle on the wrong way round. In the end, we had to pay someone to come and do it all for us.

3 I have lots of things from IKEA – it's great for students because generally speaking it's pretty cheap. Anyway, I bought a table there with my boyfriend not long ago. We started putting the table together and at one point we had three legs screwed in. Then we reached for the screws to attach the fourth leg – and realised there were no more screws. We had to take off the other three legs, take one screw off every one of them and reassemble the table. It's wobbly, but at least it has four legs! But it does annoy me when they don't give you the right number of nails or screws or whatever, and it's not the first time it's happened to me. Now I always check before I bring stuff home.

Presenter Welcome back to Breakfast, and now's the time when we talk about what was on TV last night with our TV critic, Ryan. We're going to start with Service, Michel Roux's series, which had its final episode last night. Ryan, you watched the whole series, didn't you?

TV critic Yes, I did. For those of you that haven't watched it, Service took eight young people with no real background in service or restaurant work, and tried to convert them into great waiters, capable of working in a top restaurant in the UK, or indeed anywhere in the world.

Presenter Tell us a bit about what they were like at the beginning.

TV critic Well, in the first episode, after just a few hours of training, the group had to manage the dinner service at a pizza restaurant, and almost everything went wrong. Customers waited ages for their food, then got the wrong orders, and the team all fought with each other. One of the trainees, Nikkita, started to cry, and Ashley – well, when the pressure got too much, he simply disappeared and left the others to it!

Presenter But by the end, I'm assuming they'd all improved enormously?

TV critic Yes. In later episodes, the trainees gained massively in confidence, mainly thanks to Michel Roux's encouragement and his positive attitude, and also his great colleagues who helped to train them. They served in all sorts of different settings, including an elegant Paris restaurant – the first trip to France for most of them – and a five-star hotel. They learned to handle really demanding situations, for example, by the end Brooke was able to cook crepes suzette – at the table for her customers – that's crepes flambéed with orange juice and alcohol. That was a moment which really boosted her confidence.

Presenter So tell us about last night's final episode.

TV critic Right. In the final episode, Chef Michel let the trainees handle the dinner service at his own Michelin-starred restaurant, Le Gavroche. He admitted that he was quite terrified, but in the end, in his own words, they did superbly well.

Presenter And the big question last night, of course, was: who were the two winners?

TV critic The two winners were Danielle, the former hairdresser, who won a scholarship to become a wine waiter. And Ashley, the young man who used to be in trouble with the law, who won the scholarship in service and waiting. But in addition, Michel Roux was so impressed with the trainees' progress that he decided to award one extra scholarship, and that went to the former salesperson James, the oldest of the group at 24.

Presenter It's an inspiring story, and we wish them all the best.

TV critic And it made great television. Next, I'm going to talk about a new sitcom that was...

Welcome back to the evening news. It's quarter past seven, which means it's time for 'odd news', our round-up of strange and unusual stories from around the world.

Starting close to home, ATM customers in Glasgow were pleasantly surprised this afternoon when a cash machine started giving out free money. The Bank of Scotland ATM was giving out double the amount requested by customers – if you asked for £20, you got £40. The news spread quickly over social networks, and soon over a hundred people were queuing, looking for free money. Eventually, police arrived and stood guard over the machine until the bank was able to switch it off remotely. The bank said it was unlikely to take action because of the difficulty of tracing all the payments made.

This is not the first time a cash machine has broken down in this way. A similar malfunction took place in London about six months ago, and some years ago cash machines in Coventry gave away more than £850,000 in error.

If you were one of the lucky ones who got an extra £20 note, be warned: keeping the extra money is considered a crime, and the law expects you to give it back. During the incident in Coventry, three family members were sent to prison for a year for collecting over £134,000 from the faulty machines.

Our next odd story takes us to the other side of the world, where...

And now the news. If you've taken money out recently at an ATM in New York City, you might want to check your wallet for fake notes. They should be easy to spot because they'll be blank on one side and printed on ordinary paper.

Police have warned customers and shops to look out for the fakes after they were found in two ATMs on Monday. They were never supposed to fool any customers, police say. But they were meant to make the machines think they were full of cash when, in fact, they were missing about $110,000.

So who did this, and why? According to police, it was a man who worked for a company that repairs the cash machines. He filled the machine with the fake notes and kept the real money for himself. The man went on holiday to the Dominican Republic to enjoy the stolen cash, but he was immediately arrested when he came back ten days later.

For our next story, we're going over to our reporter in...

1 Hi... Yeah, not bad... Yeah, it's half time... One-all. Yeah, there's a really good crowd. The stadium's packed... No, no trouble. The Liverpool fans are making a bit of noise, but nothing major... OK, I'll call you when it's over. With a bit of luck we'll be in the semi-final in an hour's time.

2 A So, tell me all about it!

B It was absolutely brilliant. We were in the second row, just near the stage, and when he was singing I swear a few times he looked right at me!

A Did he sing Baby Baby?

B Of course! All the best songs. It was just an amazing performance.

A Were Sandy and Annette there?

B Yeah, we met for a drink in the interval.

A Gosh, you're so lucky you got tickets!

3 A OK, I'm looking for tickets now...

There's a matinee at 3 p.m. and then an evening performance at 8 p.m.

B Let's go at 8.00 if we can get seats.

A Well, there aren't any in the stalls, but there are two upstairs in the circle, in the second row.

B OK. Go for it. It's a small theatre anyway, so we should have a good view wherever we sit.

A OK.

Right, we've got them. We can pick them up at the box office.

417))

Presenter Next on Arts Week is Jill who has been to see a really exciting new theatre production, Sleep No More, that's on in New York.

Critic Thanks, Peter. By now you've probably heard that Sleep No More is one of the hottest tickets in theatre here, and the performances were sold out months ago. Well, I was lucky enough to get a ticket for last night's performance. It was a thrilling, creepy murder mystery – sometimes scary, but also a lot of fun.

Presenter I've heard that it's not like any other play anyone's ever been to.

Critic That's right. It takes place in an empty six-floor building which has been transformed, just for this play, into the McKittrick Hotel. And in Sleep No More, the members of the audience don't have normal seats. Instead, you walk freely through the 'hotel', going into all the different rooms. While you're walking and watching, you see different parts of the play.

Presenter How many rooms are there in the 'hotel'?

Critic More than 100, and each one is completely different. For example, my favourite room was a dark, mysterious sweet shop full of candy jars. You could touch anything in the rooms, so you could open a jar and eat something if you wanted to.

The sweet shop was fun, but in fact most of the rooms were pretty spooky. For example, there was also a dark old-fashioned pharmacy. It was full of plants and herbs and collections of strange little things. Another room I liked was an empty hospital. There were about 50 drawers in this room, and every single one of them contained about a hundred samples of people's hair.

Presenter Spooky. So, what was happening while you were wandering through these rooms? Are there actors there?

Critic That's right. The members of the audience all have to wear white masks, so that you know who's the audience and who are the actors, and the actors are all wearing 1930s-style costumes. An actor might interact with you. It happened to me three times, and it was very exciting!

Presenter How long does it take to see the performance?

Critic Well, you have a few hours. The best thing is to spend the first hour or so exploring the rooms. After that, try to follow some of the characters. You may think you're just wandering around freely, but in fact the directors make sure that you end up exactly where they want you to be. And somehow, I don't understand how, we – the audience – all ended up in the same room for the final scene, and that's when you realize how many people have been walking around the, the hotel.

Presenter But what exactly is the play about?

Critic Er, that's a difficult question to answer. It's a murder mystery, I know that much. And it's a very artistic and interesting experience to walk through all the rooms. To be honest, even by the end I wasn't that certain about the plot.

Presenter So not a typical theatre performance.

Critic No, but it was a very enjoyable evening.

Presenter Thanks very much, Jill. So, now you know, if you are planning a trip to New York, try and get tickets. Next, we'll learn more about an unusual new art gallery...

422))

Jenny Rob, are you OK?

Rob Yes... no... I don't know.

Jenny What are you going to do?

Rob I need to get to England as soon as possible. I wish I was there with you now.

Jenny Me too. I just don't know what to do. Should we go back to the police?

Rob I don't think so. You heard what they said. They're obviously watching you and I don't want them to hurt Dad!

Luke And we can't just give them the laptop. We know what they're capable of.

Rob You're right. You know, there's something bothering me about Dad's message. It's the words he used.

Jenny What do you mean?

Rob I'm not sure. Can you play the end of the message again for me?

Henry Now Jenny, please don't worry. Tell Rob his old man will be in his study again soon.

Rob That sounds strange.

Luke What sounds strange?

Rob 'His old man.'

Luke Why is that strange? He is your dad!

Rob But he'd never call himself my 'old man'. It's just not like him.

Jenny So what are you saying? That he said it deliberately?

Rob I think it could be a clue.

Jenny But 'old man'? What on earth can that mean?

Rob I don't know. But I'm sure it means something.

Jenny You know, there was something else. I could hear something in the background.

Luke Like a generator or something.

Jenny Not just that. At the beginning of the video. It sounded like a church bell ringing.

Luke That could be anywhere.

Jenny You're right.

Rob Anyway, I need to try and get a flight to London.

Jenny OK. Good luck. We'll call you later.

Rob Bye, guys.

Jenny Bye.

Luke Well, you definitely can't go back to Henry's house now.

Jenny You're right. I'll need to find a room in a hotel or a B&B.

Luke Don't be silly. You can stay here as long as you like.

Jenny Won't Simon mind?

Luke Simon? No, he'll understand. And we've got the spare room.

Jenny Are you sure?

Luke Of course I'm sure.

Jenny Thanks, Luke. That's very nice of you.

Luke No worries. I'll tell you about the house.

425))

Jenny Oh, I hope we're doing the right thing.

Luke What do you mean?

Jenny Maybe we should just go to the police.

Luke We can't. You heard what the kidnappers said.

Jenny I know, I know... but it's all such a mess.

What will we do if we can't find him?

Luke We will!

Jenny I hope so. I just don't know.

Luke Is that Rob?

Jenny Yes. Rob, hi!

Rob Hi, Jenny.

Jenny Any news?

Rob It's snowing really heavily and there aren't any flights to London. I don't know when I'm going to get back.

Jenny Oh, Rob, that's terrible!

Rob I know, but I'll keep trying.

Jenny Is there anything we can do?

Rob Yes, actually. I've been thinking about Dad's message – that 'old man' business.

Jenny What about it?

Rob He must be telling us where he is. It's the only explanation.

Jenny But what can we do about it? We don't know what it means.

Rob Well, Dad also mentioned something about his study, didn't he?

Jenny Yeah, but...

Rob I'm sure I remember something about an old man. It's the name of a book or a painting or something, and I think it's in the study.

Jenny Henry's study?

Rob Yeah. Listen Jenny, I think you'll have to go back there.

Jenny Back to Henry's house? But we know they're watching.

Rob I know, and I'm really sorry, but it's our only chance.

Jenny You're right. Luke and I will figure something out.

Rob Thanks, Jenny. I wish I was there to help.

Jenny Don't worry, we'll be OK. Talk to you soon.

Rob Bye Jenny. And be really careful!

Jenny Did you get that?

Luke Yes, but we can't go to the house now. If they're there, they'll see us immediately.

Jenny We'll have to go when it's dark.

Luke But they still might see us.

Jenny We can sneak in the back way. There's a footpath.

Luke Good idea. I know that way really well. I used to play around there when I was a kid.

Jenny We'll need flashlights though.

Luke I've got some.

Jenny OK. We'll have to be careful, but we just might be able to do this!

Interviewer Dino, what made you choose hairdressing?

Dino Er, I always liked it from when I was child. I remember being taken to the barber's by my dad when I was a child in Greece, and I really loved the atmosphere there.

Interviewer He wasn't a barber himself though?

Dino No, but my aunt was a hairdresser.

Interviewer What sort of training did you do?

Dino When I came to London I went to the Vidal Sassoon Academy. It was a two-year course – absolutely fantastic, very intense. I loved it!

Interviewer What sort of things do you love or hate doing in hairdressing?

Dino I love everything. There really isn't anything I don't like. And I do everything, cut, colour, highlights, straightening. Nowadays some hairdressers specialize in maybe just colour, or just styling, but I think it's important to do everything.

Interviewer So do you think that's an important quality for a hairdresser?

Dino Very important. I don't believe in specializing in just one area.

Interviewer Any other important qualities?

Dino I think you need to be sociable, to be able to talk to people, calm them down if they're stressed, listen to them if they want to talk.

Interviewer Do you enjoy that?

Dino Yes, I do. The sociable side of hairdressing was one of the things that attracted me to it. Even women who want to tell me all their problems – I don't mind it at all, it doesn't distract me.

Interviewer Are women clients very different from men?

Dino Yes, definitely. They are normally the ones who want to talk, and they are much more worried – stressed – about their hair. Men are more quiet and relaxed, and they're not normally very fussy about their hair.

Interviewer What do you do if a client doesn't like the results?

Dino I try to correct it immediately. That's easy if it's the colour, less easy if it's a cut.

Interviewer Have you ever had a really bad experience where you couldn't correct it?

Dino Only once, when I was still at college. I cut a woman's hair shorter than she was expecting it – not much, only about one centimetre shorter, but she burst into tears – and I couldn't correct that.

Interviewer I often feel that hairdressers always want to cut off more hair than their clients want – is that true?

Dino I think maybe it is. Many hairdressers want to make the hair healthier, and cut of all the parts that are, you know, damaged. Or sometimes they have a style in mind and they just want to do it. But obviously, normally I try to do what the customer wants. You have to be flexible. That's another important quality in a hairdresser.

Interviewer So, if you completely disagreed with what a client wanted, would you still do it?

Dino Well, if a client wanted a treatment that I thought was going to damage her hair, for example, if she wanted to have her hair bleached when it was already in bad condition. Then I would say no. But if it was a question of style – for example, a woman who wanted to have her head shaved completely – I would try to convince her that it wasn't a good idea, but if she insisted, I would do it. It's her choice after all.

Interviewer Do you have any tips for having good hair?

Dino Yes – use good products, ones which are right for your type of hair. I notice that a lot of people take a lot of trouble choosing the right face cream – you know for dry skin, or problem skin. For day, for night, and so on. But with shampoo they just buy the first one they see in the supermarket.

Verger Good afternoon, everyone, and welcome to Westminster Abbey, which as you know is one of the most important and historic churches in Britain. Over 1,000 years of British history are contained within these walls and, indeed, under the floors.

We are now standing in front of the High Altar. Many of you will recognize this as the place where Prince William and Kate Middleton stood at their wedding in 2011, and of course many other royal weddings have taken place here. It's also where Princess Diana's coffin was placed during her funeral, although as you probably know she is not buried in Westminster Abbey. You may notice that although the part of the building where we are is obviously very old, the altar is relatively modern. In fact it was designed in the 19th century. Now, if I can direct your attention...

Right. Let's continue, shall we? The area where we are now is called the Shrine of St. Edward the Confessor, who was king from the year 1042 to 1066, and was the first king to be buried in the Abbey. You can see his tomb here. These tombs here are of an early king, Edward the first, and his wife Eleanor, who was the daughter of the Spanish king, Ferdinand of Castile. There's an interesting story here, that when Queen Eleanor died in 1290, the King and Queen were in Lincoln, about 145 miles from London. Edward followed her body to Westminster Abbey, and at each place where they stopped overnight on the way, he erected a memorial cross. They came to be called the Eleanor crosses, and three of them still exist today. In fact...

Let's move on to see some other royal tombs. We are now in the beautiful Lady Chapel, or chapel of Henry VII as it's also called. Many other kings and queens are buried here including Queen Elizabeth the first, and her half-sister Queen Mary, the daughter of Catherine of Aragon.

We are now standing in an area called Poets' Corner, which is probably one of the most famous spots in Westminster Abbey. The first writer who was buried here was Geoffrey Chaucer in the year 1400. Charles Dickens was also buried here. And although Shakespeare is not buried here, there is a plaque for him. Jane Austen has a plaque as well, although, again, she is not actually buried here in the Abbey.

We are now in an area called the Quire. These seats are where the Westminster Abbey choir sings during church services. As you can see, there is a tall and very lovely screen here, and on the other side of the screen is a monument to Sir Isaac Newton, the scientist. A number of prominent British scientists are buried in this area, including Charles Darwin, and also famous English composers. Moving on in this direction, we can see how...

The simple wooden chair that you see here is the Coronation Chair. It may look simple, but for hundreds of years, nearly every English monarch has been crowned here, including our present queen, Elizabeth II.

There's also a funny story about this chair. In the 18th century, there was a school for boys in Westminster Abbey. And if you look at the back of the Coronation Chair, you can see graffiti – I mean places where schoolboys have carved their names and written messages on the chair. Look here – one boy has written, 'I slept the night in the Coronation Chair'.

Presenter And now Brian is here to tell us about a fascinating project that's recording the life stories of people throughout the United States.

Brian That's right, Liz. It's called the StoryCorps project, and they've already recorded the stories of over 45,000 people. These are everyday ordinary people – friends, older relatives with memory loss, also veterans and immigrants with powerful stories to tell. Everyone who participates receives a free CD with their story on it, and many stories are also online for everyone to enjoy.

Presenter Wow! Can you tell us about some of the people who have recorded their stories?

Brian There are so many great ones. As I said, some of the people who have recorded their stories are people with memory problems.

Presenter OK.

Brian For instance, there was a very interesting story from a woman named Gweneviere Mann, a young woman who has no short-term memory.

Presenter Oh? So she can't remember things that have just happened?

Brian Yes, that's right. She was there with her boyfriend, Yasir Salem, and they talk about the things she does to help with her problem. For example, she always has a notecard in her pocket with the date on it. And even things like meals. She has to write down every meal she's had.

Before she started doing that, she would sometimes have lunch three times in a day because she didn't remember she'd eaten already.

Presenter Has she always had this condition?

Brian No. She went to hospital for an operation and she had a stroke, and that's when her problem started. The doctors told her that her condition would improve in a couple of years. But unfortunately, it didn't.

Presenter That sounds so sad.

Brian Well, yes. And Gweneviere did say that she was afraid she would wake up one day at age 80 and not remember the last 40 years of her life. But she and Yasir actually have a very positive attitude to it overall. She's able to laugh at her situation, and she tells a lot of funny stories. For example, she lives in New York, but after her stroke she always used to say that she lived in San Francisco. Yasir would have to correct her every time. And she often used to ask him if one of her colleagues was her mother.

Presenter But she wasn't.

Brian No, in fact they look completely different. Gweneviere's mum is dark-haired, but her colleague was blonde.

Presenter Does she mention any positive aspects of her memory loss?

Brian Yes, for example she ran the New York City marathon with Yasir. And her memory loss actually helped her. She told Yasir not to let her look at any of the distance signs along the way.

Presenter So she didn't know how far she'd run?

Brian Right. And when she asked Yasir how long they'd been running, he always told her it had been only 10 or 15 minutes, so she never felt tired or discouraged.

Presenter And did she finish?

Brian Yes, absolutely. She said that finishing the marathon made her realize that although she had lost some things, she had gained others. It's a really inspiring story, like so many others. I really recommend you listen to some of them.

Presenter I will. Thank you very much for telling us about the project.

Brian No problem.

When George arrived at Singapore he found a telegram waiting for him.

Quite understand. Don't worry. Love Mabel. 'My God, I believe she's following me,' he said. He checked the passenger list of the next ship on its way to Singapore, and sure enough her name was on it.

There was not a moment to lose. He jumped on the first train to Bangkok. But he was uneasy; she would have no difficulty in finding out that he had gone to Bangkok. Fortunately there was a French boat sailing the next day for Saigon. He took it. At Saigon he would be safe. It would never occur to her that he had gone there.

It was five days journey from Bangkok to Saigon and the boat was dirty, crowded and uncomfortable. He was glad to arrive and went straight to the hotel. A telegram was immediately handed to him. It contained only two words:

Love Mabel.

He started to tremble.

'When is the next boat for Hong Kong?' he asked. He sailed to Hong Kong but was afraid to stay there. Then he went to Manila, and from there he went on to Shanghai. Shanghai made him feel nervous; every time he went out of the hotel he expected to run straight into Mabel's arms. No, Shanghai would never do. The only thing was to go to Yokohama. At the Grand Hotel in Yokohama a telegram awaited him.

So sorry I missed you at Manila. Love Mabel.

Where was she now? He went back to Shanghai. This time he went straight to the club and asked if he had received any telegrams. One was handed to him.

Arriving soon. Love Mabel.

Part 4

One morning George and the consul were in the courtyard when there was a loud knock at the door. The doorman opened it. Mabel walked in. She was neat and cool and fresh. There was nothing in her appearance to suggest that she had just come in after two weeks on the road. George was terrified. He was as pale as death. She went up to him.

'Hello, George, I was so afraid that I'd missed you again.'

'Hello, Mabel,' he said.

He did not know what to say. He looked this way and that: she stood between him and the doorway. She looked at him with a smile in her blue eyes.

'You haven't changed at all,' she said.

'I was afraid you'd got fat and bald. I've been so nervous. It would have been terrible if I hadn't been able to marry you after all.'

She turned to George's host.

'Are you the consul?' she asked.

'I am.'

'Good. I'm ready to marry him as soon as I've had a bath.'

And she did.

Jenny Keats, The Iliad, poems by Byron, The Complete Works of Shakespeare... nothing about an old man!

Luke Not even a picture on the front cover.

Jenny What about those paintings? Anything there?

Luke I've already checked them. Nothing. Should we look through each book?

Jenny That could take forever and we don't have time. This is hopeless. It's OK, it's Rob. Rob.

Rob Jenny. Any luck?

Jenny No. We've been here for hours and we've looked everywhere. We haven't found a single thing about an old man. Look Rob, maybe the 'old man' thing wasn't a secret message at all.

Rob But it sounded so odd. And why would he mention his study?

Jenny Well, he's under a lot of pressure. He probably just...

Rob Wait!

Jenny What?

Rob Is there anything on top of the bookcase?

Luke Just a load of old books. We've already been through them.

Rob Isn't there anything else?

Luke Wait a second. Yeah, there are two small paperweights.

Rob Do they have anything written on them?

Luke This one says 'Apollo, god of music and poetry'.

Rob What about the other one?

Luke It says 'Proteus... the old man of the sea!'

Rob That must be what Dad meant!

Jenny What does it mean? Who's Proteus?

Luke You know, that name sounds familiar.

Rob I think he's a Greek god. Dad's got loads of stuff like that.

Luke No, no, not that. I'm sure I've seen it somewhere. I'll Google it.

Jenny Does it mean anything to you, Rob?

Rob No. I can't remember hearing it before. Maybe it's someone's name or...

Luke Got it! Proteus is a biochemical company. It's based in Oxford and... oh, I don't believe it!

Jenny What is it, Luke?

Luke It's right by St Bartholomew's church. You know, the one with the famous bells!

Jenny The bells we heard in the recording. That must be where Henry is! Rob, we've got to go call the police.

Laing Laing speaking... Yes?... Oh, Jenny Zielinski... OK, slow down... Where? Proteus?... Yes, I know it... No, Jenny, you can't go down there... It's too dangerous... and it's illegal... I know but... OK, OK, but not on your own... we'll meet you there in ten minutes.

Jenny It was night time and we could hear a generator in the background.

Laing Right, so we're looking for a room with a generator. How are you doing, Luke?

Luke I'm just downloading the plans for the Proteus building now. That's it. Done. OK, there's only one room with a generator. It's in the basement.

Laing Excellent.

Laing Tom, where are you?

Tom We're approaching the side entrance. There's nobody around.

Laing OK, Tom. I'm going to hand you over to Luke. He's going to guide you to a room in the basement. That's where we think Henry's being held.

Tom Got it.

Laing Be careful.

Tom Don't worry. Come on.

522))

Newsreader Police have arrested a man and a woman following a raid on the Proteus building in Oxford early this morning. They have been named locally as Selina Lavelle and Grant McFadden. Mr McFadden has been charged with assault following the brutal attack on research scientist Andrew Page, who is still recovering in hospital. Ms Lavelle has been charged with false imprisonment, extortion, blackmail, and industrial espionage. Police believe she organized the kidnapping of university lecturer Henry Walker. Mr Walker, who was rescued in the raid, told reporters he'd been through a terrible ordeal but hadn't been badly hurt. He wished Andrew Page a speedy recovery and said he would visit him in hospital. Mr Walker thanked the police for their hard work. He said that he was too tired to talk to reporters in detail and was just looking forward to returning home.

Jenny Well, Henry, you're kind of a star.

Henry I never expected to become a celebrity, not at my age.

Rob Well, next time you're kidnapped, Dad, try to set us an easier clue.

Henry I must admit, I was beginning to lose hope. It took you a long time to work it out.

Rob You can't blame us! Proteus – the 'old man' of the sea? How were we supposed to know that?

Henry You need to brush up on your classics.

Luke Oh come on, Henry, I think we did really well!

Henry I'm joking, I'm joking. You were great and I really have to thank you. Goodness knows what would have happened if you hadn't found me in time.

Jenny We're just glad we did.

Henry Now, I had been saving this for a special occasion and, I think this is it. Could you fetch the glasses, Luke?

Luke No worries.

Rob It's great to have you back, Dad.

Jenny It sure is.

Henry I just wish you were here, Rob.

Rob Well, it's just stopped snowing. I could get a flight now and maybe we could stay there for longer. What do you think, Jenny?

Jenny Oh, I don't know. The English countryside is a little too wild for me. I can't wait to get back to the peace and quiet of New York!

Andy I think one of the best contributions America has made has been the Hollywood film industry, especially pre-turn of this current century, so we're looking at films from the Marx brothers and Harold Lloyd, to films like Gone with the Wind then films from somebody like Martin Scorsese or Woody Allen. I think these Hollywood movies have brought American culture and made it a higher culture in many ways and made it very exciting. I definitely think that the American ability to consume food in such vast quantities, such big sizes and mega-sizes it's been talked about in so many ways, 'supersizing' food, I think that's a bad contribution that America has made to the general things in the world.

Jenny I think the best thing about America is the can-do spirit, that you can do anything you want if you work hard enough and you really believe in your dream. I think that's great. I think the downside of America is all the chains, the sort of global chains that are set up in all countries now, and so there's, there are shops that are the same everywhere. And I think that's really a bad thing.

Molly I think one of America's best contributions worldwide would be our effect on people's positivity and energy. We really are a new country and I think that's helped us to have that kind of onwards, upwards, bigger, better kind of attitude. And I think that affects everyone and people look to America for that. But on the other hand, they look to us for other things, like not being very healthy, being kind of fat, in general, and not really having so much positivity when it comes to our bodies.

Interviewer What's the hardest exam you've ever taken?

Mark My A Level Physics exam – I didn't understand at least half the questions.

Interviewer Have you ever done an exam where everything went wrong?

Mark I'm afraid so. For a history O level there were five questions – all short essays. I'd prepared five questions from previous exam papers, but nothing else. So I was gambling that at least three of the questions would come up. But none of them did, so obviously I didn't pass it.

Interviewer How did you usually prepare for a big exam?

Mark I remember it generally involved a lot of coffee and late nights!

Interviewer Did you find exams stressful?

Mark I never got that stressed about them until it was too late – that may have had a negative effect on the results, come to think of it. I was never the world's best at exams. I usually passed, but the results were never brilliant.

Interviewer What's the hardest exam you've ever taken?

Sophie I guess the hardest exam was probably my driving test – the practical part. I just didn't know what to expect. In fact I failed three times before I finally passed.

Interviewer Have you ever done an exam where everything went wrong?

Sophie Yes, in the beginning of my first driving test, I refused to stop where the examiner asked me to stop. I just didn't think it looked safe and I thought it was a trick – I mean, I thought that he was asking me to do something dangerous, to test me. Anyway it wasn't a trick and he wasn't happy at all.

Interviewer How did you usually prepare for a big exam?

Sophie Um, I did a lot of revising. For some exams at school and university, I also remember eating a lot of fish as I was told it helped. It's supposed to be good for your brain.

Interviewer Did exams use to stress you out?

Sophie Yes. I hated exams and used to get very nervous and stressed beforehand. But once the exam had started I usually relaxed.

Interviewer What's the hardest exam you've ever taken?

Kate Definitely my eleven plus exam. It was the first exam I'd ever done in my life. I was shocked! I still remember one of the questions, it was: 'Who was the father of the son of William Shakespeare?' I couldn't work out the answer.

Interviewer Have you ever done an exam where everything went wrong?

Kate No, I revise too much to let anything like that to happen to me.

Interviewer How did you usually prepare for a big exam?

Kate Well, despite being a teacher now and telling my students not to study the night before the exam, to have an early night... I didn't use to do that myself. I used to cram right up until the last minute. And even if I did have an early night I slept really badly.

Interviewer Did exams use to stress you out?

Kate Oh yes, because you can have a bad day and simply not be able to show your real ability in a subject. I always worried that that would happen to me.

Interviewer What's the hardest exam you've ever taken?

Paul Probably the exam at the end of the first year of my geography course at university. Not because the questions were very difficult but because I'd done so little work for it.

Interviewer Have you ever done an exam where everything went wrong?

Paul Oh yes. I thought I'd done quite well in my GCSE Chemistry exam but I failed it. So something must have gone very wrong.

Interviewer How did you usually prepare for a big exam?

Paul I used to read notes over and over again, right up till the last possible minute. Yeah, I relied heavily on short-term memory, I think.

Interviewer Did exams use to stress you out?

Paul Not really, though they probably would now. When I was at school and university it was just part of life – so not particularly stressful.

5 37)))

The first tip may seem obvious, but it's vital. Get to the place where the oral exam is going to be held in plenty of time. You need to relax before the exam, and if you're late you'll be stressed, and that will make it much more difficult. Try to get there at least half an hour before your time.

Then, when you go into the exam, make eye contact with the examiner (or examiners) and smile. Examiners are human, too. Treat them in a polite but friendly way. Body language is important too. Sit up straight, and if you are doing the exam with another candidate, try to look interested in what he or she is saying.

Another important tip if you are doing the interview in pairs – and many of the oral exams nowadays are in pairs – is to make sure you give your partner the opportunity to speak too. Ask for your partner's opinion after you've given your own, and try to integrate him or her into the conversation as much as possible.

Finally, two tips for when it's your turn to speak. Firstly, if you can't think of the word for what you want to say, don't freeze and say nothing. Paraphrase, use other words to communicate what you want to say. Say 'I'm sorry, I can't remember the word, but it's...' Don't forget that this happens to people all the time, even if they're speaking their own language.

And my last tip is, don't use prepared speeches, rehearsed speeches. Examiners can spot them straight away, and they give a very bad impression. It's fine to prepare, and to memorize words and phrases that you might need, for example, to describe what you do. But don't try to memorize whole speeches.

Try to remember the tips, and good luck! I'm sure you'll do well!

pronouns

Revise the basics

- I live in London. NOT i live
- My name's Anna.
- My parents don't visit me very often.
- They have a flat in north London, but mine is in south London.

pronouns and possessive adjectives

subject pronouns	object pronouns	possessive adjectives	possessive pronouns
I	me	my	mine
you	you	your	yours
he / she / it	him / her / it	his / her / its	his / hers
we	us	our	ours
you	you	your	yours
they	them	their	theirs

each other

We use each other to talk about an action between two people or groups of people, e.g.
We gave each other our email addresses.
They send texts to each other all the time.

a Circle the correct form.

- Me (My) middle name's Alexandra, but (I) me never use it.
- My sister doesn't have a tablet. He / She prefers his / her laptop.
 - A Are these your / yours books here?
B Yes, they're my / mine.
 - Most people are happy with theirs / their names, but Kim doesn't like her / hers.
 - A What are hers / her children called?
B I don't know, she's never told me / my.
 - I gave them / their my phone number, but they didn't give me theirs / their.
 - A Is this ours / our car key?
B No, ours / our says 'VW'.
 - This is my / mine pen, so that one must be your / yours.
 - She'll phone us / we when her / hers flight arrives.
 - You should send he / him some photos – this is his / him email address.
 - It's* / They're a really good restaurant but I can never remember his / its name.

direct / indirect object pronouns and word order

- 1 He gave me some money. (18)
 I'm going to lend her my camera.
 They've shown their friends their new flat.
 I'll send you an email.
 We bought our father some books.
- 2 He gave it to me.
 I'm going to lend it to her.
 They've shown it to them.
 I'll send it to you.
 We bought them for him.

- Some verbs can have two objects, usually a thing (the direct object) and a person (the indirect object). If the direct object is a noun (some money, a digital camera, etc.), we usually use verb + indirect object + direct object.
- If the direct object is a pronoun (it, them), we usually use verb + direct object + indirect object, with either for or to before the indirect object – it depends on the verb. Some common verbs which can have two objects are:

bring (for | to), buy (for), cook (for), find (for), get (for), make (for) give (to), lend (to), offer (to), read (to), sell (to), send (to), show (to), take (to), write (to)

- If the indirect object is a pronoun, remember to use the object pronoun, not the subject pronoun:
I bought it for her. NOT I bought it for she.
I gave them my number. NOT I gave they my number.

b Rewrite the highlighted phrases. Replace the bold words with a pronoun and use to / for.

- I gave you that pen. I gave it to you.
- They sent me a new password yesterday.
- I gave my girlfriend some flowers, but she's still angry with me.
- She found me some hotels online.
- My sister wrote me these letters when she was living in Japan.
- Will you lend him the money?
- My son made me a birthday card at school.
- They didn't have the keys so they couldn't show us their new flat.
- We didn't buy our daughter a computer because we think she's too young.
- I read the children the first Harry Potter book last week.
- A friend at university sold me these CDs for 50p each.

adjectives

bad	worse	the worst
far	further	the furthest

adjective + one / ones

I've lost my suitcase. It's a big, blue one. 1 16
Expensive laptops are usually more reliable than cheap ones.

- We use one / ones after an adjective instead of repeating a singular or plural noun.
- We don't use one / ones with uncountable nouns.
I'm looking for full-time work, but I'd be happy with part-time. NOT part-time one a Are the highlighted forms right ✓ or wrong ✗? Correct the wrong ones.

He's happier than he was yesterday. ✓

She's the most stressed person in the office.
- 2 She's the cleverest girl in the class.
The old road was much narrower than the new one.
It would be simpler to go back to the beginning.

- 1 One-syllable adjectives which end in -ed always use more and the most for comparatives and superlatives, e.g. bored, pleased, shocked, stressed, tired.
- 2 Some two-syllable adjectives can make comparatives and superlatives with -er and -est. Common examples are clever, narrow, polite, quiet, simple, stupid.
 - A good dictionary will tell you the usual comparative and superlative form for a two-syllable adjective.

a bit and much + comparative adjective

- 1 It's a bit cloudier today than yesterday. 1 18
This phone's a bit more expensive than that one.
- 2 Your job is much more stressful than mine.
The business is much busier than it was last year.

- 1 We use a bit + comparative adjective to say that a difference is small.
- 2 We use much + comparative adjective to say that a difference is large.

2A

present tenses

Revise the basics

present simple and frequency

- 1 She goes abroad a lot. NOT She go

A Hi, Marta. Are you waiting for someone?
B Yes, I'm waiting for Tim.
- 2 I like vegetables now, but I didn't use to.
Oh, now I remember where I left my glasses.

- 1 Many verbs describe actions. These verbs are used in the present continuous to talk about actions happening now or in the future.
- 2 Some verbs describe states and feelings, not actions. Examples are agree, be, believe, belong, depend, forget, hate, hear, know, like, look like, love, matter, mean, need, prefer, realize, recognize, remember, seem, suppose, want. These verbs are normally used in the present simple, not the continuous, even if we are referring to now.

- a Complete the sentences with the present simple or present continuous form of the verbs in brackets.

Do you know how to waterski? (know)

- 1 _____ you _____ camping or staying in cheap hotels? (prefer)
- 2 We _____ of going on a safari next year. (think)

- 7 Tanya _____ a massage at the moment, and I _____ for souvenirs. (have, shop)
- 8 A Where _____ you _____ this weekend? (go)
B We _____ at home. (stay) verbs which can have action and non-action meanings

- Do you have any sunscreen? = possession (non-action) (1 34))
He's having a shower at the moment. = an action
Do you think we should have lunch in the hotel? = opinion (non-action)
They're thinking about going on a cruise. = an action
I see what you mean. = understand (non-action)
I'm seeing the hotel manager tomorrow morning. = an action

- Some verbs have two meanings, an action meaning and a non-action meaning, e.g. have, think, see. If they describe a state or feeling, not an action, they are not usually used in the present continuous. If they describe an action, they can be used in the present continuous.

present continuous for future arrangements

- I'm leaving tomorrow. (1 35))
We're seeing our grandparents this weekend.
When are they coming to see us?
She isn't going out tonight, she's staying in.

- We often use the present continuous for future arrangements.

present simple for 'timetable' future

- The train leaves at 6.30 in the morning. (1 36))
Our flight doesn't stop in Hong Kong, it stops in Singapore.
When do you arrive in New York?

- We can use the present simple to talk about things which will happen according to a timetable, especially travel times and arrangements. The present continuous is usually possible as well.

- b Circle the correct form of the verb. Tick ✓ if both are possible.

We're going / We go to New Zealand on Saturday.
The flight ¹ leaves / is leaving at 6.50 in the morning.
² We need / We're needing to check in two hours ahead, so ³ we go / we're going to the airport the night before, and ⁴ we stay / we're staying in an airport hotel (£200 a night, but it's better than getting up at 2.00 a.m.). The first part of the flight, to Singapore, ⁵ takes / is taking 14 hours, and ⁶ we break / we're breaking the journey there for a couple of days. Then it's on to Auckland. The flight ⁷ gets in / is getting in at nearly midnight, but our friends ⁸ meet / are meeting us at the airport, and ⁹ they look after / they're looking after us for a week or so. Then ¹⁰ we travel / we're travelling round North and South Island – ¹¹ we rent / we're renting a camper van. ¹² We have / We're having to be back in Auckland on February 22, but I don't think I'll want to come home!

possessives

possessive 's

- 1 That's Mark's jacket. (1 41)))
Have you seen Andrew's phone?
He's my sister's boyfriend.
- 2 I asked Chris's advice. / I asked Chris's advice.
- 3 This is a photo of my parents' house.
That's the children's bedroom.
- 4 We spent the weekend at Paul's.
I went to my grandmother's yesterday.

- 1 We usually use possessive 's to show possession after the names of people, animals, organizations: Have you seen the dog's lead? What do you think of the government's plans for education reform?
- 2 If a name ends with -s, we make the possessive with ' or 's. Both are pronounced /ɪz/.
- 3 Possessives are different for regular and irregular plurals.
 - After a plural noun ending in -s, we make the possessive with a final ' (but no extra s).
 - After an irregular plural not ending in -s, we make the possessive with 's.
- 4 We can use name / person + 's to mean that person's house or flat.

 's after two names

We saw Tom and Mary's parents. = Tom and Mary are brother and sister. We saw their parents.

We saw Gill's and David's parents. = We saw Gill's parents and we saw David's parents.

of to show possession

- 1 What's the name of the street where you live? (1 42)))
They sat at the back of the bus.
I've found the top of the shampoo bottle.
- 2 That man over there is a friend of mine.
This is an interesting book of Sarah's.
Tell me about this plan of theirs.
Where's that husband of yours?

- 1 With other nouns (not people or animals), we often use of.
- 2 We often use noun + of + possessive pronoun or name / noun + 's after a / an or this / that, not 's.

own

- I'd love to have my own business. (1 43)))
That's my magazine – you can get your own.
Our town is going to get its own shopping centre.
Small bakers often sell their own bread and cakes.

We can use own after a possessive adjective for emphasis:

- a Complete the sentences with apostrophes (') where necessary (possession or contraction).
- Mark's brother works in a chemist's.
- 1 There are lots of expensive womens clothes shops round here.
 - 2 We went to James and Amandas party last night.
 - 3 Thats the towns only bakers.
 - 4 On Saturdays I often look round the shops.
 - 5 Theres been a florists on that corner for years.
 - 6 Two of my friends wives run small businesses from home.
 - 7 Shes going to spend a few nights at her parents.
 - 8 There are too many estate agents in this neighbourhood.
 - 9 Charles sisters both live in flats in the centre.
 - 10 The towns only greengrocers closed down last year.

- b Circle the correct form.

What's (the name of the street) the street's name where you live?

- 1 That's the car of my friend | my friend's car over there.
- 2 He's 95 years old but he still does all his own | all their own shopping.
- 3 I live in the flat at the building's top | the top of the building.
- 4 I quite like supermarket pizza but I prefer to make my own | mine own.
- 5 I can't remember the name of the book | the book's name.
- 6 A Who's Sarah?
B She's my husband's sister | my sister's husband.
- 7 Every Christmas we go to my wife's parents' | my wife's parent's.
- 8 I've known him for years – he's a very good my friend | friend of mine.
- 9 Not many people live in the centre of London | London's centre.

past simple, past continuous, or used to?

Revise the basics

past simple

- 1 When I was young I loved playing outside.
- 2 We didn't live in a big city.
- 3 Where did you go to school?

past continuous

- 4 I was watching TV when you arrived.
- 5 She wasn't studying when I called her.
- 6 What were you doing at 9.00 this morning?

used to

- 7 He used to have long hair.
- 8 They didn't use to live in London.
- 9 What music did you use to like when you were young?

past simple and past continuous

- 1 I saw him two minutes ago. (2 3))
Humans didn't live in cities until about 8,000 years ago.
Where did you grow up?
- 2 What were you doing at 7.00 this morning?
He was texting a friend when the accident happened.
Sorry, what did you say? I wasn't listening.

a Circle the correct form of the verb. Tick ✓ if both are possible.

(I grew up) / I was growing up in a little village.

- 1 They were having / used to have dinner when I phoned / was phoning them.
- 2 When we were young our parents took / used to take us to the beach every weekend.
- 3 She was still having / still had breakfast when the taxi arrived / used to arrive.
- 4 Did your brother teach / Was your brother teaching you to play the guitar when you were young?

- 9 We didn't go / didn't use to go abroad last year.
- 10 They didn't use to have / weren't having a car when I knew / was knowing them.

1 We use the past simple for finished past actions or states (when we say, ask, or know when they happened). We can use the past simple for things which happened at any time in the past – very recently, or a long time ago. The important thing is that we see them as finished.

➤ For irregular past simple verbs see Irregular verbs p.165.

2 We use the past continuous:

- to talk about an action in progress at a specific time in the past.
- to describe a past action which was interrupted by another action (expressed in the past simple).

used to

- 1 We used to live in Rome. (2 4))
I used to have very long hair.
- 2 I often went to the cinema when I lived in London.
He never wore a suit and tie when he was a student.

1 We use used to (not the past continuous) to describe a habit or state that was true for a significant period in the past, and that has now finished.

• We don't say We used to live in Rome if:

- we only lived in Rome for a short period of time, e.g. three weeks (= We lived in Rome for three weeks).
- we still live in Rome. (= We've lived / We've been living in Rome for the last three years).

2 We can also often use the past simple with an adverb of frequency instead of used to.

b Are the highlighted forms right ✓ or wrong ✗? Correct the wrong ones.

Where did you use to go on holiday last year? ✗

Where did you go on holiday last year?

1 This time last week I was sitting on a beach.

2 When did they use to get married?

3 I used to find it very hard to get a job when I left university.

4 We used to love going to concerts when we were students.

5 Were you seeing anything good on TV last night?

6 My brother and I didn't use to get on very well when we were young.

7 He was never studying much at school.

8 Where did you grow up?

9 Sorry, I didn't hear what you said, I listened to the radio.

10 We were moving to Manchester when my father got a job there.

prepositions

prepositions of place

She sat in the square and watched the tourists. (2 20))
 There's a box under your bed.
 You'll find some cash inside my purse.
 The cups are on that shelf there.
 There's a man standing in front of the gate.

- Prepositions that describe place, like in and on, have an independent meaning. They can be used with different verbs and places and the meaning doesn't change.

prepositions of movement

They flew over the city. (2 21))
 He ran across the road.
 He walked through the door.
 Go along the street, past the supermarket.
 Don't run down the steps. You'll fall.

- Prepositions that describe movement, like over and through, have an independent meaning. They can be used with different verbs of movement and the meaning doesn't change.

dependent prepositions after verbs and adjectives

 She's interested in astrology.
- He's good at spending other people's money.
 She believes in taking lots of pictures and then choosing the best.

- Some verbs are always followed by the same preposition.
- Some adjectives are always followed by the same preposition.
- If there is a verb after the preposition, we use the -ing form, not the infinitive.

The verbs ask, discuss, enter, marry, and tell have no preposition, e.g.
 I asked Jack for directions. NOT asked to
 We discussed the situation. NOT discussed about
 The police officers entered the building. NOT entered in
 She married her personal trainer. NOT married with The photographer told everyone to smile. NOT told to future forms: will / shall and going to will / shall

4A

1 Predictions

2 38)))

Who do you think will win tomorrow's game?
The climate probably won't change much in the next five or ten years.

2 Future facts

I'll be at work on Monday.
The election will be on 6 May.

3 Instant decisions

A Is that the phone ringing?
B Yes, I think so. I'll get it.

4 Promises

A Have you been using my laptop? You didn't switch it off.
B Sorry. I'll remember next time.
A The battery's almost run down!
B Sorry. I promise I won't do it again.

5 Offers and suggestions

I'll cook dinner tonight.
Shall I throw away this bread?
What shall I do with my old phone?
Where shall we go for lunch today?

We use will / won't + infinitive:

- to ask for or make predictions about what we think or believe will happen.
- for future facts.
- for instant decisions.
- to make promises.
- to offer to do something. If the offer is a question, we use Shall I / we...?

We also use shall with I and we to ask for suggestions.

going to

1 Plans

2 39)))

I'm going to buy a new phone this weekend.
He's going to make pizza for dinner.

2 Predictions

England aren't going to win – they're 3–0 down and there are only ten minutes left.
It's getting cloudy – the weather forecast says it's going to rain this afternoon.

We use going to + infinitive:

- when there is a plan to do something – a decision has been made.
- to make predictions when we feel more sure of the future, for example if we can see what's going to happen.

We can often use either will or going to for predictions.

Present continuous for future arrangements

We use the present continuous when there is an arrangement to do something – something has been organized.

We're having Liz and Nick round for dinner tonight.

I'm meeting my bank manager tomorrow.

There is sometimes very little difference between a plan and an arrangement, and we can often use either going to or the present continuous.

- a Are the highlighted forms right ✓ or wrong ✗? Correct the wrong ones.

Shall I take the rubbish out? ✓

That's the phone – I'm going to get it. ✗ I'll get

- 1 A What are your plans for the weekend?

B I'm going to do lots of gardening, and we're going to see a film on Sunday.

- 2 A These cardboard boxes are all empty.

Will I put them in the bin?

B No, I spoke to David and he's going to use them.

- 3 A I've decided to buy a new camera. I'll get one with a good zoom.

B Do I help you choose one? I know a bit about cameras.

- 4 A Is Katie going to be at the party?

B I don't know. Pass me my phone and I'm going to text her.

- 5 A Did you finish all the biscuits?

B Yes, I'm really sorry. I'm going to leave you some next time.

- b Complete with the correct form of will, shall, or going to and the verbs in brackets.

We've decided that we 're going to stay in in the UK for our holiday this year. (stay)

- 1 A It's really hot in here!

B I _____ the air conditioning. (turn on)

- 2 Can I borrow £10? I _____ you back tomorrow. (pay)

- 3 A What are you planning to do with these old clothes?

B I _____ them to the charity shop. (take)

- 4 A _____ I _____ some more bread when I go out? (buy)

B Yes, please. I've decided I _____ sandwiches for lunch. (make)

- 5 Are you going home by bus? I _____ you a lift if you like. (give)

- 6 A Let's go to the cinema.

B OK. What film _____ we _____? (see)

- 7 A What _____ you _____ with all those old bottles and jars? (do)

B I _____ them to the bottle bank for recycling. (take)

- 8 A I told you not to use my laptop without asking!

B Sorry, I _____ it again. (not do) first and second conditionals first conditional

- If I have time, I'll write my CV tonight. (2 45))
If you don't work hard, you won't get promoted.
- If he does well at school, he can go to a good university.
I might (may) go back to college if I can't find a job.
If you apply for that job, you must prepare an up-to-date CV.
If they fail their exams, they should take them again.
- If you get an interview, think carefully about what to wear.

We use the first conditional to talk about a possible future situation and its consequence.

- The first conditional normally uses if + present simple, will / won't + infinitive.
- We can also use other modal verbs instead of will, e.g. can, might, may, must, or should.
- We can also use an imperative instead of will.

Unless

We can use unless instead of if... not in conditional sentences.

I won't come unless you come too. (= I won't come if you don't come too.)

a Circle the correct form.

- If I go to university, I'd study / I'll study engineering.
- If she had her own car, she doesn't / wouldn't need to borrow yours.
 - If I had / have a good degree, I'll get a better job.
 - You wouldn't always be late for work if you get / got an earlier bus.
 - We can't help you unless you tell / told us what the problem is.
 - If you find / found your phone, you can send me a text later.
 - You'd* / You'll save time if you did your shopping online.
 - I won't / wouldn't go there unless I really had to.
 - They'd enjoy life more if they didn't / don't study all the time.
 - If you can't / couldn't find the street, just give me a ring.
 - If I earned / earn more, I could afford to go on an exotic holiday.

second conditional

- If I had more money, I wouldn't need evening work. (2 46))
If they offered you a part-time job, would you accept it?
- I might meet more people if I lived in a hall of residence.
You could apply for a scholarship if you got a place to study in the US.
- If he was (were) here, he'd know what to do.
I'd take it back to the shop if I were you.

We use the second conditional to talk about a hypothetical or imaginary situation, or one that we don't think is a possibility.

- The second conditional normally uses if + past simple, would / wouldn't + infinitive.
- We can use might or could instead of would.
- When we use be in the if clause, we can use was or were after I / he / she / it.
However, in the phrase if I were you, which is often used to give advice, only were is used. NOT if I was you.

First or second conditional

The conditional we use depends on how likely the condition is. Compare:

If I have more time, I'll do it. (I think it's a real possibility that I'll have time.)

If I had more time, I'd do it. (I think it's unlikely or impossible that I'll have more time.)

b Complete the sentences with the verbs in brackets.

- I wouldn't want to do research if I didn't enjoy working on my own. (not want)
- If I _____ to stay at university, I'll probably do a PhD or a master's degree. (decide)
 - If you didn't spend so much on clothes, you _____ borrow money all the time. (not have to)
 - I think my sister and her boyfriend _____ soon, if they can afford to pay for the wedding. (get married)
 - If I have time over the summer, I _____ for an internship. (apply)
 - I think Andy might get a scholarship if he _____ on working hard. (keep)
 - If we _____ a bigger house, we could rent a couple of rooms to students. (buy)
 - I might enjoy my job more if I _____ such awful colleagues. (not have)
 - If I _____ get a job, I won't retake my exams. (can)
 - My tutor says I must attend all the seminars if I _____ to fail. (not want)
 - I'd get more job offers if I _____ better qualified. (be)

- I moved to Paris eleven months ago so I've lived / I live here for nearly a year.

- We use the present perfect for past experiences when we don't say when they happened. If we say when they happened (five minutes ago, yesterday, last week, etc.) we use the past simple, e.g. I've been to Brazil a few times. I went to Rio in 2013.
- We use the present perfect to give news. If something has happened very recently, we often use just.
- We use the present perfect with yet to ask if something has happened, or to say that it hasn't happened but that it will.
- We use the present perfect with already to say that something has happened earlier than expected.
- We can use the present perfect to talk about situations that started in the past and have continued to the present. We don't use the present simple or the present continuous, e.g. I've lived here for three months. NOT Live here for three months / I'm living here for three months.
 - To express a period of time we often use for or since. We use for + a period of time, e.g. for two minutes / ten years / ages / a long time. We use since + a time in the past, e.g. since this morning / 5.00 / September / 2004 / I was a child.
 - We can use phrases with all to express a period of time, e.g. all my life, all day, all year, etc. We don't use for with all, e.g. I've been here all day. NOT I've been here for all day.

3 16))

- We use the present perfect continuous with 'action verbs' for repeated actions that started in the past and have continued till now. We often use time expressions like recently / lately.
- We use the present perfect continuous for continuous actions which have present results.
- We use the present perfect continuous to ask or talk about situations which started in the past and are still happening now. We often use for / since or time expressions like all day / all morning / all week. We don't use the present continuous or the present simple, e.g.

I've been waiting since ten o'clock.

NOT I'm waiting since ten o'clock.

I wait since ten o'clock.

- If you say when something happened, use the past simple, not the present perfect continuous, e.g.

I've been watching a lot of TV lately. I saw a great programme last night. NOT I've been seeing a great programme last night.

- a Match the questions and answers, and complete the answers with the present perfect continuous.

6A

obligation, necessity, prohibition, advice obligation and necessity

- 1 I have to fix the kitchen tap. (3 33))
Do you have to do it yourself?
She had to buy new curtains.
- 2 You must be more careful.
Must I go to bed now?
You must pay him back as soon as possible.
- 3 I need to buy an extra tin of paint.
Did they need to ask someone to help them?

- 1 We use have to to talk about all kinds of obligation.
Have to can be used in all tenses.

have got to

We often use have got to instead of have to, e.g. I've got to phone him tomorrow.

- 2 We also use must to talk about obligation. The meaning is similar to have to, but must is usually used when the speaker sees something as a personal obligation.
Compare:
I have to start work at 9.00. (A general obligation, the company rule.)
I must remember to buy some batteries. (A personal obligation, one that the speaker imposes.)
- 3 We can use need to to talk about things that are necessary. Need to can be used in all tenses.

no obligation / no necessity

- 1 You don't have to pay me now. (3 34))
- 2 She won't need to paint the bathroom – it looks fine.
- 3 You needn't hurry. We have plenty of time.

- 1 We use (not) have to when there is no obligation to do something.
- 2 We use (not) need to when it is not necessary to do something.
- 3 We can also use needn't + infinitive without to to say that it is not necessary to do something.

prohibition

- You mustn't change the bulb with the electricity switched on. (3 35))
You mustn't touch that door. The paint's wet.

We use mustn't when there is an obligation not to do something. Mustn't and don't have to are completely different.

Compare:

You mustn't come tomorrow. = Don't come. (An obligation not to do something.)
You don't have to come tomorrow. = It's not necessary to come. (No obligation.)

advice

- 1 You should sell your car. (3 36))
They shouldn't pay him before he's done the work.
- 2 You ought to get a smartphone.
She oughtn't to spend so much on clothes.
- 3 If you feel really ill, you must go to the doctor's.
When you're in Venice, you have to have a coffee at Harry's Bar!

- 1 We use should / shouldn't to give someone advice, or to say what we think is the right thing for ourselves or for someone else to do.
- 2 We can also use ought to / oughtn't to to give advice.
The meaning is the same as should.
- 3 We can use must and have to to give strong advice when we think it's very important that someone does something.

a Circle the correct form. Tick ✓ if both are possible.

She had to / must buy some tools last week.

- 1 They don't have to / mustn't drive. There's a bus that goes there.
- 2 You needn't / don't have to worry about getting a ticket in advance – you can pay on the train.
- 3 He shouldn't / doesn't have to put a nail in the wall. It'll leave a mark.
- 4 You'll have to / You'll need to read the instructions before you try to assemble the table.
- 5 We should / ought to turn off the electricity when we go.
- 6 I don't need to / mustn't leave yet. I have plenty of time.
- 7 You mustn't / don't have to spill anything on the sofa – it's leather.
- 8 She mustn't / didn't have to go to work yesterday.
- 9 They don't need to / needn't phone us unless their train is delayed.

- 5 I couldn't find it in the shops but I was able to buy it online.
The current was very strong, but he was able to swim to the shore.

- 1 We use can to talk about ability, possibility, and permission. Can is a modal verb, and it only has a present form (which can be used to talk about the future) and a past / conditional form (could).
- 2 We often use Can I...? or Could I...? to make requests. Could I...? is more polite.
- 3 For all other tenses and forms, we use be able to + infinitive. We also sometimes use be able to in the present and past if we want to be more formal.
- 4 We use could / couldn't to talk about general ability or possibility in the past. We can also use was / were able to but it is more formal.
- 5 If we want to talk about ability on one specific occasion in the past, we can use couldn't but not could. Instead we use was / were able to.
- We can also use managed to instead of was / were able to, e.g. I managed to buy it online.

deduction

The supermarket can't be closed – it's only 4.00. (3 38))
They can't be back yet. They said they were coming home on Sunday.

- We use can't to say we are sure that something is impossible / not true.
- In this sense the opposite of can't is must. Compare:
She can't be at work now. It's only 7.30 a.m. (= I'm sure it's not true.)
She must be at work now. It's 9.30 a.m. (= I'm sure it's true.)

 The flat was in good condition, so we didn't have it redecorated.
 When did you have those photos taken?

4 29)))

- We use have + object + past participle when we arrange (and usually pay) for someone to do something for us, either because we can't or don't want to do it ourselves. Compare:
I cleaned my car yesterday. (= I did it myself.) I had my car cleaned yesterday. (= I paid someone to clean it for me.)

- We can use have something done in any tense and with modal verbs.
- Have* is the main verb, and is stressed. We use auxiliary verbs (do, did, etc.) to make questions and negatives.
- If we want to say who did the work, we use by, e.g.
We had our wedding photos taken by the same photographer you used.
I had the central heating checked by British Gas.

a Put the words in the correct order to make sentences.

| 3 'We don't like it here .' | She told us (that) they didn't like it there . | |
| ' This is your station.' | She said (that) that was our station. | |

- Remember that in reported speech as well as the verbs we often need to change other words or parts of the original sentence. We may need to change:

1 pronouns 2 time expressions 3 here and this reported questions

- | | | |
|---|---|--------|
| 1 'Where did you live before?' | She asked (me) where I'd lived before. | (5 5)) |
| 2 ' Have you been to Australia?' | He asked (us) if / whether we'd been to Australia. | |
| ' Are you coming with me?' | She asked (him) if / whether he was going with her . | |

- Reported questions use normal word order with no question mark:

She asked me where I'd lived before. NOT She asked me where had I lived before?

- The verb ask in reported questions can be used with or without a person or object pronoun.
- We use if or whether to report questions which start with an auxiliary verb.

reported imperatives and requests

- 'Don't forget.'
- He told me not to forget. (5 6))
 'Wait in the car.'
 She told me to wait in the car.
 'Buy six oranges.'
 He told me to buy six oranges.
 - 'Could you close the window?'

She asked me to close the window.
 'Can you wait here, please?'
 He asked us to wait there.

- We can use tell + object pronoun + infinitive to report imperatives and instructions.

- The verb tell can mean give information or give an instruction. Compare:

He told me (that) his name was Rob.
 (= information)

He told me to close the door.

(= instruction)

- We can use ask + object pronoun + infinitive to report requests. We must use an object pronoun, e.g. me, us.

- The verb ask can mean ask a question or make a request. Compare:

He asked (me) what I was doing.

(= question)

He asked me to close the door.

(= request)

impulse /'ɪmpʌls/ mood /mu:d/ possess /pə'zɛz/ power /paʊə/rebel /rɪ'bel/ rely /rɪ'laɪ/ self /self/ sense /sens/ style /stɑɪl/

Word endings for adjectives

Many adjectives are formed by adding suffixes (= endings) such as -able / -ible, -y, -ive, -ous, and -ful to a noun or verb. Sometimes another small spelling change is required, e.g. losing a final e (fame – famous). Check the spelling changes in your dictionary. Knowing typical suffixes will help you to recognise that a new word is an adjective.

-able / -ible	-y	-ive	-ous	-ful	-ish
sociable	lucky	aggressive	ambitious	beautiful	childish
responsible	_____	sensitive	_____	_____	_____

_____	_____	_____	_____	_____

- b 111 Listen and check.

3 -FUL AND -LESS

-ful and -less

-ful and -less are suffixes which add the meaning 'with' or 'without' to the base word, e.g. careful = with care, careless = without care, hopeful = with hope, hopeless = without hope. However, not all words which can form an adjective with -ful can also form one with -less, e.g. we can say successful but NOT successless, and not all words which can form an adjective with -less can also form one with -ful, e.g. we can say endless but NOT endful.
